

HOLMES BURIED AMONG NATION'S BATTLE HEROES

President and High Officials Present at Final Rites for Famous Jurist — Sleet Falls Upon Scene

By W. H. Mylander Associated Press Staff Writer. WASHINGTON, March 8.—(AP)—While President Roosevelt and other notables stood with uncovered heads in a heavy sleet storm, the body of Oliver Wendell Holmes was buried today among the nation's military heroes in Arlington national cemetery.

Only partly sheltered by a canopy, the president stood with uncovered head as the distinguished jurist's casket was lowered into a grave. When the casket on a black-draped caisson arrived at the grave the president already was waiting on the arm of the military aide.

Mrs. Roosevelt, who attended funeral services in All Souls Unitarian church, took her position beside her husband as soldiers bore the body to its resting place. The president's face was solemn and his eyes blinked rapidly as the words of the 23rd Psalm were repeated by the Rev. Dr. Ulysses G. B. Pierce.

Seven of the nine justices of the supreme court bowed with the president as soldiers fired a parting salute and a bugler sounded taps. Justices Brandeis and Van Devanter did not venture out into the weather.

Several hundred persons braved a chill wind blowing flurries of snow to stand outside All Souls Unitarian church on upper Sixteenth street, as the Reverend Dr. Pierce conducted a simple funeral service.

It included a brief scriptural reading, solemn music and the reading of one of Mr. Holmes' favorite poems. There were seats for less than 100 of the general public, admitted to the gallery.

The remainder of the church was filled with close friends of the late "great liberal" of the supreme court, and representatives of the bar and the government.

MANY REPORTED KILLED, WOUNDED IN HOT BATTLE

(Continued from Page One) rebel ranks. The soldiers, it was reported, were demanding arrangement whereby the command be passed to non-commissioned officers.

General Kondylis, who dropped his war portfolio to direct the government's action was handicapped by heavy weather and faced further difficulties in the Struma river section because the stream, swollen by rains and melting snow overflowed its banks and flooded the entire district.

Sole news of the operations of the rebel fleet indicated it was resorting to reprisals as a result of the Turkish embargo on Greek ships placed at the request of the Athens government.

A report from Istanbul said the rebel flagship Averoff had stopped the Turkish steamer Konia which was en route to Smyrna and conducted it to Mytilene.

General Kondylis unleashed his plane attack after Premier Tsaldaris received a report from the minister of war that yesterday's aerial efforts "were in vain."

During the previous efforts two of the planes were forced to return because of fog and one fell in a gale. The crew were saved by using parachutes. General Kondylis said: "The front action has been feeble. We have been working on uniting the organization. General Panagiotakos has just returned from the front and says our army's morale is excellent.

In another declaration Kondylis reiterated that the government troops will occupy Kavalla "forty-eight hours after the weather permits an attack," and declared "Venizelos has lost the game" because the government has control of Athens, Larissa and Salonika. Greece's principal centers.

FEAR FISHERMAN MET FOUL PLAY

ROSEBURG, Ore., March 8.—(AP)—An effort to locate John Laverdin, Cordova, Alaska, fisherman, is being made today by the sheriff's office here, following the discovery this morning of Laverdin's knapsack, containing clothing and papers, near the highway bridge at Myrtle Creek. The knapsack had been soaked by rain, and its condition indicates that it has been exposed for several weeks. Papers found in the bag, indicating that Laverdin might have had money on his person, causes officers to fear that he may have met foul play. Bank books found by the officers show that Laverdin had accounts in banks at Portland, Seattle, and Cordova.

WILD DUCKS EATING WALLA WALLA CROPS

WALLA WALLA, March 8.—(AP)—Wild ducks are becoming so numerous in the lower Walla Walla valley that farmers of irrigated lands between Whitman and Touchet are planning a mass protest to the game department, George M. Smith, landowner there and commander of the American Legion post, Walla Walla, said today.

