"Mystery of Edwin Drood" at Rialto

The gay, carefree countenances of Douglas Montgomery and a sprightly village belle seem out of place for the eerie "Mystery of Edwin Drood," playing today and tomorrow at the Rialto theatre, with Claude Rains in the title role.

The most mystifying of mystery stories, the picture follows the life of Edwin Drood, whose Jeckyll and Hyde existence finds him one day as choir master of the village cathedral and the next as a dope addict in the lowest of London's cheap dives.

Joe E. Brown at Roxy

Joe E. Brown is the feature attraction at the Roxy theater today and Saturday. This time he appears in a "6 Day Bike Rider," as a bicycle rider Joe is a regular "fiend," but he wins the race and his girl by the most novel and hilarious fluke imaginable.

Young Caruso Coming to Craterian

Young Enrico Caruso, son of the famous tenor who thrilled millions with his glorious voice at the Metropolitan Grand Opera and other musical centers on the globe, comes to the Craterian Theatre Saturday for a three-day stage engagement.

The Colbert picture, "The Gilded Lily," is a romantic and frothy comedy that boasts of a totally new and unconventional approach on the romantic angle.

Caruso has inherited not only a brilliant voice, but also the personal charm of his greatly loved father. He has recently completed making his first feature length picture, "The Singer of Naples," soon to be released, after having accomplished outstanding success in various screen musicals where he was featured in leading dramatic roles.
