

HITLER SECRETIVE REGARDING PLANS ON ARMY INCREASE

non-interference agreement which would mean the perpetuation of the present Austrian regime.

The question of a large German navy was kept in the background and was barely mentioned, it was learned.

Just before the conversations came to a close, a British embassy spokesman intimated the German leader had insisted Germany's rearmament be an accomplished fact from which he cannot recede and that it is up to other nations to say what they are willing to do toward bringing about disarmament.

Together all day, the two powers, with their assistants, talked through the morning at the chancellery, lunched together at the British embassy, and then returned to the Wilhelmstrasse, to Hitler's office for more conversations in the afternoon.

The expressions on the faces of the conference were worried, tired and serious, and it was believed today's parley was not passing off as smoothly as the initial talks yesterday.

A British spokesman was careful to emphasize that the conversations could not be called "negotiations," as Sir John and Captain Anthony Eden, British lord privy seal, were merely listening to what Hitler had to say and were informing the Reichsmann to what fears and anxieties animate Great Britain and her friends.

Observers generally remarked that Sir John and Captain Eden, as they passed from the embassy back to the chancellery, looked far more serious than they did yesterday and did not smile at the crowd.

Edward Ernest Ash passed away at his home at Trail, Ore., at 8:30 a. m. March 25, 1935. Mr. Ash was born at Ashton, Mich., June 16, 1871, and had been postmaster at Trail for the past 21 years. He was an ardent and sincere Christian and active in church and community work, and will be greatly missed by his many friends.

He leaves to mourn his passing, his widow, Frances M. Ash, two daughters, Rena M. Howe and Irma D. Cushman, and three sons, Howard L. Lowell W. and Wayne E. Ash, all of Trail. One daughter, Ruth, died in infancy. He also is survived by seven grandchildren, one brother, Frank of Flint, Mich., and three sisters, Soa White of Manassetteau, Wash., Mich., Della Howe of Centralls, Wash., and Alta McDonald of Mobile, Ala.

Funeral services will be held at the Trail church, Thursday, March 28, at 2 p. m., and burial at the Trail cemetery.

Even Death has a wonderful message. Though it robs us of those we love, it draws us from our surrounding, to long for the meeting above. No matter how heavy our loss is, No matter how great our despair, Doesn't heaven seem nearer and brighter?

To know that our loved ones are there.

Two Assessed Fines ON TRAFFIC CHARGES

Robert Mientz, former Stanford university football star, now a local resident, was fined $1 and costs in Justice of the Peace Coleman's court yesterday afternoon, on a plea of guilty to failure to stop at a public highway intersection.

Albert Johnson of Jacksonville was fined $5 and costs each, on two charges of failure to procure 1935 license plates, and failure to procure a driver's license.

Society and Clubs

American Authors Lend Subjects At Study Club Meet

Wednesday Study Club met at the Girls' Community club March 20, with Mrs. B. G. Harding, president, presiding. Following the business meeting Mrs. Harding reviewed the book, "The New Democracy," by Harold L. Ickes. The review showed careful preparation and unbiased interpretation of the book.

The author stresses the changes being made in American life; he lauds the present administration and characterizes the president as a bold and successful administrator, he calls attention to the superiority of the present regime as compared to the precedent of early statesmen and their opinions on liberty, Mrs. Harding said.

The book "The Age of Confidence," by Canby, was reviewed by Mrs. C. A. Meeker, who said it deals with American home and country life during the period of 1885 to 1900. The author is a Quaker by religion, she said, a student of Yale and editor of the New York Evening Post.

The story centers around the home and town life of Wilmington, Del., where the author describes the interior of the homes, manners and customs of the times, the means of entertainment, the village stores and factories, the cobble stone streets, the hitching posts, the factory section, as compared to the aristocratic part of the town. The author states that the book is written wholly from memory and he does not guarantee the facts, said Mrs. Meeker, giving a pleasing review that Mrs. R. E. Williams wish to read the book.

Mrs. R. E. Williams gave many interesting current topics on the international unrest and stated the present conditions are the blackest in the world's history.

A very interesting topic was read from a book written in 1904, prophesying the development of the air service by the year 2000, Mrs. Williams said. Many of the prophecies have already been fulfilled.

