Valley Audience Receives Artists With Enthusiasm

One of the most pleasing musical events of the past several seasons was presented Friday evening, January 18th, at the Southern Oregon Normal auditorium in Ashland.

David Campbell, well known on the Pacific coast as concert pianist and teacher, and Delbert Frandenburg, now making a name for himself as a tenor, gave a very fine concert.

In David Campbell's playing, devoted almost exclusively to the classical, there was found an intelligent interpretation, sympathetic touch, and a marked sense of rhythmic humor. As an accompanist, he entered into the spirit of song with gaiety and spontaneity, giving perfect balance to his young singer in each type of song.

Although his program was almost entirely from the classics, including his scores by Mozart, Brahms, and Chopin, Mr. Campbell also proved himself to be thoroughly at home in the modern style.

As to Mr. Frandenburg, even his own teacher could not have criticized his stage presence, his easy flow of tone, and splendid diction. His group of classics was a perfect conveyance for the sustained beauty of tone which is always the result of hard work and musical thought for any serious student. Southern Oregon has never heard the German songs more beautifully sung, and the aria from "Manon" compared favorably with the best known singers of the day.

From the moderns Mr. Frandenburg chose to pay tribute to Mr. Dobson, now deceased, of Portland, greatly admired by David Campbell, as friend and composer. As an encore, the singer used "Overture," a song in serious, poetic vein, written by Miss Landin, a member of the faculty of the Southern Oregon Normal.
