WASHINGTON, March 27.—(AP)—Immediate steps to revise the lumber code to meet justice department objections today were prompted by Donald R. Richberg, NRA chairman.

Previously, the lumber code authority had asked its suspension on grounds the government had "incapacitated" the agreement by withdrawing its appeal in the Alabama Belcher case from a supreme court test. This case involved NRA's constitutionality.

"I think the lumber people," Richberg said at his press conference, "have taken too far a swing. The code is in force. It is quite a different thing to say that one part of the code is invalid than to say the entire code is invalid."

Richberg said 22 cases either were pending or on their way to circuit courts of appeal. Any one of these cases, he said, would screw satisfactorily to test the recovery act.

"I would like to make it clear," Richberg said, "that the decision to withdraw the Belcher case was made by the department of justice. I am not expressing any disagreement with the department of justice but I don't want it understood the withdrawal was made because of pressure by NRA."

Here Thursday

The amusing account of what happens to a perfect English butler-valet when he is exposed to American ideas of democracy, is the plot and story of "Ruggles of Red Gap," which comes tomorrow to the Craterian theater with Charles Laughton in the title role.

The picture, adapted from HARRY LEON WILSON'S famous story, first published in the Saturday Evening Post, features Mary Boland, Charlie Ruggles, Roland Young, Zasu Pitts and Leila Hyams in support of Laughton.

"Ruggles" adventures begin when his titled master loses him to an American tourist and his wife in a poker game. On his first day in his new job, Ruggles takes his exuberant master out to view London's art galleries and winds up with him in a drunken spree.
