

Martin Incensed by Lack of Cooperation From Commissioners

because of lack of revenue, but because of waste and extravagance," said Governor Martin.

"While the poor are crying out for relief and our schools begging for help, we witness the spectacle of many boards and commissions collecting and squandering thousands of needed dollars in support of greedy and incompetent politicians."

The aim of House Bill No. 1 is to correct some of the abuses, yet we find the beneficiaries of the existing indefensible system flooding the legislature with protests against its passage. The fees paid to the fish and game commissions are not paid by a coterie of cushion chair sportsmen, members of some small league that assumes to speak for the hunters and fishermen of this state; they are paid by thousands of sportsmen who are not interested in politics, but in the protection and preservation of our wild life.

Politicians hit "Last night we had the spectacle of politicians appearing before one of our committees for the purpose of defeating house bill No. 1, politicians who have been milking the fund during the past four years. These gentlemen defended their action but offered not one word in justification of their conduct."

"The fish and game funds must, and will, go to the propagation of fish and game, and not to the politicians. The day of politicians, waste and extravagance is past. You and I are pledged to correct all such abuses. I propose to keep that pledge."

"I have no desire to divert the funds of any board or commission. I am only to conserve them for intended use. I insist, however, that the free and uncontrolled spending of such funds must cease; that such expenditures should be controlled by a higher authority; that the requirements of all such boards and commissions should be disclosed in advance and properly budgeted. In no other way can waste and extravagance be prevented. I hope to promote economy through orderly methods and, in the name of the suffering taxpayers, appeal to you for co-operation. May I have it?"

Mum on Shakeup No direct comment was obtainable from the governor's office regarding his reported intention to immediately ask for the resignations of the members of the commission who have been opposing his program and permitting employees of the commission to do the same at the expense of the game fund.

Out of the dim, dark past legislative history rises the statute under which the governor is reported to be ready to proceed with his house-cleaning—an enactment of 1913 by which the governor is authorized to remove members of boards, commissions and the like over which he holds the appointing power, without regard to tenure, with or without cause.

Members of the present commission who would be affected by the ouster are: M. P. Corrigan, chairman, McMinnville; Dr. J. C. Vandeventer, Bend; Dr. Irving E. Vining, Ashland; Carl D. Silven of Baker; and L. E. Hibbard, Burns.

Might Reinstatement One Lobby gossip has it that at least one member of the commission might be reinstated in a reorganization.

Conforming with the assertion in his message that he "has no desire to divert the funds of any board or commission" and only aims "to conserve them for intended use," the redraft of house bill No. 1, it is learned, will earmark all funds affected by such use as they are intended but will require that they be deposited in the general fund and be appropriated back for specific expenditure under budgetary control.

How soon the redrafted bill will be ready has not been indicated, but work upon it has already begun.

BOYS PLEAD GUILTY IN CHECK FORGERY

Pleading guilty before Circuit Judge Norton this morning were Stanley Mervin Friend, 18, and Lewis Andrew Pool, 21, who were arrested yesterday by city police, on a charge of forging checks in this city. The checks were passed upon the Gateway and J. C. Penney stores, and an attempt to pass a third upon the Montgomery Ward store yesterday morning brought about the arrest.

Friend was writing the checks, and Pool was endorsing and cashing them, according to city police. The two are step-brothers, and give their home as Medford.

Also pleading guilty was James Hudson, transient, who admitted having stolen a suitcase from the parked car of David Canfield, superintendent of Crater Lake national park. The case was filled with skiing equipment and clothing, which Hudson first claimed he left in a box-car, and later decided he had left in a cornfield. Officers searched the cornfield yesterday, but failed to discover the stolen property. Hudson was arrested in Ashland.

All three will be sentenced later, after a thorough investigation of their past records has been made, the district attorney's office stated today.

COUNTY OFFICIALS ROTARIANS GUESTS AT NOON LUNCHEON

Officials of Jackson county were guests of the Medford Rotary club today, at the regular meeting of that organization, in the basement banquet hall of the Hotel Medford. County Judge Earl Day acted as toastmaster, introducing public officials who spoke briefly of the work of their departments.

