THREE JOIN NAVY IN MEDFORD AREA

The number of first enlistments in the navy for January from the state of Oregon has been reduced to twenty, the smallest number in several months, due to an unexpected increase in the number of men re-enlisting after expiration of their first year term.

The local recruiting office was allowed a quota of three and the men selected were Winston S. Churchill, Medford; Robert W. Adams, Central Point, and Clarence J. Powers of Roseburg. They left this morning for Portland for final examinations and induction into the service after which they will be sent to the training station at San Diego for the regular three months period of training prior to assignment to vessels of the fleet.

An increase in the number of recruits from southern Oregon is expected for February enlistment but definite word has not been received. Eligible young men contemplating a naval career should apply and get their names on the waiting list to be assured of priority, according to the recruiting officer.

HIGHER EDUCATION CENTRALIZATION IN STATE PROFITABLE

EUGENE, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Two years of completely centralized operation of Oregon's system of state-supported higher education has, its leaders say, produced practical results never attained under separate administration of institutions.

Increasing effectiveness under conditions of more complete organization and more adequate financial support is indicated, according to the biennial report to the governor by the state board of higher education.

"The principle established by the law in Oregon and put into operation by the board," said Willard L. Marks, president of the board of education, "is a state-wide service through the cooperative work of all institutions.

Oregon cannot support separate institutions, each complete in itself. Rather, each institution must occupy a distinctive field as a part of the state system."

Chancellor W. J. Kerr said full results of the program can yet hardly be appraised as all activities have been under the necessity of extreme economy never contemplated by the commission which outlined the fundamental reorganization plan.

The chancellor pointed out, however, that despite the severe financial handicaps under which the system has been launched, achievements toward cooperation and coordination have been notable. Without unified control, it was said, continuation of all of the six institutions on less than two-thirds of their former income would have been impossible.

TWO PARDONED AS MEIER'S LAST ACT

SALEM, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Among the last official acts of Governor Julius L. Meier here yesterday was the granting of two conditional pardons. One to Charles Reynolds of Lincoln county, who was serving a life term in the state penitentiary for a statutory offense while armed with a dangerous weapon. Reynolds was received at the penitentiary August 7, 1915, and had served 20 years. Governor Meier said the prisoner's partner in the crime served only 12 years.

The other pardon was issued to George C. Wahl of Columbia county who was received at the penitentiary May 28, 1934, to serve a term of ten years in the state penitentiary. Records show that Wahl's accomplice was acquitted after a brief trial. Both Reynolds and Wahl must report to the state parole officer monthly.

SIX AGE PENSIONS RECEIVE APPROVAL

At the last meeting of the old age pension board for Jackson county, six pension applications were approved, five held under advisement for future consideration, and seven rejected.

One rejection was due to lack of sufficient residence in Oregon, one because of failure to sign properly release in favor of the state, as required by law, because the applicant has income in excess of what the pension would be, and sufficient for present needs, and four because the board felt the sons and daughters of the applicants were able to care for them.

SUNNY LIVING starts at the table

How you feel and how you look depend largely on the food you eat. The balanced menu provides the "bulk" to prevent common constipation—caused by lack of this essential fiber.

Common constipation frequently causes headaches, loss of appetite and energy. Yet, in most cases, it can be overcome pleasantly and safely by eating a delicious cereal.

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN is a natural food for normal individuals. It furnishes "bulk" in convenient and concentrated form. ALL-BRAN also provides vitamin B and iron.

Isn't this sunny way better than taking patent medicines? Two table-spoonfuls of ALL-BRAN daily are usually sufficient. Chronic cases, with each meal. If relief is not obtained, see your doctor.

Serve ALL-BRAN as a cereal, or use in cooking. Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

HITLER GRATIFIED BY SAARLANDERS' VOTE FOR RETURN

many as to action which would be taken provided the Saar voted in favor of a return to Germany.

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER, Associated Press Foreign Staff. BERLIN, Jan. 15.—(AP)—Reichsruehrer Hitler, congratulating Saarlanders today on their vote to return to the reich, said "your decision gives me the possibility of contributing a solution to Europe's problems."

"Once we have attained equality we can cooperate in those tasks of international solidarity which are so necessary for pacification of the world," the leader said.

In an impassioned radio address Hitler asserted he regarded the Saar vote as "a decisive step on the road to ending the most terrible and the most unfruitful fight that tore European nations asunder."

The plebiscite, he said, "means that the indissoluble unity of the German people once again has been demonstrated. Germany thanks you from millions of hearts."

Church bells rang throughout Germany when the result was announced.

Schools were closed for the day after a short and solemn ceremony celebrating the victory. Flags appeared as if by magic and torchlight parades and mass meetings were arranged by Nazis to close the "historic day."

Pupils had been ordered to reach their classes by 8 a. m. to listen to the plebiscite broadcasts. In factories throughout the reich all workers were called together to hear the results.

Hitler in his radio broadcast, said "our success was huge because the voice of blood and reason decided and not the treaty of Versailles, which promised the world peace but brought unrest. Neither force nor persuasion could influence you. I express the gratitude of the German nation for your loyalty."

