

JEFFERSON COUNTY TAX RELIEF GIVEN SENATE APPROVAL

The house late yesterday went down the line in support of Governor Martin when it passed two of his major proposals—the general fund bill and the county unit system vote for public schools.

House For Budget Control
The lower house of the assembly, after lengthy debates, gave approval of the much disputed measure which would place all game fees and funds of other boards and commissions in the general fund of the state and requiring legislative appropriations for the operations. Only eight votes of the 60 were cast against the bill.

Immediately following with 15 negative votes the house also passed the measure calling for elections in each county on the county unit system of education. Both had been proposed by the governor and followed by special messages to the legislature. Both now go to the senate.

Train Bill Appears
The so-called 70-car train bill appeared in the house today bearing the name of Representative Dickson, Multnomah, and others. It limits the length of freight trains to 70 cars exclusive of cabooses, and passenger trains to 14 coaches.

Other bills introduced prohibit the sale of alcohol, venereal, barbitals and other drugs except upon prescription of a physician; prohibiting the mutilation of any game animal to disguise the sex in field or forest or while having possession of a gun; prohibiting stock from running at large in certain sections of Marion county; permitting the inclusion from any district improvement company and the inclusion of other lands upon proper showing of members owning land in the district; providing that owners of 10 per cent of stock of any corporation may demand an audit of the books, but only one audit in a year, and making it unlawful to fish on the North Umpqua above Rock creek in any manner other than fly fishing.

SALEM, Feb. 1.—(AP)—The senate of the legislature today set a new session record for bills introduced at one meeting, with 19 new measures being placed on the desk.

Nine bills were introduced by the joint house and senate committees on banking, at the request of state superintendent of banks, A. A. Schramm, all relating to the banking laws of the state. Their purpose was listed by Schramm as follows:

To regulate banks and trust companies whose deposits were insured, and foreign banks doing business in Oregon, to permit such banks to eliminate commercial and savings departments and change per centum which banks may loan on first mortgages from 50 per cent of the actual cash market value to 60 per cent.

To repeal one section of the banking laws because the attorney general had advised the banking superintendent that he had no authority to obtain reports from all banks doing a branch banking business.

Providing that the superintendent may temporarily take charge of any bank or trust company ordered to operate on a restricted basis.

To provide a method for the selection and appointment of a successor trustee upon liquidation of a bank or trust company.

To provide a method for determining, establishing and adjudicating claims against securities deposited with the superintendent by banks doing a trust business, upon discontinuance of such trusts.

To raise per centum from 50 to 60 per cent for first mortgages on improved real estate, and permitting trust funds to be invested in real estate obligations which were fully backed by the United States.

Providing procedure for garnishment of funds on deposit in branch banks.

Making uniform the law of transfer of shares of stock in Oregon corporations.

Making uniform the law relating to trust receipts and pledges of personal property unaccompanied by possession in the pledge.

A bill introduced by Senator Allan Rymon would appropriate $100,000 for the establishment of a detention farm for first criminal offenders, and to which persons sentenced to jails or penitentiary might be sent. The measure would authorize the board of control to purchase or acquire approximately 500 acres of land on which to build the detention farm.

Other bills introduced would provide new set of rules for installment payment of taxes; amending relief laws; provide for division of interest from irrevocable school funds on July 1 instead of August 1; three bills designed to aid irrigation and drainage districts, and authorizing counties to issue funding bonds, providing

CHURCH ORGANIST HELD ON THEFT

SEATTLE, Feb. 1.—(UP)—Edward Roberts, elderly organist at the Seattle Trinity Episcopal church, was arrested last night at request of Boston police on a charge of theft.

It was alleged Roberts stole $5000 from a customer of a brokerage firm with which he formerly was connected.

Roberts expressed surprise at the charge and said he would return to Boston voluntarily. Although Massachusetts authorities asked he be held on $50,000 bond, Justice Hear released Roberts on a bond of $5000.

SNOW MELTING FAST ON MOUNTAIN LEVELS UNDER WARMING SUN

With a gradual thaw continuing to reduce steadily the snow depth on mountains of southern Oregon, figures available today showed that areas recently covered by four and five-foot drifts are now scarcely covered with enough snow for good skiing.

On the Siskiyou mountains the depth is only 10 inches, as compared to 56 inches reached during the height of the recent storm. Snow on Sexton mountain was reported considerably under that level, while on the Greenprints the flakes also lie no deeper than a foot.

The forest service reported today that two feet, eight inches, is the present depth at Union Creek. A hard freeze in that area last night formed a crust over this snow that makes skiing in the Union Creek district fast and perhaps the best available at present. Snow at Crater Lake has also been melting, having reached a depth of 115 inches.

Despite the surprising melt, there has been no alarming run-off of snow water in the valley streams, and Bear creek at Medford has shown no perceptible increase.

Roads leading over the mountains from Medford are now practically dry.

Babies Not Abandoned.
BALTIMORE — (UP)—Not one mother abandoned her baby on a Baltimore doorstep in 1934. T. James Hunter, chief social investigator of the bureau of city charities, has reported. It marked the first time in 25 years with the bureau that Hunter has had no foundlings reported to him.

