"Death on Diamond" at Roxy
Tense mystery and hilarious comedy are blended into a unique form of drama in "Death on the Diamond," vivid story of a mysterious killer running amuck in a baseball team during a pennant race, which is now playing at the Roxy theater.
Every grim episode, every moment of horror or suspense is deftly turned into comedy relief.

At Craterian
James Cagney and Pat O'Brien, co-starred in "Devil Dogs of the Air," are winning audiences at the Craterian theater, where the picture plays until tomorrow night.
Both players discovered, during the filming of the picture, the energy supplied by oatmeal and insisted upon Quaker Oats being included in their diet every day. It is for this reason that the theater is co-operating with the local grocers in holding a model plane contest for boys and girls Saturday, with a special prize for the boy or girl bringing in the most labels from the cartons of Quaker or Mothers' Oats. Ten other prizes will be awarded the winners of the best plane models.

"Babooona"
One of the most sensational adventures of all time is promised for the Rialto theater, where the newest production of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson, "Babooona," shows today and tomorrow.
"Babooona," it is said, outdistances anything the Johnsons have yet brought back from unexplored and savage lands, not only for authenticity and graphic detail, but for sheer suspense and excitement.
This time the intrepid pair of explorers have made safari in Africa by air, submitting their feature "an aerial epic over Africa," they have created it from the labors of two years—during which time they traveled some 60,000 miles by air above jungle and plain, above unknown waters and mysterious mountains.
It furnishes one of the world's most extraordinary records of the unquenchable.
The jungle has baffled the Johnsons before—as it has baffled many an adventurer; but this time they flew in! Where others had halted, they plunged on—and from the air they entered the forbidden kingdom of class and fang.
The Johnsons dared to fly where no man or woman had ever gone before. And they were rewarded by securing a picture which, according to all advance accounts, is the most extraordinary of the long and notable series they have produced.

Aviatrix
Myrna Loy, whose sparkling characterizations in recent pictures have made her one of the screen's most popular feminine stars, has the leading role in "Wings in the Dark," coming Sunday at the Craterian theater. Cary Grant, Roscoe Karns, Hobart Cavanaugh and many other well known players are in the featured roles.
The film story shows Miss Loy as a daredevil aviatrix who risks life and limb for the sake of the man she loves. Grant is the airman who is also scientist and adventurer. His life is devoted to making flight safe through the perfection of instruments for blind flying.
On the eve of the trans-Atlantic flight which will prove the complete success of his experiments, he is blinded by an accident.
In a final, gripping climax Cary Grant goes aloft to bring Miss Loy down when she is top-bound above the landing field at the end of the flight. An accident restores his sight.

Now at Studio
Ruth Hiatt, one of the most beautiful girls on the screen and one of the famous "Wampus Baby Stars," has the leading role with Ken Maynard in "Sunset Trail," which is now playing at the Studio theater.
Visits Ashland—According to the Ashland Tidings, Henry Weishaar of Medford transacted business in Ashland Thursday.
