

HORSES BUNCHED IN THRILLING MOMENT OF POLO

THIS IS ENOUGH TO MAKE ANYONE SHIVER

If you don't like cold weather, imagine what it must be like on a trawler plying the north Atlantic. The Gemma, her superstructure coated with ice after heavy seas, gave waterfront residents a glimpse of winter at its worst when she limed into Boston's harbor. (Associated Press Photo)

WIFE ON JURY—SO HE SWEEPS!

Fred Snyder's wife, Mrs. Vera Snyder, is on the Hauptmann trial jury at Flemington, N. J., so Snyder, a blacksmith, is more or less forced to do his own housework. He's shown sweeping the porch of his home, while his son, John, plays with a pet dog. (Associated Press Photo)

95 YEARS OLD, BECOMES FATHER

SHE'S NOT WHO YOU THINK

Wait, now! Don't make the same mistake people attending the convention of the Modern Language association in Philadelphia—and many other folk—did, and do. This lady is not Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt. She is Mrs. Merle Protzman, instructor in French at George Washington university in the capital. She says she finds it rather enjoyable, being frequently mistaken for the much-traveled First Lady. SNOW? NO, INFRA-RED PHOTOGRAPHY

This striking photograph of one of the buildings of the California-Pacific international exposition which will open in San Diego late in May was made on an infra-red plate, giving the appearance of snow. (Associated Press Photo)

"PUCK" BREAKS LEG PLAYING IN SNOW

THIS DOG JUST WILL NOT GROW UP

Mickey doesn't know it, but at the age of three months he is normal in every respect except size. He weighs 11 ounces and fits comfortably in this frying pan. Mickey is owned by Mrs. Yorke Young of Seattle, Wash. (Associated Press Photo)

She Flies The Mail

Miss Helen Richey, first woman to hold a regular job as co-pilot for a commercial airline carrying mail and passengers, is shown as she prepared to take off from Washington, D. C. (Associated Press Photo)

Named Leader

Representative William B. Bankhead of Alabama was selected for Democratic floor leader as representatives and senators assembled for the 1935 session of congress. (Associated Press Photo)

SENT TO WARM SPRINGS

Walter Fox, 8, infantile paralysis victim, and his mother, Mrs. Thomas Fox, are shown beside the ambulance-truck in which they made the four-day journey from their Philadelphia home to Warm Springs, Ga., where the boy is to take a six-month treatment as the result of Mrs. F. D. Roosevelt's contributing her $1,000 Gimbel award for the boy's care. (Associated Press Photo)

CONVICTS CAPTURED IN DASH FROM SAN QUENTIN

Three of the four prisoners who escaped from San Quentin, Cal., prison with six persons as hostages face additional years in the penitentiary while the fourth, Rudolph Straight, was fatally shot as they were recaptured a few hours after the delivery. The captured convicts were (left to right) Fred Landers, Joe Kristy and Alexander Mackay. (Associated Press Photo)

Maj. Charles A. Shepard (above), army surgeon, expects to be acquitted of a charge of slaying a former wife by poison. He went on trial in Topeka, Kas. His first trial resulted in conviction and sentence to life imprisonment which was later declared void by the U. S. Supreme Court. (Associated Press Photo)
