

AAA LISTS PROFIT OF $64,956,594 WITHIN 2 YEARS

Organization's Plans Call for Continuance of Crop Control Program to Keep Prices From Slumping

By HARRY FERGUSON (United Press Staff Correspondent) WASHINGTON, March 15.—(UP)—The Agricultural Adjustment Administration, which for almost two years has been in the business of trying to persuade farmers not to raise too many pigs or grow too much corn, could close up shop tomorrow with a net profit of $64,956,594.

But it doesn't intend to do so. In the spring of 1933 congress created the AAA, handed it $100,000,000 and told it to do something to save the nation's farmers from being ground to pieces by debt and by farm prices that were too low to make it worthwhile to plant an acre of corn.

From that time until January 31, 1935, it was learned today, the AAA has poured $385,921,943 into the farmers' pockets. That money represents benefit payments—money handed to farmers who pledged themselves to curtail their crops, kill their surplus pigs and try to raise farm prices by cutting down the surplus that was glutting the market. That is the red ink side of the ledger.

On the credit side the AAA has collected $692,878,537 in processing taxes. That comes from a levy imposed upon the men who take the raw material from farms and convert it into finished foodstuffs ready to put on the table—such as millers and packers. That tax, along with other factors such as the drought, is driving food prices up. Roughly speaking, the AAA is taking money away from the consumer and giving it to the farmer.

As the AAA swings into its third year, officials are heedless of the cries of critics who complain that the organization is destroying food while the jobless go hungry and plowing under cotton while the impoverished need clothing. Foes of the organization still talk about slaughter of 6,000,000 pigs in the fall of 1933. Economists call the AAA formula "the economics of scarcity" meaning the artificial bolstering of prices by keeping foodstuffs off the market.

The high AAA official said today the organization's plans call for a continuance of the economics of scarcity.

"We are going to allow farmers to raise just enough to feed the country, keep an adequate reserve of food on hand in case of drought or some other form of disaster and establish stocks to sell to foreign countries when and if international trade opens up. Anything beyond that is a surplus that cannot be sold—a dangerous surplus that would force farm prices down again."

The fact that the consumer is paying more for his food is not a direct concern of the AAA. The original idea back of the recovery program was that NRA would take care of that by hoisting the wage scale. The AAA was charged with increasing the purchasing power of the farmer, and has done so. It cannot claim all the credit, however, because the devaluation of the dollar contributed considerably.

Many members of congress charge there has been food profiteering as a result of the AAA program. Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, (D., Mont.) has introduced a resolution to investigate whether there has been profiteering. Secretary of Agriculture Henry Wallace has promised to try to curtail the consumer from being gouged.

The AAA says its $64,956,594 profit will disappear eventually. It merely wants to break even between payments and processing taxes.

Guardianship Bill Will Make Quintuplets Wards of King Until 18 Years Old — Father Fights Move

TORONTO, Ont., March 15.—(UP)—The Dionne quintuplets are within a step of becoming wards of the king. Premier Mitchell Hepburn asserted today that the babies' guardianship bill definitely would be made law despite parental objection.

The measure places the five girls under control of the Hon. David Cross, welfare minister, until they reach 18.

"The bill is going through in its original form," said Premier Hepburn, "unless Mr. Cool sees fit to make amendments."

Orville Dionne, father of the quintuplets, his manager, Leo Kervin, and his father, Olivier Dionne, arrived today. They reportedly have retained counsel in an effort to have the bill blocked.

"I don't care," added the premier, "what Kervin or anyone else says or does who seeks to exploit these children. Kervin would have sacrificed the babies at the Chicago world's fair."

Dr. Allan Roy Dafeo, the quintuplets' physician, lunched today with the father.

The babies are in the Dafeo hospital at Callander. The North Bay branch, La Federation Des Femmes Canadiennes, today joined forces with the Dionnes in opposing the bill. Crook announced Dr. Dafeo and the babies' father would be named as guardians. He said other guardians might be appointed later, if the government saw fit.

Both Dionne and Dr. Dafeo will be responsible to him as chief guardian, the minister said.

The premier introduced Dr. Dafeo to the assembled legislators, who tendered him a thunderous ovation. Hepburn said Dionne had signed contracts to exhibit the quintuplets in a "side show," which was one reason the bill was drawn up—to prevent such recurrences.
