

HISTORY OF CRETE SHOWS REVOLT A MAIN INDUSTRY

New Greek Disturbance Centers Interest On Island Modern Development of Land Has Been Slow

WASHINGTON, D. C.—(Sp.) Greek washings, manned by rebels, dodging among the islands of the Aegean, have focused interest on Greece and its island-studded seas. The seized ships, pelled with bombs from loyal airplanes overhead, were bound for Crete, one of the major centers of the uprising.

"That Crete is a disturbing element in the affairs of the Mediterranean, is not new to historians," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "Nor is this the first revolt in which the island has taken a leading role."

History repeats with revolts. Crete was annexed to modern Greece in 1812. Four years under Greek rule had not passed when the islanders staged a revolution. Up to that time the Creteans had been in almost constant state of revolt against Turkish and Egyptian rule for the greater part of the nineteenth and early part of the twentieth centuries.

"Lying in the Mediterranean about equidistant from Europe, Asia and Africa, Crete is a roughly oval-shaped mass of mountains and plains with fewer inhabitants than Indianapolis, Ind. For more than 3000 years it has played an important part in Mediterranean affairs, yet it lacks the modern development of the West. A traveler could traverse its 160-mile length in a few hours by railroad or paved highway—if there were railroads and good highways.

There is only one railroad, however, and that is but three miles long. Good roads are being slowly extended, and automobiles are becoming more numerous. But throughout most of the island mules and donkeys are the chief means of transport, as they were centuries ago.

Towns built inland to escape pirates. "Stumbling and slipping on the trails of Crete, travelers often come suddenly upon small commercial towns many miles from the Mediterranean shores. They were built in these inland locations when the sea was infested with pirates. Crete has two important towns, both on the north coast—Canea, the capital, with 26,000 inhabitants, and Candia, with a population of nearly 35,000. Candia's white suburbs extend far beyond the old fortifications that once surrounded its flat-topped, white buildings.

"The southern coast of the island has few safe anchorages. Most of the trade is handled by sailing craft and motor boats. Large ships cannot approach the wharves of the small harbors, but are obliged to remain some distance from shore. By means of cranes, merchandise is unloaded into small boats which approach the beach as closely as possible. There almost naked men, standing in water up to their shoulders and with pads on their heads, seize parcels of cargo and carry them ashore.

"Olives, olive oil, citron, raisins, and tobacco are important products of Crete. Clumps of olive trees appear on the lowlands as well as on the mountainsides. One of the most famous products of the island is the dictamn or dittany, a plant growing on Mount Dikti. In the Middle Ages almost miraculous curative powers were ascribed to it.

"Crete came under the domination of Rome in 66 B. C. When the Roman empire was divided it was apportioned to the eastern rulers. It remained under the Byzantine emperors until 823 when it was captured by piratical Saracens from Andalusia who held sway over the island for 14 years. The Byzantines later redeemed it. The Venetians bought it in 1204 and ruled there for 400 years.

"Crete was probably the seed bed for the culture which later flowed into the Hellenic civilization of Greece and Asia Minor. Archaeologists have uncovered in the island evidences that civilization flourished in Crete as early as the First Dynasty of Egypt.

"Greece has had few periods of quiet prosperity since the classic days of its city states, and the period of Roman dominance. In the fifteenth century the Turks captured the country from Byzantium, and for nearly three and a half centuries it slumbered under Turkish dominion while its great temples and monuments fell into ruin.

"From 1821 to 1830 Greece fought its war of independence against the Turks, gaining in the end, the assistance of Great Britain, France and Russia, and winning its freedom. Otto of Bavaria was made king of the new nation in 1832. In 1862 he abdicated and Prince William George of Denmark was given the throne. The rulers of the Danish line were expelled in 1924 and a republic was proclaimed.

Trail

TRAIL, March 21.—(Sp.)—The program given by the Extension unit March 16, was a huge success. A good crowd bought most all the candy, hot dogs and coffee, and $30 was cleared for the unit. They extend thanks to all who helped and patronized them.

Mrs. Clarence Coon and new son, James Clarence, returned to their home on Elk creek March 17.

Trail Extension unit met at the home of Mrs. Wilmer Ragsdale March 14. There were eleven members and six visitors present. Mrs. Mable Mack gave an interesting talk and demonstration on menu planning and table service. After a covered dish lunch at noon, Mrs. Mack, Mrs. Segessman and Mrs. Hutchinson gave talks on their Corvallis trip and plans were completed for the program Saturday night. Altogether it was an interesting meeting. Next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Gwen Howe April 11.

Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Cushman and little daughter, Iverine and Melba, and their house guest, Mrs. Joe Roe, were dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilmer Ragsdale March 17.

Mrs. Lizzie Nichols of Klamath Falls is a house guest of Mrs. Alma Merriman this week.

Miss Adeline Vanson and Miss Collier of Eugene and Miss Deloris Durkey of Medford were week-end guests of Adeline's aunt, Mrs. Eva Segessman.

Mrs. Dorothy Ash, who has been very ill at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. E. Ash, was taken to her home on Elk creek March 16. She was reported to be a little better March 19.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Watson shopped in Medford March 16.

Mr. and Mrs. Icel Castor shopped in Medford March 16.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Green and some friends of Medford, called on Mr. and Mrs. S. W. Hutchinson March 17.

Mrs. Ernie Ernst is quite ill in a Medford hospital.

Mrs. Rena Howe entertained eight girls Saturday afternoon in honor of her daughter, Wanda's 14th birthday.

Boyd Tucker has gone to Yreka to be near his daughter, while she undergoes a gaiter operation.

