

FEDERAL AGENTS THROUGH PROBING LINDBERGH CASE

counsel, estimated the cost of carrying the fight through higher courts at $25,000.

In a death conviction, however, the defense is permitted to ask the court to have the county pay legal costs, including preparation of the record. Egbert Rosecrans, assistant defense counsel, said such an order probably would be sought next week. The financing of other appeal expenses was what worried the defense attorneys. Reilly estimated the amount needed at $8,300 and C. Fisher fixed it at $11,000.

Hauptmann, pale and restless, paced his brightly lighted cell while he talked. The trial had left him worn out, he said. But he felt "all right."

"Absolutely, I am innocent," he said. "Otherwise I would have said so in the beginning."
"If they were to come to me in my cell now and say, 'you would go free if you would tell the whole truth,' I would say, 'I told you everything I know on the witness stand.'"

"The state," he complained, "tried to show only the bad things about me. . . . The state wants to take my life for nothing."

"The most ridiculous thing in the whole trial," he declared, "was the board in the attic. Why should I go up in the attic for a board when I had a whole pile of lumber in my garage?"

State witnesses testified that an upright in the kidnap's home-made ladder once had been part of the flooring in Hauptmann's attic.

Lindy's Influence Felt
Hauptmann was asked whether he thought the presence of Colonel Lindbergh had any influence on the jury.

"Naturally," he replied.
"The New York News in its article said the second man's part in the crime 'was not mentioned at the Hauptmann trial because of the anxiety of the prosecution that nothing should be allowed to becloud the issue of the ex-German machine gunner's guilt.'"

"But," it continued, "the fact that Hauptmann had an accomplice has long been known to the department of justice, the New York police and District Attorney Foley of the Bronx."

"The handkerchief was recovered from the street . . . and chemical analysis of the linen revealed that the man who had carried it was a sufferer from sinus infection. . . ."

"Hauptmann denied that either he or anyone he knew was so afflicted."

$4 Only Possession
Hauptmann said two $2 bills were all the money he had had since his arrest. They came from an unidentified contributor.

The prisoner said he turned them over to his wife, Anna, "because she needed them."

Lincoln's Birthday High Spot in Trade for Week

NEW YORK, Feb. 15.—(AP)—The advancing tendencies in business and trade that have been prevalent since the first of the year continued in increasing volume the past week. Dun & Bradstreet's trade review said today: "Lincoln's birthday was a high spot; the past seven days for the retail trade, and sales in many districts were from 30 to 50 per cent higher than on the same day last year, the survey said."

"The confidence with which retailers view the outlook for spring distribution is accelerating activity in wholesale markets," the review continued, "and while there is a tendency for the recent upswing in some industrial branches to level out, the constant gain in others is lifting the average operating rate higher each week."

Dun & Bradstreet business activity barometer reached the highest level this year during the week at 74.3, it was reported. This is an advance of 17.2 over the similar week of 1934, and is only two points under the 1933 peak of 74.5.

Retail sales for February were estimated to be from 8 to 10 per cent higher than in February, 1934, despite the poor start made at the beginning of this month.

Increased light and power production, car-loadings, bank clearings and the new high made by the weekly food index at 32.76, all reflect the better feeling in trade and industry, the review concluded.

FIRST BUTTERCUP OF YEAR HERALDS SPRING

An unerring sign of approaching spring, what is believed to be the first "butter-cup" flower of the year was found on Lincoln's birthday near the Washington school here. The bright yellow flower, in full bloom, was found by James Kubli, 14, who attends the Washington school. Another unerring sign of spring is the fact that " pussy-willows " are beginning to come out, both on those willow trees in town, and those along the creeks and country lanes. It is a common sight on Sunday afternoon to see motorists with their families returning from a jaunt into the country with a large bundle of the furry catkins.
