SPORT SLANTS

As veteran athletes whose fellows Bill Tilden and Rabbit Maravich, in their 40's, boast fair enough records, but they can't hold a candle to a real "old timer" like Billigan Organ.

Organ, a 90-year-old Chiloquin, plays his three-cushion billiards from 30 minutes to an hour daily. Only a month ago he made a run of nine at three-cushion. He disdains the use of glasses while scoring with cushion-frills, umbrellas, banks and other shots which even the professionals find difficult to execute.

Organ took up billiards over half a century ago, yet he insists that today his game is at its peak. A Civil war veteran, wounded at Vicksburg, he is just as handy with a rifle as with a cue and can hold his own with the best with a large-bore rifle.

If you prefer your sports a bit more strenuous, take a glance at the doings of Stanislaus Zbyzsko, veteran Polish wrestler, former heavyweight champion of the world.

A Big Shot in Buenos Zbyzsko, who must be well over 60 years old, is being featured in main events in Buenos Aires and other large South American cities. Zby and his brother Wlode, a couple of years his junior, are doing their stuff before packed houses.

Stan is truly physical marvel. He regained the world's wrestling championship after he had passed the 60-year mark and continued to hold his own with the top-notchers in this country until he was at least 86 years old.

Novral Baptie is in his early 50s. He is still one of the greatest performers on skates and one of the best blade stars to excel in both speed and fancy skating.

Twenty-five years ago, when Baptie was in his prime, he set a flock of speed records. He raced against the greatest skaters of the world, including Oscar Mathison, Bobby McLean and Johnny Neilson.

When he began to lose his speed he turned to figure skating. His efforts are now confined almost entirely to that form. The Super-Iron-Man Reggie McNamara will be riding his 114th six-day bike race shortly, in his 51st year. The veteran rider has survived more broken bones and injuries than any athlete of modern times.

In the trotting game a man really doesn't rate until he counts 30 or more candles on his birthday cake. Walter Cox, dean of trotting horse trainers who holds forth at the Good Times stables in Goshen, N. Y., has been training trotters the year round for half a century
