Outstanding Harpist To Appear Ashland In Concert Tonight Ruth Lorraine Cloze, solo harpist of the Portland Symphony orchestra, will appear in concert this evening at Southern Oregon Normal school in Ashland. The recital is to start at 8:15. Reservations may be made at Elhart's in Ashland, and tickets may be purchased at the door.

One of a series sponsored by Southern Oregon Normal school, this concert is being anticipated by many music lovers in southern Oregon. It promises a program of unusual quality, as artist performers on the harp, such as Ruth Lorraine Cloze, are rare.

Her program includes a representative offering ranging from the classics of Bach and Beethoven to recently published musical literature. One of the most interesting numbers in the recital is "Jazz Band Four in Harp," by Marcel Tournier, modern French composer for the harp. This number has provoked much discussion.

The artist, before being engaged as solo harpist of the Portland Symphony orchestra, studied extensively in this country and in Europe. She began the study of the harp at the age of eight years, and gave evidence of such great talent that her parents took her abroad to give her the best training available in the European capitals.

Now one of the few outstanding artists of the harp, she has won acclaim in the music centers of the world, Paris, London and New York.

She said her appearance was prompted by the fact one was "a friend." The Chinese, all said by police to be professional gamblers, declared they paid $40 to obtain bail bonds from a professional bondman.

Meanwhile another death was chalked up in Harlem to the policy racket when Curtis Jackson, 31, alleged "numbers" vendor, was shot down in the street. His death was the ninth attributed by police to have resulted from the present inquiry—several of them suspected of being slayings to insure silence.

The new clean-up ostensibly is a drive to rid the city of prostitution, policy gambling and bail bond irregularities—the latter regarded as a vicious outgrowth of commercialized vice.

Eight Powerful Racket Actually, it is a fight between the law forces of the city and the most powerful racket syndicate in the east—the numbers game operators.

Police say the numbers' take exceeds $70,000,000 a year, a gangster-controlled income which has made its owners rich and nearly inviolable. Some million New Yorkers play the numbers daily, risking from a few cents to $10 on a chance to make an enormous profit.

but he would be given a cell by himself, and allowed use of a typewriter and law books, if he desired them. Enright has indicated that he intends to carry on his law practice, inasmuch as he is counsel in several cases at issue in the circuit court.

Whether Enright will be permitted to appear in circuit court during the time of his sentence, rest with the court. He has informed the district attorney's office he would ask this privilege. Under Oregon law, he stands convicted of a misdemeanor.

Enright was convicted by a Jackson county jury, last November, of driving an auto while under influence of intoxicating liquor. He had previously been convicted in justice court on the same charge. A sentence of 30 days in the county jail was suspended upon payment of $100 fine and costs.

After the second conviction, it was suggested to the court that Enright be given a suspended sentence, upon condition he move to the state of Idaho, where he has a license to practice law. Enright declined to accept the offer, and filed notice of appeal to the supreme court. The high court affirmed the lower court conviction 20 days ago. Time limit for filing of a petition for re-hearing expired today.
