At Rialto

Shirley Temple, whose impish characterizations won for her a special Academy Award for the "most outstanding contribution to motion pictures" during the last year, is at the Rialto theater for today and Monday in a special return showing of "Now and Forever," in which the little star shares headline honors with Gary Cooper and Carole Lombard.

New Will Rogers Film at Craterian

If you have been saving up laughs, prepare to shed them now, for Will Rogers' latest comedy, "Life Begins at 40," opening today at the Craterian theater, contains a bundle of hilarious situations that will act as magnets to the laughter chained within us all.

The breezy comedy, suggested by the Walter B. Pitkin book hit, is described as a hilarious fun fest that works into a pandemonium of mirth. The inimitable Will is cast as a country editor who proves that the way to get a kick out of life is to put a double kick into it.

Kolb and Dill

Kolb and Dill, favorites of theatergoers everywhere, and particular favorites of Medford where they hold the boxoffice record for the most successful stage show to ever play here, have again donned their makeup and costumes and are coming to the Craterian theater for a one day engagement Wednesday in their new show "This and That."
