ADVERTISING IS TOPIC OF SHELL DEALER MEETING

A gathering of 126 members of the Shell Oil company's organization in the southern Oregon area assembled at the Parish hall in this city last night to witness the presentation of 1935 promotional plans by Shell officials from Seattle, San Francisco and Eugene. It was an enthusiastic session with sales and advertising talks generally interspersed with stage shows, moving pictures and entertainment. G. M. Campbell, advertising head of the Shell organization in the northwest; R. G. Landis, representing Shell's advertising staff in San Francisco; R. N. Stevenson, manager of the Eugene district; and Fred Johnson, Medford manager, were the principal speakers.

As special features of the entertainment furnished by the staff of the Medford and Talent depot, Mrs. Jack Butler delighted the service men and their wives with two vocal numbers. Jack Thompson, station supervisor, rendered the popular "Dating Young Man on the Flying Treppe," with his audience joining in on the chorus.

Selling features of Shell gasoline were outlined in a talking film entitled "From One to Another," with introductions by R. N. Stevenson. This was followed by a three-act play, "Company Manners," which featured the following cast from Shell personnel: Miss Josephine Patterson, Charles S. Garvin, A. E. Jepson and M. L. Woolley, all of Seattle; Rudy Galt and G. M. Campbell of Portland.

MAX BAER DENIES PLANNING TO WED MIAMI SOCIALITE

OAKLAND, Calif., March 21.—(UP)—While a chiropractor repaired his feet for further ring engagements, heavyweight champion Max Baer took time to deny that he will wed Mary Kitzke Brown. "I have until he makes some more money. 'No, no—a thousand times no—I'm not going to marry her,' Baer said between the ministrations of the foot specialist and a reporter's questions. 'I'm not going to marry anybody until I quit the ring. 'I can't quit the ring for a long time yet, not until I get some money. That's another reason I couldn't get married. I'm having enough trouble supporting myself, so how could I support a wife?'

Max glanced down at his feet. 'I have ingrown toenails,' the champion explained. 'I'm just up here to have them fixed up so they won't hurt so much when guys like Carnera tramp on them. The doc's fixing the nails and massaging my arches and just working on them generally.'

Baer said he understood that Miss Brown had been separated from her husband "eight or nine months." Hence news of a Florida divorce suit filed by her husband Robert Alexander Martyn, came as no surprise. "That doesn't affect me," he said. "I'm just staying home with my family."

makers profits should be limited, the munition makers are selling millions of dollars worth of armaments to the United States government. Members of the senate investigating committee have expressed their belief that even if a bill is finally drawn up which would place the control of munition factories in the hands of the federal government that it will not be passed during this session. If that is a fact it will probably mean many months or even years before the bill will even get to congress, which will certainly be a point for the armament manufacturers.

I personally hope that we have congressmen who fully realize the importance of the findings of the senate committee and who will do their utmost to pass a bill which will put the arms factories under complete control of the government during times of war. P. CYRIL SANDER, March 21, 1935.

That's Different

Every day for the last several days the papers have been full of news concerning Germany's new stand on the Versailles Treaty and the other agreements which limited her armaments. The papers have given special note to the remarks by French, Italian, and British statesmen to the effect that this new move by Germany has seriously affected the peace of Europe. In my opinion it has, but I wonder if those same statesmen had a single thought about peace when they were suggesting and voting for new and larger expenditures for their own armies, navies, and air forces? In almost every country in the world and even here in the United States there have been huge campaigns for preparedness. We must be sure and be prepared for the next war, but when Germany begins to arm and prepare for the next war then that is something different—she is endangering the safety and peace of the world.

INTERNAL BATH FATAL FOR CHILD

LOS ANGELES, March 21.—(AP)—H. Lewis Colby, who "punished" his 2-year-old son with a stomach bath from a water faucet, was held on a murder charge today after a coroner's jury held the father responsible for the boy's death.

Deputy District Attorney John Barnes filed the complaint immediately after the jury heard the mother, Mrs. Gertrude Colby, describe the "punishment" of her child, which resulted in death two hours later.

The husband looked steadfastly out of the window while his wife sobbed hysterical accusations against him. She said she found the child in the bath room, moaning, his stomach distended.

"I asked my husband what he was doing," she said. "He told me, 'I filled him up with water.'"

She said a physician previously had warned Colby not to attempt that sort of punishment.

Starting with a murder and three or four other crimes tossed in for good measure, it is a rare dish for amateur crime sleuths, as well as holding much entertainment for those who like their laughs mingled with their shudders.

"Living on Velvet" starring Kay Francis, George Brent and Warren William, closes its run tonight at the Rialto.

Musical Show Now At Craterian Has Clever Dance Acts

Telling a story said to be as sparkling as its music and dancing the popularization of the Jerome Kern hit, "Roberta," opened yesterday at the Craterian theater with Irene Dunne, Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers in the starring roles.

The theme is romance in a Paris gown shop. Two young Americans, portrayed by Astaire and Randolph Scott, are stranded in Paris. One becomes the proprietor of a fashionable gown shop by an accident of inheritance. The other sets the Parisians agog with his twinkling feet and mad humor.

Of course there are mademoiselles. One is an exiled Russian princess, turned gown designer. Another is an American girl masquerading behind an accent and a title. Miss Dunne plays the princess. Miss Rogers is the fiery American who has become the toast of Paris.

Miss Dunne sings several of Kern's finest compositions. Astaire and Miss Rogers do what is said to be the most spectacular dancing of their careers. They also sing and Astaire demonstrates that his fingers are as nimble as his feet by playing a "hot" piano.
