

NORTHWEST STARS WILL FACE GIANTS IN PORTLAND TILT

Bernie Hughes and Bill Morgan Will See Action — Game May Be Annual Affair if Support Given

Men who climbed to the top in college football in the Pacific Northwest and graduated to the professional field will be seen in the game to be played between the New York Giants and the All Stars at Multnomah stadium in Portland, February 3.

Among them will be Harry Fields, Oregon State in 1933, tackle; Bill Smith, University of Washington end in 1933; three Capoletti, guard at the University of Oregon in 1933; Bernie Hughes, former Medford lad who became one of the greatest centers the University of Oregon ever developed; Ted Isaacson, ex-University of Washington tackle; Phil Sorboe, ex-Washington State quarterback; the famed Mike Mikulak, University of Oregon, 1933; Red Franklin, former Oregon State and all-star American halfback; and "Butch" Morse, University of Oregon end and all-coast star in 1934.

The All Star team, made up of these outstanding former Northwest college players and a nucleus from the Chicago Cardinals, are out to beat the New York Giants, champion professionals of 1934, according to Aaron Frank, Portland football enthusiast who was among the Portland group instrumental in obtaining the game between the two fast teams.

The Giants have among their key men Kenneth Strong, fullback from New York University, who tied last year with Glen Praeland of Detroit for individual scoring in the "pro" field; "Wee" Willie Smith, quarterback from the University of Idaho who used to attract the stands with his 130 pounds of fighting machine (he weighs 148 today); Max Krause, once of Gonzaga, and Bill Morgan, ex-University of Oregon 220 pound tackle. Morgan is another former Medford player. He was all-coast tackle in 1932.

It is expected by the Portland Rose Festival association officials who arranged the game for next month, that the staging of a meet between two outstanding professional teams will be an annual event in Portland hereafter.

"All depends on the success of this game," commented Mr. Frank. "We think that Multnomah stadium will be sold out before the day of the game. Those who see this game and who have not seen a clash of professional teams of this class before have an entirely new experience coming."

SONS WIN, 35-20, OVER UNION OIL

PORTLAND, Jan. 21—(AP)—Coach Howard Hobson's Teachers continued their sensational basketball winning streak here last night, defeating the strong Union Oil quintet, 35 to 20. The feature of the contest was a scoring duel between giant Howard Greiner, former University of Idaho center, and Ward Howell, six-foot-six center for the Sons.

Howell, guarded by Greiner, won out with 18 points to 14 scored by the former Idaho star, guarded by Dick Jockish. The Teachers led, 16 to 14 at the half, but took a comfortable lead soon after resumption of play.

LA GRANDE NORMAL TRIMS STATE ROOKS

BAKER, Jan. 22—(AP)—A hard pressed team of Mountaineers from the Eastern Oregon Normal school at LaGrande nosed out the Oregon State College Rooks by a score of 38 to 25 in a hotly contested fray in the Baker high school gymnasium Monday night.

SAMS VALLEY TRIMS PROSPECT TO TIE UP LEAGUE LEADERSHIP

Sams Valley went into a tie with Eagle Point for the league leadership by virtue of a 20-6 victory over Prospect Friday night. Play was exceedingly ragged on both sides and it was a more or less freak game as far as scoring went. Neither team scored in the first quarter, but Sams Valley made three field baskets and two foul conversions during the second quarter to lead 8-0 at half time. This lead was continued to 14-6 at the third quarter mark. During the last quarter Prospect made good on four gift shots and completed her scoring with one field basket while the Warriors were annexing six more points.

Sams Valley B team took a 20-10 lacing at the hands of the Prospect second string.

The town teams provided the thrills of the evening when Sams Valley nosed out Prospect 31-20. Bill Duggan looped in the winning baskets with seconds left to play.

This week Sams Valley will journey to Eagle Point for the second league contest.

GIRLS' CLUB WINS, 31-30 FROM G. P.

In a game that kept the spectators guessing most of the time the Medford Girls' Community club basketball team barely nosed out the Grants Pass Community club team 31-30 last night in the girls' gym of the Medford high school.

With frequent changes in lineup Medford at last found the right combination and began an exciting second half rally which saw them still behind 28-22 in the third quarter, hold their opponents to one basket during the last period and win the game 31-30.

Starting lineups were:
Medford (31) — Sowell (22) up, Klein the Tailor Upstairs, Russell (6) F

Rally by Cougars Defeats Oregon

PULLMAN, Jan. 22—(AP)—Washington State's basketball team, tiring of nothing but defeats, unleashed a brilliant second half scoring attack here last night to defeat the University of Oregon 24-21 and win its first conference game of the season.

Ralph Rogers, slender veteran guard of the Cougars, was the star of the game and responsible for his team's victory.

Rogers was high scorer with 12 points, 10 of which he made in the last half. Willie Jones tallied 11 for Oregon.

Leaves for Tacoma — William R. Hughes of Tacoma, Wash., who has been attending to business at Ashland for the last few days, left Medford on the Oregonian last night.

Reports Good Business — R. G. Beach of Portland, representative of Old Gold Cigarette Co. left for his headquarters last night by train, having been conferring with N. E. Morris, local representative, for the last two days in Medford, where he reports business has been most favorable. Mr. Beach is not related to R. G. Beach of Medford, assistant postmaster.

SPECIAL

ONLY TEN YEARS OLD yet she'll soon be wearing glasses for THE REST OF HER LIFE

Eyeglasses are a wonderful aid to vision, but they are for defective vision; and defective vision is a serious handicap that is seldom overcome. You can postpone the time when it will be necessary for YOUR children to wear them if you will give as much care and thought to their eyes as you would to any other phase of their health and well being. Says an editorial in safety engineering: "Poor lighting in the home, and lack of supervision of the manner in which children misuse their eyes in the home . . . are largely responsible for the fact that one out of three pupils leaving our elementary schools have defects of vision in varying degrees." If you have children in your home watch their eyes. They seldom realize the damage they are doing to their eyes by straining them. YOURS is the responsibility. Poor vision is usually caused by straining the eyes when reading and studying; and most eyestrain is caused by bad lighting. This can easily be remedied.
