NO SNOW DAMAGE AT DIAMOND LAKE

Medford people who are proprietors of summer cabins at Diamond Lake were assured by Willard Horn, caretaker, in a visit to Medford Sunday, that the heavy snow during the winter have not crushed any of the cabins or caused other damage.

Horn made the trip to Medford for supplies to last himself and family until the roads are opened into the lake sometime in April or May. He made the trip on skis, encountering 10 feet of snow on the divide, in comparison to four feet at the lake.

He reported his dog, a huge animal, had caught his foot in a bear trap during the winter, but is recovering satisfactorily.

ONION RATES HIGH IN AMERICAN DIET DECLARES BUREAU

$13,000,000 Worth Consumed During 1933 Season-Ancients Knew Delights, Value of Vegetable

Thirteen million dollars worth of onions is a lot to think of. But that is the farm value of the onions moved to market from the commercial onion producing areas of the country during the 1933 crop season. It makes onions one of the ten or twelve most valuable vegetable crops we produce. In one way or another, they say, we eat onions in this country at the rate of 10 pounds per person per year. And onions do their bit toward a balanced diet, says the Bureau of Home Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. They are a fair source of iron, and raw onions furnish some vitamin C.

Onions were one of the foods of the ancients. There are paintings, it is said, that show Egyptian priests covering their altars with onion tops and roots. Onions are mentioned in the Bible as one of the things the Israelites longed for in the wilderness and complained to Moses about. In the East, continues the historian, "there is a tradition that when Adam stepped out of the Garden of Eden after the fall of man, onions sprang up from the spot where he placed his right foot and garlic from the spot his left foot touched."

Grow 23,000,000 Bushels Be that as it may, every farm or vegetable garden now grows onions for home use. To supply our city markets the commercial shipping areas in the United States usually devote 80,000 to 90,000 acres to the growing of onions. (And this does not include the local or market garden acreage producing chiefly for sale in local markets, and furnishing possibly 10 to 15 percent of the marketings.) All told, the commercial onion growers ship three crops-early, intermediate and late-which amounted to about 23 million bushels this year.

As this time of year we are getting the late, or "main crop" onions to the market, which is to say the onions grown chiefly in New York, Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, California, Idaho, Colorado, and 10 other states, north, east and west. By the end of November, this crop is in storage for distribution through the winter. Most of it consists of Yellow Globe onions, but there are many white ones and red ones as well. The mild-flavored Bermudas and the Creoles, grown chiefly in Texas, California and Louisiana, mature in the spring and come on the market during the summer as the "early crop."

Imports Reduced We still import some onions, but the 80,000 bushels imported in 1933 looks small beside the 2 million bushels and more that we used to get from Spain, Egypt, Bermuda, Mexico and Chile. We now grow our own Spanish onions, large oval yellow mild-flavored onions that come to market mainly from the northwest in the fall and winter months. You find a few imported Spanish onions on the market in winter as well as in summer, and some Egyptian onions also. These are of the Spanish type, but harder and stronger flavored.

When you are buying onions you probably look for the size that are bright, look hard, well-shaped and mature, with dry skins. You don't want onions which have begun to sprout, or in which the seedling has developed. Nor do you want onions with any sign of rot, either on the outer scales or the scales in the center of the bulb-and moisture at the neck is usually an indication of decay. These defects are serious, but they are fairly easy to detect.

Marketed by Grades It is to the housewife's advantage to know, however, that onions are usually marketed in wholesale quantities by well established grades. The dealer buys northern onions, the Globes, usually in 50-pound bags, (Bermudas and Creoles-the early onions-come in sacks and crates and have their own special grades.) The U. S. Department of Agriculture staggers the northern-grown onions are "U. S. No. 1," "U. S. Commercial," "U. S. No. 1 Bidders," and "U. S. No. 1 Picklers."

The grading is done first over inclined screens or slatted racks, which separate the larger onions from the small ones. Loose tops, chaff, and dirt also, pass through the screens. In addition to size, onions are graded for maturity, firmness, and shape, and according to the percentage of "doubles" or "splits," "botlenecks" and "scallions," and of "bald," "skinned" or "peeled" onions, which have lost more than half the papery outside skin; for the presence of sunscald which affects shipping and marketing quality; for the cracking of the flesh itself, or any appearance of decay, and for the presence of too many tops. "Doubles" and "splits" are onions which have developed more than one distinct bulb. If they are distinctly misshapen, or show a splitting of the dry outer scales they are excluded from the top grade. "Botlenecks" are onions with abnormally thick necks. "Scallions" have thick necks and relatively small and poorly developed bulbs.

No 1 High Grade "U. S. No. 1," the best grade of onions, are free of these and other defects such as damage caused by freezing, packing, or other mechanical means. The size for grade 1 is not less than 1 1/4 inches in diameter. If they are yellow onions, 40 percent

2050 DOGS LICENSED IN COUNTY TO DATE

Thirty owners of dogs in this county procured 1935 licenses yesterday from the county clerk, bringing the total issued by that office to 1799, and the total dogs licensed for the county to 2050, counting 260 licenses issued at Ashland by the chief of police. This is the largest number of licensed dogs in the history of the county.

After March 10 a penalty of $1 will be assessed on dog licenses, now procurable at $1 for male and $1.50 for female dogs.

From Kent, Wash.-J. B. Berlin of Kent, Wash., arrived this morning on the Oregonian to visit in Medford with his sister, Mrs. H. U. Lumaden.
