

EAGLE PRESIDENT URGES LODGEMEN TO COMBAT REDS

Charging over 500 members of the Fraternal Order of Eagles and the Auxiliary with the lack of competing communistic propaganda that seeks to undermine the stability of the United States government, George F. Douglas, Philadelphia, Pa., national president of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, spoke Saturday night before an overflow audience in the Armory. Members of the fraternity in Grants Pass, Klamath Falls, Roseburg, Lakeview, Yreka, Dunsmuir and Medford came for the meeting, one of the largest ever held by the localerie.

Mr. Douglas' visit was part of the tour he is making of the fraternity's lodges, which are located in more than 1100 cities in the United States, Canada, Alaska, and the Philippines. Mr. Douglas was a lieutenant in the field artillery during the World war and when he referred to the Eagles' war record he spoke with fiery eloquence.

"The Eagles had 47,000 men in service," he said, "and the members at home backed them with equally patriotic effort. The F. O. E. was the first fraternity to create a fund for paying a gratuity to the dependents of men who died in service. That fund was started less than three weeks after the first United States troops landed in France. The Eagles not in service contributed 10 cents a month until the fund amounted to $1,500,000. Out of that has been paid $1,000 to the dependents of every member in good standing in 1917-18, who died or was killed during the war or who has died since as a result of his service."

The fraternity also paid the dues of members serving Uncle Sam, Mr. Douglas said, so that their dependents at home would continue to be entitled to the benefits paid by the order. The speaker pointed out that since the founding of the fraternity in 1898, it has paid out a total of $67,900,000 in sick, medical, and death benefits.

"Who has a better right than the Eagles to defend the country against the destructive forces that are now attacking from within?" the speaker went on. "We have proved our patriotism time and time again."

Mr. Douglas and Mrs. Douglas were met in Grants Pass by Mayor George Porter, Dr. A. F. W. Kresse, State President D. D. Hall, and president of Crater Lake Aerie, A. H. Banwell and brought to Medford in time for Mrs. Douglas to attend a tea given by the auxiliary in the St. Marks Guild hall.

Before the dinner given for Eagles at the Elks club, Mr. Douglas was taken to Jacksonville and for a tour around the valley.

At the meeting held in the armory, 168 new members were initiated, which Mr. Douglas stated was the largest class that had been presented to him on his tour so far.

The drill team competition resulted in Medford winning first place and Ashland second place. Mr. Douglas presented the winning team with a silver loving cup and bars for each member, while the Ashland team members each obtained second place bars.

Just prior to his address, A. H. Banwell presented Mr. and Mrs. Douglas with a picture of Crater Lake.

It was announced that Conrad H. Mann, the organizer of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, would appear in Roseburg, February 24, and every lodge present has promised a delegation for the occasion.

LINCOLN DAY BANQUET AT ASHLAND TUESDAY UP TO FINE STANDARD

The Lincoln Day banquets have been outstanding events in southern Oregon for 20 years, and the banquet in the Lithia hotel in Ashland, tomorrow, Tuesday, evening, at 6 o'clock, promises to be a very interesting one.

J. W. McSturiff of Marshfield will make the Lincoln address and the program of music and talks to follow will be short and snappy.

Everybody is invited, and especially the ladies and young Republicans, both of whom will be represented on the program.

Tickets are $1 for the banquet, and programs can be secured that evening at the Lithia hotel. It is hoped there will be a large attendance from Medford and all parts of the country, and a pleasant evening with a good feed is promised to all.

SALEM PAIR BACK IN COUNTY JAIL

SALEM, Feb. 11.—(Sp.)—Carl McKenney, 22 and Pat Cavan, 34, were both back in the county jail here today, after their sensational break to freedom Saturday night.

McKenney was picked up by city officers within an hour after the break, while Cavan was found early Sunday morning, near the gas plant, by a cruising police car officer.

Aided by a trusty, Mel Strand, the two obtained keys to the jail and gained their short freedom after slugging Mark Baker, night janitor, on their way out.

McKenney was serving a six-months sentence, while Cavan was to have been released this month. It had not been determined this morning what, if any, charges would be made against the pair.

M'LEOD GRANGE MAY BE FORMED

McLEOD, Feb. 11.—(Sp.)—A meeting was held at McLeod dining room Friday evening for the purpose of sounding out sentiment regarding organizing a Grange to serve Trail, McLeod and Prospect communities.

