SPORT SLANTS

by PAO

After more than six months of exhaustive tests and experiments, Sir Malcolm Campbell is preparing to take another fling, his fifth, at the automobile speed record on the beach at Daytona, Fla.

He is convinced that his four-and-a-half-ton super streamlined Blue Bird is capable of bettering his own record of 272 miles an hour—and believes it might even touch the 300-mile mark.

Whether or not he reaches 300 miles depends entirely on the condition of the Daytona sand strip and the length of the run available.

Two runs, one each way, are made in the record attempt. A nine-mile strip of beach was used in 1933 to set the present mark of 272 miles an hour. Two additional miles have been cleared for the new trial but even that does not bring it up to the distance Campbell would like to have.

Needs Still More "Elbow Room"
He feels that it will take a run of seven clear miles before the car reaches its maximum speed. Obviously, with the additional measured mile for checking the record taken off, the remaining three miles would hardly be enough to bring the roaring racer to a stop.

Even in his fiftieth year the world's ace speed driver isn't giving any thought to retiring.

A fatalist, like so many of his racing brethren, Sir Malcolm would "chuck it all" if he ever felt even the slightest bit fearful about the dangers inherent to automobile racing.

He once said, "You can get killed just as completely at 175 miles an hour as at 300."

His hope is that he may not die in bed. When his time comes he hopes to be in the cockpit of his racing car—and about 70 years old.

During his career Campbell has had many miraculous escapes and has even seen many of the world's most daring drivers crash to death—some when in actual competition with him.

Wanted Cement Anglo-American Friendship
Sir Malcolm has the highest regard for American institutions and says he comes over here as much to aid in cementing the friendly relations already existing as for any other.

Next to his love for speed and adventure, his ruling passion is a desire for a strong Anglo-American alliance. It is his favorite topic in his frequent speeches at luncheons and banquets. He could happily spend the rest of his life crusading for that end if need be, he says.

He disliked the fuss we made on the occasion of his last previous visit, but submitted graciously to it especially after he was told that it was an American custom. He made himself very popular with the newspaper men and press photographers in Florida by his unflinching good nature under barrages of requests for interviews and photographs, even when he had weightier matters on his mind.

Courteous, with a keen sense of humor, his favorite pastime is telling jokes on his own ancestry, the Scotch. He is easily one of the most popular British sportsmen ever to visit our shores.

At Roxy, Studio

Heart appeal that surges from the screen to stir a depth of feeling and sympathetic emotion that has never been equalled in a motion picture is offered in "Have a Heart," starring vehicle for vivid Jean Parker, now playing at the Roxy.

"The Witching Hour," which opens today at the Studio theater, has one of the strangest, yet most tender and romantic, plots ever conceived. It tells the story of old love coming to life to save and strengthen a newly born romance, and includes in its exciting events a murder committed under hypnotic spell and a thrilling court-room vindication.

Here Thursday

Secrets of the wild things of the great American forests and animal scenes never before witnessed by human beings are now to be seen on the screen in "Sequoia," a startling and "different" picture, which will open tomorrow at the Craterian theater.

Struggles to the death between male deer during the mating moon, the unceasing warfare of mountain lions and other wild animals have been captured by the camera after one of the most unusual series of expeditions in the history of motion pictures.

For months in the spring and summer, until heavy snows blocked the roads and trails, a little band of adventurers penetrated the great mountain wilderness of the West. With camera and sound track they went into governmental game preserves where the sound of a gun is never heard, and where wild life exists as in the days when the white man first came across the prairies.

Day after day and night after night they lay in wait beside game trails and water holes, little by little recording in scene and sound the life-and-death adventures of the animals. The result is a thrilling and breath-taking record of life in the American wilderness.

Jean Parker, one of the screen's youngest and most sparkling players, and Russell Hardie, have the principal roles, although the center of interest is held by the animals.

WHY YOU SHOULD NEVER CUT A CORN

If you are troubled with corns or callouses, do not run the risk of blood poison by paring them. Statistics show that many infections have occurred from this seemingly innocuous practice of paring corns.

Simply go to your druggist and get a few cents worth of Ice-Mint, rub a little on any painful corn or callous. Immediately the pain will disappear and in a short time the corn or callous will loosen and lift off easily with the fingers—soft and all—leaving the surrounding skin in a healthy normal condition.

This, together with the fact that Ice-Mint overcomes such affections as sore, tired, aching, puffed or burning feet and makes them cool, easy and comfortable, is probably responsible for the heavy endorsement given it by druggists.

To rid one's feet of every hard corn, soft corn, corn between the toes or painful callouses in such a pleasant and safe way, makes it seem the height of folly for anyone to pare a corn and people are warned to stop it.