John Billings and Otto Caster, county commissioners, pledged their cooperation to the interests of efficiency and economy in the conducting of affairs for Jackson county. The harmony now existing between the county court and other officials of this county, and the efficiency of the present county government, were highly commended by Judge Norton, who spoke briefly of his close contact with officials and personal observation of their work.

District Attorney George Codding took the opportunity to urge the members of the Rotary club to interest themselves in criminal syndical legislation, so that anti-American activities of individuals and groups might be curbed. Justice of the Peace Bill Coleman made a few well-directed remarks.

Harmony in the present county government, was stressed in a short talk by George Carter, county clerk, and Treasurer A. C. Walker informed the Rotarians and guests that this county is in good financial condition compared with other counties in Oregon. A tribute to the cooperation among various county officials by Judge Day and County Commissioner Billings and Caster, was voted by County School Superintendent Bowman.

In the course of his brief talk, Dr. Drummond, county physician, urged the public support of the President's Birthday Ball, and the Craterian mid-night show, to be held in Medford Wednesday, as 70 percent of the proceeds will be returned to this county for the furtherment of crippled children work here.

Paul Bryning, county engineer, called attention to a six-year oiling program for county roads, which will not only result in better highways, but reduce present road maintenance expense. The final remarks were made by Robert Fowler, county agent.

In his concluding statements, County Judge Day called attention to the financial condition of this county, and said that the splendid cooperation of every county official has resulted in substantial economies, effected during the past year. The county court assumes the role of "co-ordinator" for county departments, he said, and efficient economical administration is impossible without cooperation of all.

The administration of Jackson county costs considerably less than most counties in this state, a tribute to the administration of County Judge Day, Commissioners Billings and Caster, and all county department heads.

Senator Allan Byron's bill which would make it mandatory for the county coroner to place a guard over the body of a person who had met death at the hands of himself or another, until receiving a written release from the district attorney, also received unanimous support.

Three house bills were killed by indefinite postponement, one which would repeal the provision that requires male applicants for marriage licenses to undergo physical examination; providing for the collection of delinquent taxes of any city or town by the tax collector of any county and the third relating to personal income taxation and providing that the taxpayer shall receive an additional exemption for any amount incurred for hospital or medical attention.

BRUNO'S LETTERS TO FISCH FAMILY MADE EVIDENCE

examining question about an intended trip to Germany after payment of the $50,000 Lindbergh ransom was:

Phrase in Notes. "Oh, that is planned for over a year already."

Attorney General David T. Wilentz seized a sheet of kidnap notes and read from two of them these phrases:

"This kidnaping was planned for a year already."

And: "This kidnaping was prepared for a year already."

Hauptmann was still undergoing cross-examination as luncheon recess halted his trial for kidnaping and murdering Baby Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

The "year already" phrases were the highlight of a morning of cross-examination about his personal habits and financial transactions during the period between payment of the Lindbergh ransom April 2, 1932, and his arrest on September 19, 1934.

Denies Bills in Phonograph. Wilentz brought in the name of Fritz Hahn, restaurant man, and Hauptmann denied queries designed to make him admit that Hahn had seen large packages of money concealed in Hauptmann's phonograph. He also denied ever telling Mrs. Hahn that he was giving Mrs. Hauptmann $1000 for a trip to Germany.

He denied the prosecutor's charge that he had signaled Mrs. Hauptmann in the courtroom several days ago so that she should "you are trying" to a state witness.

He admitted spending $2 to $3 of the Lindbergh ransom bills which he said leader Fisch had left him for living expenses, and said that he had intended to send the balance, less $2000 Fisch owed him, to Fisch's relatives.

Took Florida Trip. He admitted that after the time of the ransom, which he denied collecting, he took a trip to Florida, his wife quit her job and took a trip to Germany, and he purchased several expensive articles, such as a canoe, a radio and a pair of field glasses.

