Singer's Midgets Coming Wednesday On Craterian Bill

That "the best things come in small packages" is an adage whose world wide fame is well known. And, with the closing of the Chicago Century of Progress, the whole world, or at least that tremendous part of it that visited that exposition, gained living proof that the old adage still holds true. That proof is the Singer's Midget Band and World's Fair Midget Revue which comes to the Craterian theater stage for Wednesday only.

Every person who paid his money to enter the fair is reported by executives of the fair to have eventually gone to the Midget City, one of the exposition's greatest attractions, where the Midget Band and Revue were the prime entertainers. That so many and such remarkable talent could be encompassed in the tiny packages of these little stars proved to be one of the most amazing facts concerning these small but brilliant performers.

The extraordinary grace of the women, the poise and bearing of the men, and their skill in all forms of entertainment, made the Midget show the hit of the fair, according to reports of both officials and enthusiastic audiences.

The Midget band is a 14-piece organization with an extensive repertoire that puts it on equal footing with radio and stage bands of similar reputation. Each musician plays a variety of instruments with equal facility.

The Singer's Midget Band and Revue are favorites with showgoers throughout the world. With magnificent sets, and a grand variety of entertainment, the local showgoers are in line for one of the most entertaining and at the same time most novel stage presentations yet to play here.

On the screen will be Baby Jane, the new child star, with Mary Astor and Roger Pryor in "Straight From the Heart."

MUSIC LEADERS

MEET DR. LAUFER HERE TOMORROW A noon luncheon conference at the Hotel Holland, honoring Dr. Calvin W. Laufer, musical editor of the Presbyterian church, is being arranged for Tuesday by members of the local church, to which are invited all ministers, choir-directors and music leaders in all denominations.

There will be a ministers' conference in the afternoon and at 8:00 o'clock that evening there will be a service during which Dr. Laufer will direct mixed choirs of the Presbyterian churches of the valley in singing the hymns of the church. After the singing the doctor will present an address on "Music in Church Worship," to which the public is invited.

Dr. Laufer has been affiliated with church music work since 1913, and as the "minister of music" of the Presbyterian church edits hymnals, arranges musical programs for local churches, addresses church organizations on the place of music in the church and lectures on other church subjects, besides being a prominent author, and composer of many familiar hymns.

HEALTHY AND HUBKA SIGN FOR MATCH THIS WEEKS CARD Popular Joe Hubka, former University of Nebraska athlete, will appear in the main event of next Thursday's grappling card with Jim Healy of San Francisco, a newcomer to Medford. Promoter Mack Lillard announced today.

This bout, the main event of a card in which Lillard hopes to include Louie Bacagalupi, 225 pound Italian, will probably be a change from the rough and ready type of wrestling that has been displayed at the armory during the last several weeks. A session of fast, hard wrestling will be welcomed by many local fans, who remember Hubka as one of the finest performers ever to visit Medford.

Weighing 209, he will be outfitted 15 pounds by the San Franciscoan, but figures that his well-known pair of "iron" legs will offset that disadvantage. Healy is an unknown quantity as far as the local arena is concerned, but is heralded as a clever, chunky matman who is hard to stop.

Lillard said the Masked Marvel who made his mysterious debut in Medford last Thursday night, may be secured for an appearance the following week, but is unavailable for this week's card. He vanished before Lillard could get a good talk with him last Thursday night, and according to the promoter is as hard to negotiate with as an eel in a barrel of molasses.

Bacagalupi, like his name, is another fiery customer who ranks with the toughest men in the northwest, where he has made many appearances during the last several months. Lillard is trying to line him up with an

Will Rogers Film Held Over as Box Office Record Set Box office records went glimmering into the discard yesterday at the Rialto theater where Will Rogers is being shown in Irvin S. Cobb's "Judge Priest." The result is the announcement of the holding over for an extra day, until tomorrow night, of this most human story of the screen's best-liked star.

"Judge Priest," which shows Rogers as the kindly Kentucky justice, made famous in a series of stories by Cobb, is deemed by many as being his best characterization. A notable supporting cast appears with Rogers, including Tom Brown, Anita Louise, Henry B. Walthall, Rochelle Hudson, David Landau and the easy-going, always-comical Stepin Fetchit.

"Charlie Chan in Paris," in which Warner Oland again plays the role of the wily Oriental detective facing a new and apparently unsolvable crime, will play Wednesday and Thursday instead of opening tomorrow as previously announced.
