Will Rogers in Return Picture

What many believe to be Will Rogers' finest picture, the film version of Irvin S. Cobb's "Judge Priest," comes to Medford for today and Monday for an exclusive return showing at the Rialto theater.

Popular Stars in Craterian Show

Two of the most satisfying screen romances ever filmed—"Daddy Long Legs" and "Paddy, the Next Best Thing"—had Warner Baxter and Janet Gaynor co-starred. Starting today at the Craterian theater, the two favorites are again brought together in the picture of the best seller by Robert Nathan, "One More Spring."

Into this setting drifted, separately, a number of strange types, each original, each reduced by circumstances to near destitution. They include a girl out of work, a ruined auctioneer, a starving violinist, a suicide-courting banker, a white-wing worker, a cop and a lion tamer.

This motley crew, brought together by fate, work out their own destiny and find that their hitherto drab lives have been heightened by their adventures together.

In the supporting cast are Walter King as the roving musician, Jane Darwell as the motherly scrub woman, Grant Mitchell as the humbled banker, Stepin Fetchit as the slow-going lion tamer and Roger Imhof as a workman.

Trusty Returns—Thomas M. Trusty, who has spent the last three years at American Lake, Wash., returned to Medford yesterday morning by train.

Love Tiff in "La Cucaracha"

Steffi Duns, volatile young Hungarian actress who has the principal role in the melody drama in Technicolor, "La Cucaracha," at the Roxy today, upbraids Don Alvarado, as Pancho, for his indifference to her love and her desire to dance with him for the impresario from Mexico City.

In the feature picture, "Hide Out," Robert Montgomery has the role of a happy-go-lucky post-repeal racketeer.