Mr. Brown, Grange organizer, conducted the meeting, which was attended by about 30.

Fourteen signatures were secured from prospective members. Another meeting is planned for Tuesday evening, February 19 at which time organization will be completed, provided membership of 20 or more can be secured.

Harry Merriman, who is active in the organizing campaign, is confident sufficient memberships for a charter can be secured by the time set for the next meeting.

BRUNO'S COUNSEL SUMS UP KIDNAP AS AN INSIDE JOB

Anthony M. Hauck, Hunterdon county prosecutor, spoke for the state. He told the jurors that "despite the position and the prestige and the wealth of the distinguished family who find themselves in the position here of being believed, the state must prove its case according to the law and not guess work, not inference, not maybe and not speeches."

State's Case Hit
Reilly attacked the pattern of the state's case.

"This is the crime of the century and it is the worst crime and the lowest type of crime ever committed to my knowledge," the defense attorney said, "but it is not the defendant who is guilty of it."

He mildly ridiculed the state's technical evidence.

"This case has come down now," he said, "in my opinion to this, common, ordinary horse sense, and against that we are confronted with a lot of technicians and experts who at so much a day give us their opinion of things."

Reilly told the jury he respected Colonel Lindbergh, that he marched in the parade of welcome when the colonel returned from his fame-making flight to Paris, but he added:

"Bruno Richard Hauptmann was never on those grounds." He referred to the Lindbergh estate at Hopewell, N. J., from which the baby was stolen.

Master Mind and Fool
"Now," Reilly said, "they would have you in one breath believe that this man Hauptmann was a master mind, that he planned this himself, and the next minute they would have you believe that he was the worst fool in the world, that he was dumb, that he didn't know anything; he would wear gloves making a ladder so his fingerprints wouldn't be left behind; and he would sit an hour and a half talking to Condon with his face exposed. In one the careful master mind, in the other the perfect fool. Now you cannot carry water on both shoulders."

Later, he said:

"As we go through it you will see that this case has been pieced together as you would write a scenario, but it is not founded on honest fact."

"The first thing you have got to decide when you go into your jury room is this, how in God's name did Hauptmann know anything about the Lindbergh home."

Ignores Handwriting
"I don't care about handwriting. I don't care anything about wood, nor do I care about the ransom money for which this man stands indicted in the Bronx and for which he has to stand trial there. Nor am I going to allow you to pull the chestnuts out of the fire for the Bronx county and say, 'Well, because he had the money he must be guilty or something, therefore we will send him away for something.'"

"Colonel Lindbergh was stabbed in the back by the disloyalty of those who worked for him and despite the fact that he courageously believed that there was no disloyalty in the servants' quarters, I say now that no one could get into that house unless the information was supplied by those who worked for Colonel Lindbergh."

Opening for the state, surrounded by nearly 400 mute exhibits and heard by the gray-faced, worried defendant, Prosecutor Hauck told the jury:

Says State's Case Proved
"The state of New Jersey contends that they have proven not only beyond a reasonable doubt, but conclusively and overwhelmingly that Bruno Richard Hauptmann is guilty of murder in the first degree, that he is guilty of the murder of the infant, Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr."

He pointed out at once that the state had established the corpus delicti.

He recited the details of the theory which he declared the state proved, that Hauptmann entered the nursery window of the Lindbergh home by means of a ladder, yanked the sleeping baby from its crib, started back down the ladder with it and fell to the ground as the ladder broke. It was then, he contended, the baby suffered a fractured skull which caused his death.

Charges Fall Caused Death
"We have proven to you conclusively," he said, "that that fall caused the baby's death when it received the fractured skull which was of such an extent that it caused instantaneous death."

Later, he said:

"You can infer that that crash that Colonel Lindbergh heard was the very crashing of that very ladder outside of the nursery window."

Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, father of the child, testified he heard a noise which sounded like a falling crate.

"You can infer that the defendant in leaving the premises with the child realizing that the baby was dead, yanked that garment off the baby and at that time that thumbguard was dropped on the premises."

Hauck was referring to the baby's sleeping suit which was sent to Colonel Lindbergh by the kidnaper, and to its thumbguard which had been tied over the garment and which Betty Gow, nurse, said she found a hundred yards from the house a month after the crime.