"Kid" Party Enjoyed At Home E. F. Spencer. Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Spencer entertained with a cleverly arranged "kid" party Saturday evening at their home, South Pacific highway. HUMAN 'BALLOON' GRANGE SEEKING MAKING RECOVERY TO CLEAR TITLE

PORTLAND, March 26. — (P) — Continued improvement in the condition of Fred Gates, 42, suffering from an unusual emphysema or "pneumonia" condition, was noted by hospital attendants today.

In an automobile accident Sunday he suffered a rupture in either the pleural or nasal passages, causing his main body cavity to become bloated with every breath he took. His body swelled to about twice normal size and the inflation spread to his arms as far as the wrists. The condition may be eased, physicians said, by rupture of the lungs, windpipe or a broken nose or fracture of the sinus cavities.

There will be no regular meeting tomorrow noon, as had been announced previously. Instead, the Lions will journey to Bonney's Grill for a stag party Wednesday evening.

CARROLL PLEADS GUILTY IN GIRL'S DEATH BY CRASH

Oregon law gives the court the right to call an advisory jury. The present case is the first time it has been invoked in this county in many years.

"The court does not feel like assuming the entire responsibility in the matter of sentencing this young man," said Judge Norton, in explanation of his action. "The court desires to receive all the evidence in the case, both in extenuation and in aggravation. By calling an advisory jury, the court feels a decision will be reached fairly alike to the state and defendant."

"In connection with this case the court will say that the grand jury which brought this involuntary manslaughter indictment against Carroll, wrote a letter to the court, recommending clemency, and asking that Carroll be not sent to the state penitentiary. Many friends of the defendant have asked that he be granted leniency. Other citizens have asked the court that he be punished."

"Every day we witness auto drivers going at terrific speed on the streets, without regard to the safety of pedestrians," said the court. "In many cases, this is gross negligence, and has resulted in an abnormal number of deaths by autos in the land. The public demands that this gross negligence, amounting to criminal willfulness in some instances, be curbed."

Carroll, when first arraigned, was undetermined as to his plea, and stated he was without counsel. The court named Attorney E. E. Kelly to represent him, and announced that whatever the plea, a jury would be called. After a short consultation with Attorney Kelly, Carroll pleaded guilty and the court ordered that an advisory jury be called.

The court directed that the witnesses in the case be restricted to those "able to present facts—and not opinions. The defendant was given the right to call witnesses to testify as to his ability as a careful driver."

The complaint sets forth that on May 6, 1931, the Phoenix Grange purchased a Phoenix lot from the Woodmen's lodge for $750, paying $150 down, with the balance to be paid in installments of $100.

The complaint then sets forth that "certain uncertainties as to title arose." The Grange asks that the county clerk be authorized to receive the balance due and turn it over to the clerk of the Woodmen's lodge, whereupon the Grange shall be given a clear title.

State and Phoenix lodge officials of the Woodmen are named as defendants in the action, which is in the nature of a friendly suit.

DOCTOR SAID SHE NEEDED 'BULK' FOR HER CONSTIPATION

Kellogg's ALL-BRAN Brings Relief to Mrs. Manceley

Read the following unsolicited letter:

"Up to five years ago, I knew no end of suffering caused by constipation. I used all kinds of laxatives but only found relief till I got used to them. My physician told me to get some Kellogg's ALL-BRAN, and instructed me how to use it."

"I did just as I was told by my doctor, and today I send my highest praise for what your ALL-BRAN has done for me." — Mrs. Jas. Manceley, Jr., 9 Kilburn St., Valley Falls, R. I.

"Due to insufficient 'bulk' in meals, ALL-BRAN provides gentle 'bulk' to help overcome common constipation. It is also a good source of vitamin B and iron.

"Bulk" of ALL-BRAN is often more effective than the "bulk" in fruits and vegetables, as it does not break down within the body. Two tablespoons daily are usually sufficient. If not corrected this way, see your doctor.

Isn't this food plus pleasure and safer than risking patent medicines? Get the red-and-green package at your grocer's. Made by Kellogg in the Battle Creek, Michigan.