The Pony Express, which made dramatic history in furnishing quick communication with the far west during pioneer days, was in operation only 16 months.

DEFENSE WITNESS SAYS BABY WITH FISCH AND WOMAN

important first ransom note, known as the nursery note, "was written by a left-handed man trying to disguise his handwriting."

He charged, moreover, the chart prepared by Albert S. Osborn, chief handwriting expert for the state, which was used by Osborn and other experts to illustrate basis for Hauptmann's handwriting, ignored all but three words in the first note.

Up to the noon recess, when he was still undergoing direct examination, Trendley took up the nursery note line by line and word by word to show why he believed Hauptmann was not the writer.

Note Writer Unknown
Relly declared: "We never contended Fisch wrote the notes or that he perpetrated the crime. I believe that he got the ransom money. We don't know who wrote the ransom notes."

The argument concerned a Christmas card handed to Trendley with a query as to any possible similarities between the hand writing on it and the handwriting in the 14 ransom notes which followed the kidnaping and slaying of Baby Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., of which Hauptmann is accused. The state objected. The card was not immediately identified, though the discussion that followed indicated it was from Fisch.

Relly argued:
"We are not here to prove who wrote the ransom notes, but to prove Hauptmann didn't write them."

Handwriting Disputed
Trendley testified that the first ransom note, known as the nursery note, was written in disguised hand, and said it was his opinion the left hand may have been used sometimes. Trendley was still on the stand when court adjourned for the noon recess.

There was a slight delay in the beginning of Trendley's testimony because the state wanted to get into the record a hospital record regarding the testimony of Louis Kiss, one of Hauptmann's alibi witnesses.

Edward J. Relly, chief defense attorney, asked Trendley: "As a result of your study and examination of the ransom notes and the Hauptmann request writings, are you in a position to render an opinion as to whether or not Hauptmann, this defendant, wrote the ransom notes?"

Not Bruno's Writing
"In my opinion," said Trendley, "he did not."

The ransom notes represented a cardinal point in the state's case against Hauptmann. The first note was left on the window sill of the Lindbergh nursery the night the baby was stolen, March 1, 1932. The state contends that the man who wrote the first note also climbed a ladder at the window of the nursery, stole the baby and dashed it to death as the ladder broke on the way down.

Eight experts qualified by the state gave their positive opinion that Hauptmann wrote that note as well as the 13 others which were received by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh thru diverse means.

One of the state experts, Albert S. Osborn, declared the evidence that Hauptmann wrote the notes was "irrefragable, unanswerable and overwhelming."

Leave it to Connie Mack to come up with some revolutionary idea. The veteran manager of the Philadelphia Athletics insists that his plans for 1935 place Jimmy Foxx behind the bat.

Mack followed that announcement with the release of Charley Berry, who caught 99 games in 1934 before he fractured his leg in Cleveland. That left only Frank Hayes, a powerful youngster who came directly to the Athletics from high school.

So it looks as though Mack is really serious about his plans for Foxx. Jimmy joined the Athletics as a catcher in 1925. He was sent to Providence that year, but returned to Philadelphia before the season ended. He was strictly a catcher in 1926 and 1927.

Since that time he has done no regular catching, playing almost exclusively at first base. Occasional injuries to the regular third baseman forced him to fill in at the hot corner now and then.

Cuts Batting Availability.
For the last six years he has neglected the catching phase of his baseball education. Now he is going to try to pick up the loose ends and begin again.

Foxx is without a doubt one of the most versatile players in baseball, so it is possible that he can swing it.

"If Connie is willing to try the experiment, I certainly am," Foxx declared on his return from touring the Orient with the major leaguers.

There is at least one drawback to the experiment. Foxx's outstanding value to his team is his slugging. As a catcher he will be doing well, indeed, if he is able to play 100 games a season. How are the Athletics going to benefit by having their best slugger on the bench one-third of the season?

There were only eight catchers in the major leagues last season who played in 100 or more games. They were equally divided, four in each league. Rick Ferrell, of the Boston Red Sox, with 128 to his credit, topped the American leaguers.

The absence of Foxx's big bat at various times is certain to weaken the club. Some surmise that Connie Mack will overcome this loss by sending Jimmy to first base at such times as he takes a rest from catching.

Putting Big Shot on the Spot
It appears sort of reckless to take such great chances with the team's big slugger in a position where the hazard of injuries is ever present.

Particularly is it going to be dangerous in Foxx's case, where lack of practice behind the bat for so long a period may have blunted his catching skill. Rusty as Foxx is almost certain to be, it looks as though Mack was inviting an injury which might cost the Athletics their chances in the pennant race.

Foxx is still regarded by many as a callow youth, yet 1935 will mark the 11th season he has spent in the A's uniform. A veteran major leaguer and a 10-year man, and all while he is still well under the 30-year mark. He passed his 27th birthday last October. He is truly one of the wonders of the diamond.