"You dear Saarlanders cannot imagine how happy all we Germans feel at this moment. You may be proud to be Germans. During the coming years you will be representatives of the German people and the German reich."

"I know you will remain loyal under the most difficult circumstances. I ask you once more to keep the strictest discipline, for even at this late hour there may be some who will try to provoke incidents. The German people will thank you the more for your discipline."

RIIM BOARD TO EYE RELIEF RECEIVERS

The state liquor commission yesterday called upon Jackson county, through the district attorney's office, to submit its indigent and relief rolls to the liquor board, for the purpose of checking them with the permits issued for purchase of liquor.

Under the Knox law, "the commission shall have the power to revoke the liquor permit of any person receiving work or relief, from any public relief agency."

The liquor commission's letter states that the liquor permits will be checked with the indigent and relief rolls.

The commission's action applies to all counties of the state.

GOVERNOR FIRES FIRST SHOTS IN NEW DEAL DRIVE

to time as to the needs of the state and to suggest remedies, and that the people naturally "look to the chief executive for leadership along this line and hold him responsible."

Governor Martin declared in his message that the executive now has "surprisingly little direct and effectual control over the administration of the affairs of the state."

"Therefore, it will be my purpose to submit to you from time to time measures which will enable me to more effectively discharge my duties. The measures which I shall propose are not inspired by selfish motives or by any personal desire for more power, but are prompted solely by the desire that the governor shall be given the power and control over the administration of state government that is commensurate with the responsibility reposed upon him by virtue of his office. Furthermore, most of the measures to be proposed are not newly conceived ideas, but have been repeatedly advocated by governors of this state."

Concerning the need for a more stable and systematic plan of financing and administering public schools, the governor said:

School Economy Needed. "There is a growing tendency in other states, as well as Oregon, towards centralization of responsibility for the operation of schools. This tendency has manifested itself in Oregon during recent years through the urgent appeal of distressed school districts for financial support from state sources of taxation and through the universal cry of property owners for some relief from the burden of taxes. Experience has proved that no marked degree of economy, financial stability or educational leadership can be attained under a system of a multiplicity of small independent, and often conflicting, tax-levying school districts."

"In Oregon, we are confronted with the situation of having expended in 1934, even on greatly reduced budgets, about $16,914,000 of property taxes through some 2200 different school districts. Under this system, flagrant inequalities have developed, both in the cost of and the facilities afforded for common school education. Samples of such inequalities are:

"A tax levy in mills of 3 in one district and 28.4 in another of Tillamook county; a tax per pupil enrolled of $8.41 in one district and $69.41 in another of Douglas county; a tax per teacher of $17.68 in one district and $7,838.32 in another of Lane county; assessed valuation per pupil of $1,004.11 in one district and $95,126.49 in another of Clackamas county; assessed valuation per teacher of $34,475 in one district and $83,887 in another of Umatilla county."

Four Unify Districts. "Ever since 1921, Oregon has had an optional county school district law, but only four counties in the state have adopted this unified plan of school administration. Comparison indicates that these county unit school districts have had less difficulty with tax delinquencies and have been operated more economically and efficiently than the average of the school districts in the other counties. If all of the counties had taken advantage of the county school unit law, we would have only about 75 administrative units in the place of 2200, as at present. Each county would have one school district and, in addition, all first-class districts would have remained as separate district units as at present."

"I recommend that the first thing to be done in dealing with the problems relating to our common school system is the enactment of a law amending section 35-830 Oregon code, 1930, as amended by chapter 246 Oregon laws, 1933, known as the county school law, so that the law shall become effective on June 15, 1936, in every county in the state, unless, prior to March 1, 1936, upon petition of 10 per cent of the registered voters, an election be held in a county, at which a majority of voters shall reject the law. By this amendment, the optional feature of the present law will be eliminated and it will become effective in all counties on June 15, 1936, except in the counties in which it may be rejected by a referendum vote," the governor declared.

Plan Board Needed. The third message stated that "in order to formulate a worthwhile and long-range program for the progressive and systematic development of the resources of our state and to place Oregon definitely in line with the national recovery program and the policies of the President of the United States, the scope of the duties and functions of the state planning board of necessity have been broad and diverse," another message read.

"The research required for intelligent planning will entail the expenditure of a substantial sum of money; but it is expected that the investment so made will soon bring to the people of Oregon returns far more valuable and far-reaching in their benefits."

RAINS TO FOLLOW SNOW IN PORTLAND

PORTLAND, Jan. 15.—(AP)—About a half inch of snow fell here during the night and the fall continued at intervals today. The temperature dropped to 29 degrees.

The weather bureau announced, however, that slightly higher temperatures will follow a storm of considerable intensity, which is moving toward the coast. Rain was predicted for tomorrow.

Southeast storm warnings to caution shipping against approaching gales were ordered up on the Oregon and Washington coast today.

The unfavorable weather held mail planes on the ground this morning. There was no morning ship from Seattle; the northbound plane was grounded at Medford, and the westbound trip was held at Salt Lake City. There was no eastward movement from Portland.