Hauptmann appeared at a loss for words when Wilentz brought up the similarity of his "year already" phrase with the ransom note phrases. "How can I say it otherwise?" asked Hauptmann.

"Well, you can say 'planned for more than a year,' 'planned already for a year,' 'planned a year ago.'"

"How would you say," Hauptmann retorted.

Edward J. Reilly, chief defense counsel, leaped to his feet and charged that Wilentz was trying to leave an unjust inference with the jury.

Wilentz started his questioning with a disarming manner. Hauptmann gripped his hands together, and gave his answers in a monofone.

Prosecutor Speeds Up. The questions were shot out with increasing speed—in much the manner of yesterday when the prosecutor wore Hauptmann down, excited him and roused him to open anger with sly queries leading to a climactic shout of "Lie! Lie!" which drew from Hauptmann a return of "Stop that!" and "you lied, too!"

The state indicated it had an important rebuttal witness to say that Hauptmann was mysterious and evasive about money in his home.

The man accused of kidnaping and murdering Baby Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., was made to answer numerous prying questions about his home and his habits, and especially about a phonograph in which Attorney General David T. Wilentz hinted money was kept.

Claim Money Seen. "Isn't it a fact that during some of those months, particularly after April 2, 1932, that you opened that Victoria, and when you opened it in the presence of Fritz Hahn, the restaurant man I spoke to you about yesterday, that there were in that Victoria right on top two envelopes about eleven inches long, maybe 14 inches long, a few inches thick, of money, two packages, two envelopes?" Wilentz asked. "Is it not a fact?"

HANDWRITING EXPERT TESTIFIES

Elbridge Stein (above), handwriting expert of the New York city police department, testified in the trial at Flemington, N. J., that he was "forced to conclude quite positively" that ransom notes in the Lindbergh kidnaping were penned by Bruno Richard Hauptmann. Stein is shown with samples of the handwriting. (Associated Press Photo)

Hauptmann laughed aloud. "No, absolutely not," he said. "There was confusion and laughter in the courtroom after Wilentz asked: 'Didn't he say to you, 'my, this is a swell radio. It must have cost a lot of money?'"

"I got the impression," Hauptmann replied, "you are making up a big story here."

The prisoner said he couldn't remember Hahn being in his house.

YOU'RE HAPPY WHEN YOU'RE FIT

Think back over the last month. The days you enjoyed most were the days you felt in great shape. Increase these sunny days by keeping fit.

Avoid common constipation due to insufficient "bulk" in meals. It may cause headaches, loss of appetite and energy. It dulls your enthusiasm, takes the fun out of living.

Kellogg's All-Brán furnishes you with "bulk" in convenient form. All-Brán also provides vitamin B and iron. This gentle natural food is much better than patent medicines. Unlike cathartics, it remains effective with continued use.

Two tablespoonfuls daily are usually sufficient. Severe cases, with each meal. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

At all grocers in the red-and-green package. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

ROOSEVELTS WILL ATTEND BIRTHDAY DANCE TOMORROW

younger presidents than in the Republic's early days. The average age of the first ten presidents was 38 and of the last ten only 51.

After the last of the 21 candles has been blown out tomorrow night, Mrs. Roosevelt and other members of the family plan to attend the Washington edition of the birthday ball celebration, at the Shoreham hotel.

The quarter century of public life which started when the young Roosevelt surprised himself by winning a state senate seat in a normally Republican district was marked by one tragic interlude. That was the infantile paralysis attack in 1921.

It followed trying days as assistant secretary of the navy during the World war and the subsequent, arduous campaign as Democratic vice-presidential nominee in 1920.

But by 1924, Roosevelt was back in the thick of a Democratic national convention, nominating Alfred E. Smith for the presidency and helping lead the fight through 104 ballots. Again in 1928 he was on hand at the Houston convention to nominate Smith, who in turn insisted that Roosevelt accept the New York gubernatorial nomination. He was called into that contest from his Warm Springs, Georgia, retreat and he won. History is recording the rest.

The proceeds of the birthday balls to be held tomorrow night will go chiefly toward infantile paralysis work in the local communities.