Two mild winters have made this district a haven for migratory birds and crops are being ruined by the feathered creatures, Smith said. Alfalfa fields, winter irrigated, have been heaviest sufferers.

Archaeologists say the dog was the only domestic animal of the early Indian tribes in the lower Mississippi valley.

BUTTER AND EGGS HOLD UNCHANGED IN PORTLAND MART

PORTLAND, Ore., March 8.—(AP)—There was no change today in butter and butterfat quotations. The latter was holding firm.

There was no change in either price or sentiment in the egg trade for the day. With storage operations well under way in the south the surplus was being taken care of and prices were steady.

There was still an unsupplied demand showing in the live chicken trade with prices firm but without further change for the day. The call was for all sorts.

Slightly better consuming movement of turkeys was showing as a result of the high cost of chickens and meats. Receipts were moderate and the price fully steady for top quality.

With supplies dwindling rapidly and Oregon the only place where good quality was available, onion holders were demanding $4 net and are refusing to sell below that. Some business has been shown at the market.

Wall St. Report

NEW YORK, March 8.—(AP)—The stock market made a feeble attempt to follow through today on yesterday's advance. Aside from firmness in some metals, utilities and scattered specialties, however, it did not get very far. The close was irregular. Transfers approximated only 450,000 shares.

Prices leveled off in the late afternoon after early morning improvement. The ticker tape went to sleep as board rooms searched in vain for something to stimulate the buying appetite. Most rails were inclined to hang back. Silver was pushed up 1/2 of a cent an ounce to 26 1/2 cents, another seven-year peak.

Shares holding gains of fractions to around a point included U. S. Smelting, Cerro de Pasco, DuPont, McIntyre Porcupine, American Telephone, Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey, Texas Gulf, Procter & Gamble and Westinghouse.

COMMITTEE FINDS KINGFISH FAILED TO BACK CLAIMS

(Continued from page one) and Hugh S. Johnson, former NRA head, but few would comment. "What did you think of it?" Senator Bilbo (D. Miss), was asked. "He didn't say anything to make me think," he replied.

The senate post office committee planned its fifth successive meeting behind closed doors late today to act on Long's resolution for an investigation of Postmaster-General Farley.

Clark Charges Demagoguery It was Senator Clark (D. Mo.), who has frequently challenged Long's tactics on the floor, who hurled the "demagoguery" retort to the "Kingfish" charge that the whole "Roosevelt crowd" was out to get him because he had informed the world their "tangled messes and noble experiments would not work."

Observers noted that, after assailing the new deal as a "St. Vitus dance" and Hugh S. Johnson as a general who "never smelled powder or heard a cap snap," the Louisiana dictator seized the opportunity to attempt, before his huge radio audience, to hammer home his "share the wealth" ideas.

They wondered if that were not an emphatic new indication of an effort to gather strength for the 1936 campaigns—in which some observers foresee the possibility of a third party movement.

John to Johnson. Or the men who have struck at Long in the past few days, only Johnson had any immediate comment on last night's speech. The former blue eagle chief, who is in Providence, Rhode Island, said: "It's a great joke"—and for the time being let it go at that. He is saving his fire until after Father Charles E. Coughlin of Detroit replies Monday night to the Johnsonian charge that both the priest and the Louisiana senator are demagogues appealing to the "abused masses" of depression.

Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the Democratic leader who has tangled with Long on the senate floor, tuned in on the speech last night, but had no comment. He told newsmen who talked with him while the speech was going on that he hadn't heard anything to which he wanted to reply.

Sen. Bailey Uninterested. Senator Bailey of North Carolina, another whom Long has threatened to send to political oblivion, said he hadn't heard the speech and "wasn't interested." Neither was Senator Byrd, Virginia Democrat who denounced Long as a demagogue in a recent speech.

Long failed his arms as much as ever as he contended in the radio speech that the White House had declared war on him and chosen "the late and lamented, the pampered ex-royal prince" of the blue eagle to make the "lead-off" speech.

