MENINGITIS SUFFERER PASSES IN ROSEBURG

ROSEBURG, Ore., March 7.—(AP)—Death yesterday claimed Martin Tavenner, 21-year-old CCC employe, whose life state police patrolmen endeavored to save last Friday when speed relays delivered meningitis serum from Portland to the Veterans' hospital at Roseburg, a distance of 200 miles, in slightly less than four hours. Tavenner rallied for a time following the serum treatment, but collapsed last night and death occurred this morning.

Pomona Grange

Jackson County Pomona Grange will meet at the Eagle Point Grange hall March 9 at 8 p. m. All Grangers are cordially invited to attend.

Refreshments will be served and Mrs. Emma Conger, Home Economics chairman, requests members to bring sandwiches and pickles.

A large attendance is desired as the program is always interesting and important—the business, the committee, and the lecture program.

Two new Granges have been organized in the county since the last meeting, one at McLeod and one at Gold Hill. The members of these new Granges are urged to attend this Pomona meeting and get acquainted with the other Grangers from all parts of the county, and also get acquainted with the Grange work as carried out in the Pomona, or county, organization. Let all the older Grangers in the county attend to meet these new Grangers and welcome them into our organization.

Contest For Best Model Plane At Craterian Sat.

Much interest is being evidenced among the boys and girls of Medford in the announcement of the model plane contest to be held Saturday at the Craterian theater, in conjunction with the current showing of the James Cagney aviation picture "Devil Dogs of the Air."

Ten prizes are to be awarded for the best models—the prizes ranging from season passes that will enable the holders to see all shows at the theater for a period of a month, to passes for an entire week's programs.

In addition to the prizes for the best model planes, a special award will be made to the boy or girl bringing in the most labels from a Quaker or Mothers Oats carton. This award will be the same as first prize — a month's pass.

Daredevil Flying In Marine Film

James Cagney, Pat O'Brien and the U. S. navy made the world "gob conscious" in "Here Comes the Navy," one of the most popular pictures of last year.

Now again come that inimitable pair, to do for the Marine Corps what they did for the Navy, in their new picture, "Devil Dogs of the Air," which opened yesterday to a large audience at the Craterian theater.

"Devil Dogs of the Air" has more thrills than "Here Comes the Nevy," which puts it in a class by itself. It presents daredevil stunts by flying marines that beggar description. A dozen battleships participate in naval maneuvers directed by the U. S. S. Macon. Countless airplanes zipp and zoom through the picture, fearless fliers crash their planes in midair and leap in parachutes from burning ships. As a thrill spectacle it is unsurpassed.

The picture, however, which was produced with the active cooperation of the U. S. military authorities is far more than a record of some of the most spectacular aerial and marine stunts ever filmed. It is a rollicking comedy through which runs a clever romance, and the all star cast includes more than 1,000 U. S. Marines, who enact small parts as well provide a background for a cleverly told tale.

Cagney has never given a better performance than his portrayel of a fresh youth who joins the Marines because he can't keep out of airships. He gets into the aviation corps through the kindness of a Marine officer from his home town, and rewards that officer by stealing his girl and generally keeping him in hot water.

'Baboona' Coming

One of the most spectacular screen offerings of a decade is promised for the Rialto theater when "Baboona," newest African adventure film of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson, opens there tomorrow.

"Baboona" is described as an aerial epic over Africa. Requiring twenty months in the filming, it was made while the Martin Johnsons toured 60,000 miles of unexplored jungle, visiting many spots in the dark continent never before glimpsed by civilized man.

This newest screen exploit of the intrepid pair reveals man's most dramatic conquest—the first record of Africa's remotest sercets filmed from the air.

In two Sikorsky amphibians, christened "The Spirit of Africa" and "Osa's Ark," the Johnsons circled mysterious Mt. Kenya, snow-covered and inaccessible; flew over the vast Iturbi forest, visited the "mouth of Hell," Lake Rudolf; charged a vast herd of rhinos; visited with the Pygmies; descended on the homeland of the baboons and accomplished other feats.

The Rialto theater's program, with Captain Huckins on the stage, "Sea Killers" and "By Your Leave" on the screen, closes tonight.

BASEBALL MYSTERY COMING TO ROXY

Actors and professional ball players join forces to figure in a gripping detective mystery in "Death on the Diamond," coming to the Roxy tomorrow.

Based on an amazing story dealing with a series of mysterious killings in a baseball team during a pennant race, the picture blends harrowing bewilderment with hundreds of uproarious comedy interludes, and with a love romance, in a distinctively new form of screen entertainment.
