FOR many years the Mail Tribune has been opposed to capital punishment. The startling increase in violent crime the past few years, weakened our opposition and the murder of the Lindbergh baby about ended it.

The Hauptmann Verdict

We still feel that, as a general theory for the state to demand s life for a life,-repay illegal, with LEGAL murder-is a questionable deterrent to crime. We know, that public executions are a relie of barbarism,-degrading and brutalizing to the eivilization that sanctions them.

But, we willingly admit that in CERTAIN crime, there seems no other answer.

WHAT can society do, for example, with a man who will steal a baby, kill it, intentionally or accidentally; and then, almost before the little body is cold, deliberately scheme to extort money from the heart-broken parents, on the solemn promise that if the money is paid, the baby will be returned SAFE AND WELL!

Where are there words to adequately describe or classify, such a fiend in human form ? What is there to do on any basis of justice or future security but as soon as the matter of guilt is established, EXTERMINATE such vermint

A^S we see it,-NOTHING. It is a ghastly indictment of the human race, that in this day and age, anything so loathesome, so monstrous, so dead to all considerations of human decency and human feeling, could be produced. BUT as long as they ARE produced, and we know they are produced, then we grant, the ancient doctrine of "an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth," is the only possible recourse.

 $\mathbf{W}^{ ext{E}}$ are glad that with the Hauptmann verdict of guilty, with no recommendation for mercy, Justice Trenchard wasted no time in sentencing the defendant and fixing the date of his execution, only a few weeks hence.

The sooner the final curtain can be rung down, on the entire ghastly mess, the better for all concerned,

In no murder trial in our recollection has the state had a stronger case, or the defense a weaker one.

While some of the evidence was circumstantial, the fact that Hauptmann received and spent the ransom money, wrote the notes that secured the money, and even from his friends, could ecure no corroboration of his alibi, were NOT circumstantial.

From first to last the efforts of the defense were merely efforts to prejudice, confuse, and raise doubts in the minds of the jury, on the chance there might be one member weak minded enough to fall for such transparent chicanery.

Fortunately for the cause of justice, and the reputation of the jury system, there was none. The verdict was unanimous. And while it required eleven hours to reach a decision, consider ing the importance of the case and the amount of detail involved. such a period for deliberation was not surprising.

UNFORTUNATELY, as long as money is available-and from some unknown source ample funds for Hauptmann's de fense are apparently available,-the fight will go on to delay the wheels of justice, and if possible save the defendant from the fate he deserves.

There will be demands for a new trial, appeals to this court and, that,-all the senseless, inexcusable rigmarole, that has made criminal jurisprudence in this country, such a shame and disgrace

With public opinion what it is, however, and with the guilt of the defendant so clearly established, a way may be found to reduce this obstruction of justice, to a minimum. We certainly iope so

But if it doesn't, perhaps these same circumstances, will bring the defects of criminal procedure so forcibly to the minds of the American people, that this "greatest crime of the century", may at last bring drastic reforms, so sorely needed, just as the verdict will certainly serve notice on the underworld, that the crime of baby kidnaping is something the people of this country will not tolerate, and the wages of such sin is DEATH !