But the "Kingfish" departed from his custom in one respect—he had prepared a manuscript, which he followed part of the time. One of his departures from it was his disparaging reference to Johnson's military prowess. Another was his contention that when Johnson went out of NRA he prepared "a blistering statement" which never saw the light of day.

Leaned by Wall Street. The reason it was suppressed, he said, was that "Wall Street might want to loan him to some other president in the future." Once he changed a more elegant appellation for his foes to the phrase "those birds oppating me."

"God save the country from the misery and distress of that gang," he said. To the support of his plan to cut the wealth of all rich men down to $2,000,000 or $4,000,000 and otherwise distribute riches, he summoned the Bible and the compact made by the Pilgrim fathers.

"While my urgings are declared by some to be the ravings of a madman," he said, "and by such men as General Johnson as insincere bait of a pious piper, if you will listen to me you will find that it is restoring the laws handed down by God to man."

Of Johnson, he said that "this ersatz prince of the de-ranked alphabet makes ready to appear at the funeral of NRA like unto the colored lady in Mississippi who there asserted: 'I is de wife of dese remains'."

Says He's Target. Declaring that "The Roosevelt administration, Mr. Johnson, Mr. Farley, Mr. Astor and all their spotters and spellbinders" are gunning for him because they think he is the "cause of their misery," he said: "They are like old Dary Crockett who went out to hunt a possum. He saw in the gleam of the moonlight that a possum in the top of the tree was going from limb to limb. He shot and missed. He saw the possum again. He fired a second time and missed again. Soon he discovered that it was not a possum he saw at all in the top of that tree. It was a louse in his own eyebrow."

Same Set of Cooks. "The 'kitchen cabinets' under Presidents Roosevelt and Hoover were the same, he said—"maybe you see a little change in the man waiting on the tables, but back in the kitchen the same set of cooks."

Mr. Hoover's plan, he said, was to plow up every fourth row of cotton, but Mr. Roosevelt plowed up every third row.

"So it has been that while millions have starved and gone naked; so it has been that while babies have cried and died for milk; so it has been that while people have begged for meat and bread Mr. Roosevelt's administration has sailed merrily along."

As for NRA, he said it became a "national scandal," Johnson went out "as the scapegoat" and if an NRA parade were called now "you couldn't get enough people for a funeral march."

"More men are now out of work than ever," he said, "the debt of the United States has gone up another ten billion dollars. There is starvation; there is homelessness; there is misery on every hand, and corner, but mind you, in the meantime, Mr. Roosevelt has had his way."

"I Told You So" Irks. He said that he had told "Hoover's crowd it wouldn't do" and had given the same warning to "Roosevelt's crowd." Now, he said, "they are in a rage at Huey Long because I have said 'I told you so'."

The senate post office committee was expected to make a decision soon on Long's demand for a sweeping investigation of Postmaster General Farley. The committee received yesterday from Farley a denial of all

ORDER SHELL OIL TO RECOGNIZE 5 EMPLOYE UNIONS

WASHINGTON, March 8.—(AP)—Approving a decision of the petroleum labor policy board, Secretary Ickes today ordered the Shell Oil company to recognize five unions as collective bargaining agents for all employes in California.

The board, with Ickes' approval, overruled the contention of previous employe representatives that results of an employe election should be determined by departments.

"It is the belief of the board," the decision said, "that section 7, article 2 of the petroleum code crystallizes a legislative intent to give employees economic strength in their relationship with their employors."

"It is obvious that this strength is only effective to the extent that it represents the opinion or desire of many as against the opinion or desire of an individual or few."

"To the extent, therefore, that facts and circumstances in each case so justify, it is the duty of the board to certify as collective bargaining agencies the largest possible groups of employes, numerically speaking, who consider themselves and who can be considered, by present and past objective facts and circumstances, homogeneous and similar."