Mrs. Icel Castor entertained with a quilting party March 20. Those present were Medians Edna LaDau, Alma Merriman, Irma Cushman, Jennie Hutchinson and Laurabel LaDau.

MARVIN GEORGE and his band, Oriental Gardens TONIGHT.

PRESBYTERIANS PLAN RECEPTION FOR EX-PASTORS

A reception will be held at the First Presbyterian church Monday at 7:30 p. m. to honor Mr. and Mrs. Weston F. Shields and Rev. and Mrs. E. P. Lawrence. The reception is open to the public and all who would like to meet these friends are cordially invited to be present, whether of the congregation or not.

Rev. Shields held the pastorate of the church from January, 1903, until March, 1916. During this time the brick building was remodeled, pipe organ installed and an addition built for Sunday school, dinners and men's club room. After retiring from active service in Enterprise, Ore., Mr. and Mrs. Shields returned to make their home in Medford.

Rev. Lawrence was pastor here from May, 1921, to fall of 1928. Under his leadership the new church edifice was built. Mr. Lawrence took an active part in the Ministerial association and civic welfare work. On leaving Medford, he accepted the pastorate in Caldwell, Idaho, where he is still located. Their daughter, Ruth, now Mrs. Charles Buchner, of Ontario, Ore., will accompany them to Medford.

Decorations for the reception will be by the Crater Lake guild under the direction of Mrs. Frank Bay, chairman. There will be a display of pictures and other articles connected with the history of the church, such as letters written by Father Williams in 1858 and 1862. The Missionary society, with Mrs. Frank Albert and Mrs. E. Iverson as the committee in charge, will serve refreshments.

An excellent program has been worked out by Mrs. H. B. Prentice, Mrs. O. L. Overmyer and Rev. Ralph S. Peterson. A playlet by Helen Norris, entitled "Memoirs of the Old Church," and based on her short story, "After Glow," will be given. A skit, "A Congregational Meeting of 1985," is expected to provide a great deal of amusement.

This reception is one feature in a week of celebration of the 50th anniversary of the Presbyterian church. Rev. Lawrence will give the address Sunday morning, March 24. The birthday dinner, to which all of the congregation are invited, will be held March 29. Dinner reservation tickets are to be obtained not later than March 26 from Mrs. S. A. Kroschel or at the Karmel Korn Shop, 115 East Main street, from Mrs. Edith Garrett. The celebration culminates Sunday, March 31, with admission to the church of new members and communion services conducted by Rev. Ralph S. Peterson.

Big Applegate

BIG APPLIGATE, March 21.—(Sp.)—Beaver creek school board recently employed Mrs. Wallace Haskins to teach that school next term. Mrs. Haskins returned a short time ago to Pekin, Ill., to resume teaching there, having spent more than a month in Portland with her husband, who is a patient at the Veterans' hospital, where he is recovering from a major operation.

Applegate grade members attending at St. Patrick's grade dance at Jacksonville Friday evening included Ben Ellis, Charles Elmore, and Ashton Forest.

Miss Jessie Smith of Rich spent last week at Medford at the home of her brother, Lester Smith, while undergoing treatment. Early in the week Miss Smith went to Eugene, where she underwent an operation necessitated by an infected tooth.

Miss Doris Clark, student at the Southern Oregon normal school, and Miss Jessie Clark, student at the Medford business college, spent the week-end with their mother, Mrs. Jules Taylor, on lower Applegate. Harlan Clark, CCC worker, also spent Sunday with his mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Allison Moulton of Medford came to the Applegate Sunday, where they were joined by Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kubli and Mr. and Mrs. Leon Offenbacher in horseback riding. The group enjoyed a winter roast during the day, and in the evening returned to the Kubli home, where lunch was served.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Caldwell and son of Medford were recent guests at the home of Mr. Caldwell's sister, Mrs. Ora Phillips.

Glenn McDaniel is expected to return here soon from a two weeks' business trip to Yakima, Wash. Mr. and Mrs. Ted Fish and sons of Medford were guests of Mrs. Fish's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Brown, Sunday.

Miss Helen Kubli of Medford spent Tuesday here as a guest of her grandmother, Mrs. Maud Kubli.

An exchange of recipes between members of the Applegate home extension unit proved a popular feature of the second project meeting on menu planning conducted by Mrs. Mabel Mack Tuesday. Twenty women attended the meeting held at the club room at the Applegate school house. The demonstration featured proper ways of setting the table on numerous occasions, methods of serving, and preparation of simple refreshments for after-noon guests. The luncheon menu served at 1 o'clock included creamed chicken on toast, corn, string beans, pear salad, fruit jello, angel food cake, and coffee. Next meeting of the unit will be in the afternoon of April 2nd, and will be devoted to social activities.

Recent guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Port included A. H. Cousins and Frank Carrol of the regional forest office at Portland. Miss Jane Smith and friends from Medford, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Young and son of Butte Falls.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. McDaniel spent Sunday as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Timmons at their Coker Butte home near Medford.

Mrs. Raymond Phillips of Squah lake is spending the week with her mother, Mrs. Lella McKee, at Clarksville, who is recovering from two months' illness.

Mrs. Gene Mee was hostess to the members of the whist club at her home at Rich Saturday. The party marked the final card game of the season among the group of players and was climaxed by announcement of the couple holding highest score throughout the series of parties, Mrs. Chester Kubli and Leon Offenbacher. Low score was held by Mrs. Edward Kubli and Gene Mee. Awarding of prizes to the two couples will be made shortly.
