RUSSIANS CHARGE ENGLAND HELPING GERMAN AMBITION

Red Army Will Be Increased Ten Times if Necessary—Europe Will Never Pay Nazis Tribute, Is Warning

MOSCOW, March 21.—(AP)—The red army will be "increased ten times," if necessary for the defense of the country in the face of what was termed Germany's preparation for war, the newspaper Pravda said today.

In the most direct and emphatic utterance in Moscow since the start of the present tense European situation, the authoritative publication charged England with aiding the plans of Reichsfuehrer Hitler by deserting France, Italy and other countries which wanted to co-ordinate their forces against the "German project to divide up Europe."

"If the German government emphatically refused to give any kinds of guarantees of safety," Pravda continued, "and armed itself heavily in order to impose a new war on Europe, it dared to take this step only owing to the position of British imperialism."

Frontiers in Danger.
 "Nazi Germany has decided to put the frontiers of all countries of Europe under question in view of the fact English imperialism with all its forces is preventing co-ordinated action by those against whom the armaments of Nazi Germany represent a direct danger."

"But," warned the paper, "the peoples of Europe and above all the people of the great soviet union will never pay tribute to the German nazis. Those who are playing with the fire must be warned that if compelled to fight, the enraged masses will fall on their heads with terrible strength."

Advancing the charge that England deserted the other powers in the current situation, Pravda said "immediately after Germany's announcement of the creation of a conscript army, France, as is known, together with the Italian government offered to file jointly with England an energetic protest."

Britain Sent Own Note.
 "In London this offer was rejected and the British government happened to send its own note."

In summation, Pravda declared, "the German government has insisted on its will, England has capitulated. This is no less important for Germany than was the introduction of compulsory military service itself."

"The average Englishman reading the British note to Berlin must feel that the ministers of his majesty, the English king, have lost their heads in the fear of Nazi Germany. The British ministers are going to Berlin after Germany has torn up the London agreement. They go when the basic agreement no longer exists."

"The German nazis obviously want to dictate their will to the peoples of Europe. The tactics of British imperialism correspond with this aim. Hitler would like to change France into a secondary power and a vassal of the German empire."

Germany on Dangerous Road.
 "The German government is exerting every effort to prevent the agreement of countries in Europe, which wish to maintain peace. The policy of British imperialism also is directed to prevent such an agreement and facilitate in this manner Germany's plans for revenge."

"This is a dangerous road. German bombardment planes are maneuvering today over Berlin, but tomorrow they will appear over London."

Characteristic of the whole article in Pravda is the blunt phrase: "From beginning to end the tactics of England have helped Nazi Germany toward the gradual fulfillment of her program in preparation for a new war in Europe."

Karl Radek, in an article in Izvestia, declared Hitler was correct when he said in his manifesto on the new conscript army that the U. S. S. R. had 101 divisions of troops, totaling slightly over a million men.

The last official figures made public placed the army's strength at 900,000. Radek asserted the statement about the soviet army was "the only truth in the whole manifesto."

LOCAL LADIES SHOWN IN GROUP PHOTOGRAPH HOME ECONOMIC MEET

BIG APPLEGATE, March 21.—(Sp.)—At least 36 Jackson county women need never say they haven't enjoyed the thrill of breaking into print between magazine covers. The Oregon Farmer featured a full page in the March 7th issue on the Home Interests conference at Corvallis last month, listing the names of all women registered at the conference, and publishing a picture of the home economics council, which is composed of the executive committee from each of the counties having a home demonstration agent.

The article, written by Edith D. Smith, gave a brief but complete review of events during conference week, with particular comment on activities of the Oregon council. Jackson county women who appeared in the group photo of the council included Mrs. Rita Myers and Mrs. W. H. Young, Eagle Point; Mrs. Susie Maus, Phoenix; Mrs. K. Ethel Lathrop, Central Point; Mrs. Mabel Thornton, Fish Lake; Mrs. Lee Port, Applegate; and Mrs. Mabel C. Mack, demonstration agent.