Death on Premises Proved
"You can equally infer that after that little curly headed baby's garment was yanked from the body and the thumbguard was dropped he (Hauptmann) hurried on to his car, but it was not until he found the first safe and convenient place from the Lindbergh home that he went into the woods and there hurriedly scooped a grave and hurried on to the Bronx. And that is proof that the baby died on the premises because if the baby died elsewhere it couldn't be buried so near the Lindbergh home."

The state had to prove the murder was in Hunterdon county where Hauptmann is on trial. The body was found in Mercer county.

"I will say to you that Bruno Richard Hauptmann who sits in this courtroom did all of these things," To this Hauck added, "we have shown you by the evidence that Bruno Richard Hauptmann planned this crime a long time."

CCC EDUCATIONAL HEADS CONCLUDE TWO-DAY CONFAB

Camp commanders and educational advisers of the Medford district have returned to their camps, following a two-day educational conference held here Friday and Saturday.

Dr. J. B. Griffin, civil educational adviser of the ninth corps area, was here to confer with the officers and educators on camp problems. He said the Medford conference was the first two-day educational meeting ever held in the Civilian Conservation Corps. He characterized the program here as the most progressive in the United States and said that many features of the Medford district educational work are being recommended for camps in every corps area by the educational department at Washington, D. C.

The Medford district is the first in the United States to have a separate schoolhouse in every camp; it is the first to have moving picture projectors in every camp, and has pioneered with schools for mess stewards, cooks and bakers, company clerks and motor transport personnel. A correspondence course for officers, dealing with the administrative problems peculiar to camp life, has been another district feature which has received wide commendation.

Major Clare H. Armstrong, district commander, presided at the conference, which was followed Saturday evening by a dinner and dance at the Medford Hotel. George Griffith, public relations representative of the regional forest office, was among the principal speakers at the meetings. Heads of the park service, forest service and other agencies were present for the conference which was held in the Jackson county courthouse auditorium.

Burelsons Opens Downstairs Sale

All remaining fall and winter apparel at Burelson's ladies' ready-to-wear store has been moved to the downstairs department for the final clearance sale which starts tomorrow, to make room for new spring merchandise.

Exceptionally low prices will be featured so that dresses, coats, sweaters, hostery, hats and other sale articles will be closed out rapidly, according to Mr. Burelson, in keeping with his policy of not carrying the same stock from one year to the next.

Shipments of spring and summer clothing selected by Mr. and Mrs. Burelson in Los Angeles and San Francisco are arriving at their store daily.

Should drive 168 miles "free" this winter, says lineman

FINDS WAY TO CUT COLD STARTING WASTE

Averages 6 cold starts daily. If Super-SHELL saves him only 1/2 cupful gasoline each cold start, during the winter he should save enough gasoline for 168 extra miles of driving

This winter, Super-SHELL can save you up to a cupful of fuel every cold start.

Yet on only 1/2 cup - or even a tablespoonful - you can still save enough to take you many miles you'd otherwise have to pay for!

Super-SHELL saves because it cuts chocking time in half. It's the only gasoline that is "Thermozitized."

WE ASKED LEADERS IN WINTER SPORTS:

"Is this fact important to you?"

"Camels are made from finer, more expensive tobaccos - Turkish and Domestic - than any other popular brand."

(Signed) R. J. REYNOLDS TOBACCO COMPANY
Winston-Salem, North Carolina

HEALTHY NERVES! Says Ray Stevens, North American Bob-Sled Champion: "When the last heat has been run, I light a Camel and enjoy it to the full, knowing that Camels never bother my nerves!"

FLAVOR! Jack Shea, Olympic Speed Skater: "Camels taste so good that with me Camels get the nod every time. When people mention my being a cigarette smoker, I correct them and say, 'I'm a Camel smoker.'"

VALUE! "I'm just an interested winter sports fan," says Edward Kent. "But I'm with Jack Shea and Ray Stevens when it comes to smoking Camels! I get a lift with a Camel when I'm low and need cheering up, or when I'm tired. And the fact that tobaccos of a chosen quality are used in Camels goes far to explain why Camels are so mild and pleasing, and never single my nerves. It means a lot to me that millions more are spent for the tobaccos used in Camels."

MILDNESS! Betty Chase, expert skier, says: "Camels are so mild and appealing! And smoking Camels steadily never tells on my nerves. To me, it's a very important fact that Camels use finer tobaccos."

ENERGY! "Camel's 'energizing effect' is a great thing for the one who is active," says Paul Thompson, of the world-champion Chicago Black Hawks hockey team. "When tired, there's one thing I want - a Camel!"
