Arizona Terror

The Arizona Terror, which comes to the Roxy theater tomorrow is a picture of romance, mystery and adventure laid against the rugged back-grounds of California with Ken Maynard and his horse, "Tarzan" riding and fighting their way through as choice a collection of "bad hombres" as were ever collected on either side of the Rio Grande.

SCREEN REVIEW

By Dick Applegate
For one with a lethal detestation of child prodigies such as I have actually enjoyed a show in which one of the little darlings stars is decidedly novel, to say the least. I enjoyed Shirley Temple last night.

America's dimpled darling is "no ordinary child," as those who know her will testify, however. Sweet without being saccharine, Shirley has added at least one more to her entourage of rabid fans by her performance in "Bright Eyes," at the Craterian, which you'll not miss if you are at all wise.

As the friendly and tiny little mascot of a huge southern California air terminal she scampers through the picture and your hearts oiling the troubled waters of a chaotic home life with her dimpled grins.

As the woebegone little hitch-hiker, who runs away at night from the home where she is supposed to stay, and comes dripping in out of the rain with her dripping dog "Rags" under her arm to the airport where her dead daddy's pal is flyer, she'll make you love her whether you like child prodigies or not. She did me.

Loose fellows are prone to get tight.

Nancy Carroll in Rialto Picture

Combining the thrilling excitement that comes in the prize ring with the complicated romance of a hot-head fighter and his red-headed girl friend, "Jealousy," with George Murphy and Nancy Carroll heading the cast, is at the Rialto theater for today and Saturday.

Lee Ramage, leading contender for Max Barr's heavyweight crown, is shown as Murphy's opponent in the fight scenes, with Donald Cook as the unwilling "other man" who is the recipient of some shocking rights and lefts to the chin when the fighter jealously believes him guilty of trespassing on what he believes his own property—the girl.

Coming to Craterian

Film entertainment of exceptional merit is in store for local moviegoers with the showing Sunday at the Craterian theater of "Biography of a Bachelor Girl," the screen adaptation of the Theater Guild success, "Biography," which enjoyed a long run on Broadway with Ina Claire in the starring role.

The photoplay version brings together for the second time Ann Harding and Robert Montgomery whose joint performance in "When Ladies Meet" made that one of the most delightful of last season's pictures.

The distinctive supporting cast features Edward Everett Horton in the role of a pompous, big-wing politician from a backwoods state; Edward Arnold, whose millionaire husband in "Sadie McKee" made him Hollywood's most sought-after character; Una Merkel, without whom no comedy cast is complete; Charles Richman, who created the role of "Kinloch" in the original play; Greta Meyer and Willard Robertson.
