WITNESSES FOR YOUNG KENNER

Homer Wilcox and his pretty 19-year-old sister, Virginia, of Tulsa were called to Pawnee, Okla., as witnesses for the defense in the Phil Kenner murder trial. They were the children of a wealthy oil man and were expected to figure prominently in the testimony of other witnesses. (Associated Press Photo)

FIVE MORE NAMED MURPHY BRIDGE ON FARM CENSUS DUTY FOR COUNTY

George Finley of Eugene, supervisor of federal farm enumerators for this district, spent today in the city, completing final details for the farm census in this county, and making five more appointments as follows: Fred W. Kelly, Medford; Ralph B. Wilson, Medford; Ernest W. Smith, Butte Falls; and Miss Dorothy Owens, Central Point.

Some changes were made in the Jackson county assignments in order to balance the work of the enumerators. All enumerators for this county have been appointed. Nine farm census dates, are now in the field, and the additional appointments will start at once. The farm census will provide up-to-date data on farm conditions in the nation, for use by the government. The last census was taken in 1930. The present one includes figures on farm population, acreage, amount and kind of farm and farm home equipment, number of head of stock, crops grown, and financial returns.

Supervisor Finley, ten days ago figured in a political tussle in a teapot with Governor Martin, relative to the appointment of a county judge for Linn county. The governor indicted a letter expressing his freedom from a "political dictation of any kind." The matter was calmed speedily, and reported as due to a "misunderstanding."

"I am not saying anything about that," Finley said today.

Communications

Favors Townsend Plan. To the Editor: Never since the time of Christ, has there been a man like Dr. Townsend who is trying to do so much for everyone.

It is his life work to give to every one, regardless of whether they are a tramp or a millionaire, that which is rightfully his.

That shows how unselfish he is, and the faith that he has in humanity. His critics are only hastening the day when what he is justly asking for will come to pass when they make the statement that it is (cannot be done) unless how little faith they have in the patriotic home-loving people of this good old United States of America.

It was such a fantastic dream, as some of them would have us to believe; why don't they get out their little crystal globe and tell us what to do.

If they do know so much and are so patriotic a citizen, and do not do so, they are a traitor to good government, when there is millions without employment and plenty of people on the verge of starvation, in this land of plenty.

Now you people that know so much about what ought to be done, come out in the open and let us know what it is. I am sure that President Roosevelt and congress would be glad to hear what your solution would be. In times of dire distress like this no one should be backward in doing congress just what ought to be done.

They will just jump at the chance to serve you. P. J. BIRKBECK, Star Route, Box 57, Feb. 18.

The League of Nations

To the Editor: I do not like your attitude toward the League of Nations. I have wanted to write you about this for some time and now since your recent attack in regard to the Italian-African matter I cannot refrain. Of course the league has not functioned one hundred percent or any where near it. Nor did any one expect that it would. Nevertheless it is a matter of authentic history that it has functioned effectively in the settlement of many minor disputes any one of which might have led to serious results.

Any one doubting this can obtain at any public library the document to prove it. And the very fact that we have a League of Nations at all is a great thing. Let us not magnify its failures but consider its victories and thus help all peoples to become peace minded. Incidentally let us Americans snap out of our tight shell of intense Nationalism and become world minded and take our rightful place in the league. We belong to the family of nations whether we desire to do so or not. Why not assume our share of the responsibility?

In Memoriam

Of Mrs. Helen Biede Milburn Beloved Ashland lady who passed away at her home in Ashland, Feb. 11, 1935. A friend of thirty-five years standing. What sweeter thing can I say at the end. Than this—that we're lost a dear, true friend. You'll never know how much it meant to me. Just knowing you were near and were my friend. Knowing there was someone I could trust. Someone upon whom I could depend to count each confidence a sacred thing. And give advice without a reprimand. My worries faded, like shadows from the sun. Just knowing you were near and understood.

Farewell, dear Helene and trust friends. You were loyal to all unto the end. You are but human, my dear. You know. Even though we know that He willed it so. Written by a friend, M. A. B.

First Grid Practice for Oregon Staters

CORVALLIS, Ore., Feb. 18.—(AP)—The pigskin, roused earlier than usual from winter hibernation, went through its crazy bouncings and was thumped and flipped with fervor by Oregon State college gridmen as spring football practice swung into full stride today.

Coach Lon Stiner said more men soon would join the 49 who reported yesterday for the first spring drill, devoted mainly to fundamentals. Showing much enthusiasm, the players were eager to meet the new backfield coach who arrives Wednesday. He is Lawrence Walquist, former University of Illinois star and recently backfield coach for the Chicago Bears.
