

NAMED IN DIARY AT NAVAL PROBE

Rear Admiral Christian J. Peoples (shown at his desk in Washington), who has been mentioned as a probable choice to administer part of the new work relief measure, was named in the purported diary of Arthur P. Homer, naval architect, introduced at a hearing before the senate nominations committee, as one of those through whom shipbuilders had sought to make effective their agreement to share naval contracts. (Associated Press Photo)

'BING' LEARNS PROBLEMS OF CENSUS TAKER

"Bing" Crosby has his difficulties now and then. Here he is trying to figure out a government census card which was sent to all parents of children born last year. His twins, Phillip Lang and Dennis Michael (right) were born Friday, the 13th of July, and "Bing" knew that no good would come of it. The other child, Gary Evan, 18 months, seems a bit perplexed, too. (Associated Press Photo)

GOLFERS FACE UNPLANNED HAZARDS

Forty-eight hours of rain left the Agua Caliente, Baja California, course soaked as the $5000 open golf tournament opened. Jimmy Thomson, Los Angeles holder of the Australian title, is shown facing a water hazard never planned by the course architect. (Associated Press Photo)

Freed By Nazis

Back in America after imprisonment in Germany for making allegedly derogatory remarks about Adolf Hitler, Miss Elsie Sittell, New York girl, refused to discuss her experience. "Woman without a country," she calls herself. She said she would not rejoin her parents in Germany. (Associated Press Photo)

An aerial view of the traveler derrick erecting a span (lower left) of the San Francisco Oakland bay bridge. Pier foundations and piers for the entire structure can be seen in this photo. (Associated Press Photo)

While Senator Huey Long effected the arrest at Baton Rouge, La., of Ernest Bourgeois (right), Square Dealer, Representative Jared Sanders (left), anti-Longer in congress, assailed the Louisiana "Kingfish" before the house. Long returned to Baton Rouge for a hearing on the alleged plot on his life. (Associated Press Photos)

SUGGEST U. S. CONTROL COAL MINES

Senator Guffey of Pennsylvania has proposed bituminous coal should be a public utility under government ownership. The proposal was discussed at the White House. Left to right: Guffey, John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, and W. A. Jones of the bituminous coal authority, leave the executive mansion at the close of the conference. (Associated Press Photo)

JUST A STRETCH FOR THE CHAMPION

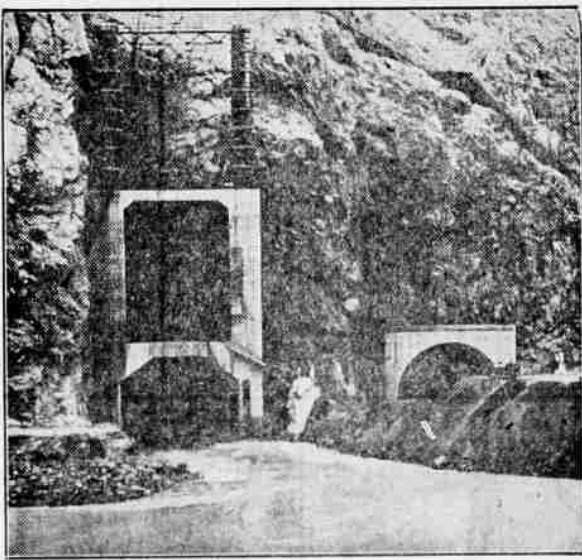

Max Baer, lothario of the ring as well as heavyweight champion, was bored when another cameraman asked him to pose. So he stretched, closing his eyes at the same time. (Associated Press Photo)

MUSEUM ACQUIRES FAMED PAINTINGS

"St. Lawrence Enthroned" (above), by Fra Filippo Lippi, was one of two masterpieces sold by J. P. Morgan to the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York. The other was Rubens' "Anne of Austria." (Associated Press Photo)

MAN STEMS FLOW OF MIGHTY RIVER

The Colorado river was flowing through these outlets just before the actual filling of a huge lake behind Boulder dam was started when the 3,000,000-pound gate (left) was lowered. This Associated Press photo shows a diversion dam being built across the front of a diversion tunnel at the right.

In The Wardrobe

Alice Jane Perry, pretty daughter of a Texas cattle baron, is learning the business side of the movies and is a wardrobe girl in a Hollywood studio. (Associated Press Photo)

ESCAPES IN TEXAS 'TWISTER'

This negro is shown sitting in the wreckage of the house from which he escaped when a tornado struck near Grapeland, Tex., killing ten, injuring approximately 67 other persons and wrecking 31 houses. (Associated Press Photo)

Beats Up Photo Man

It was Jos Messina (above), chief bodyguard for Senator Long, who beat up Leon Trice, 100-pound photographer in New Orleans, when the senator cried, "Let him have it, Joe." Trice went to a hospital to recover from his injuries. (Associated Press Photo)

MURPHY PAROLED AFTER 14 YEARS

Edmund "Spud" Murphy (left), ex-pugilist and leader of a San Francisco gang, reporting to State Parole Officer Charles C. Cove in San Francisco after his parole from Folsom where he served 14 years of a 50 year sentence for assault and battery on two San Francisco girls in 1920. (Associated Press Photo)

Found Slain

Killed under mysterious circumstances, Kathleen Robinson (above), 26-year-old San Mateo, Calif., laundry worker, was found in a pool of blood. Three men were questioned in the case. (Associated Press Photo)

SHE GLIDES WITH GREATEST OF EASE

Mabel Thorne shows how she won the annual outdoor figure skating championship in Yosemite Valley, Cal. She's been the women's outdoor figure skating champion of California for two years. (Associated Press Photo)

Passes 'Blind' Test

Reported planning for some spectacular venture, Laura Ingalls (above), noted aviatrix, has passed her test for "blind flying." She was pictured in Los Angeles, where she was to take delivery on a new plane. (Associated Press Photo)

Police were told by Mrs. Fanette Rifkin, possible witness for the prosecution in the Hauptmann trial at Flemington, N. J., a man attacked her, bound and gagged her to a chair in her beauty parlor and set fire to it. New York police are looking over the room where she was left to burn. (Associated Press Photo)