

Wagner to Seek Revenge Against Masked Marvel in Match Tonight

DOUBLE CARD HAS WIDE VARIETY OF TALENT TO OFFER

Wagner-Marvel Match Holds Prospects for Rough Stuff — Hubka and Columbo Rated As Clean Wrestlers

Whichever way the fans like it, smooth or rough, the wrestling card at the Armory tonight promises plenty of action, and the two bouts that promoter Lillard has lined up are both pointed to be so full of color that he has decided to get the four grapplers in the ring together before the contest and flip a coin to decide which match comes first.

Joe Hubka vs. Casey Columbo and Masked Marvel vs. Don Wagner is the way the big-time card reads, the former match promising one hour, or two out of three falls of highly polished scientific wrestling, and the latter a similar period of blood thirsty muscle mauling. Which type is more popular is a question, but with both kinds assured, an evening of excellent mat entertainment is anticipated.

Wagner, the rangy ex-grid star from Oregon State college, who was the unmerciful Marvel's victim in a bout here several weeks ago, and who, in a riot, has been clamoring for a return engagement ever since. He declares that he's going to forsake clean wrestling and wade into the hooded one with all four, and he's counting on a long reach and a pair of lenky legs to tie the Marvel into knots and "pour it to him."

The mystery man, in a bad frame of mind over the loss of his black cape, which he vaulted at 40, to some souvenir hunter after last week's near-riot, glares a malicious eye from behind his black mask and declares that what he did once he can do again. He gave the young Oregon Stater a thorough beating in their last rough-and-tumble encounter, and climaxed matters by slugging Wagner after the end of the match. Enraged fans nearly mobbed the Marvel, but the boxing commission and members of the police force will be on hand tonight to prevent too much violence.

What the Hubka-Columbo match lacks in roughness, it will make up in speed and real sportsmanship, as both these bone-benders delight in clean, hard wrestling. Hubka is an old favorite in Medford who never fails to draw crowds as well as cheers, the best-liked grappler to appear here in a long time. In the ring he is a whirlwind when it comes to speed and they call him the "Iron Man" because of his surprising strength. He is adept in applying many scientific holds, specializing in a flying body sensors with which he rolls over backwards to pin an opponent's shoulders.

Columbo has wrestled here only once—he has been in the professional game only 18 months—and yet in that one appearance he impressed fans greatly with his smooth, fast technique. He used to be a weight lifter for the Hollywood Athletic club, developing huge arms and shoulders that were easily adapted to the grip and grunt business. He is bigger than Hubka and just as clever, which should give the Cornhusker much to think about.

Fireman Ray Frisbie will be third man in the ring. The promoter says that with the usual admission rates in effect, a full house is expected.

SAARZEN IS FAVORED TO TAKE TOP MONEY IN AUGUSTA TOURNEY

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 4.—(AP)—A great little Italian, Gene Sarazen, drew the attention of the betting fraternity today as the mighty guns of American golf were cocked for the second annual $5,000 Augusta national tournament.

They call it Bobby Jones' tournament, for it is the outgrowth of an ideal cherished by the retired world's champion, but as the field moved into action in the 72 hole campaign, it was Sarazen who claimed the spotlight.

Quoted odds on Gene were 6 to 1, with Jones second choice at 8 to 1.

There were no less than seven present titleholders on hand to fire for the coveted honor, headed by Old Tom Morris, the black thatched powerhouse from Los Angeles and 1934 national open champion.

Sarazen and Armour play the first 18 hole round together, getting away at 10:30 a. m. (EST) today while Jones, playing with Smith, moves off at 1 p. m.

Faces Meanie Again

Last time he tried it he was given a thorough beating, climaxed by a blow on the back of the head from a flying chair, but lanky Don Wagner (above), former Oregon State football player, is going to tackle Masked Marvel, mysterious choke and chuckle artist again, in one of the matches at the Armory tonight.

TROUT FISHERMEN READY FOR FIRST CASTS TOMORROW

With trout fishing season open an hour before sunrise tomorrow morning, many local piscatorial enthusiasts are oiling up their reels today in anticipation of a day of real sport.

According to the game conservation department of the state police, who have been making a survey of the streams in this sector, the following are listed as clear at the present time, and apt to afford good sport: Big Butte creek, Four Bit creek in that section and Ranch-creek below Butte Falls, Evans creek above Wimer (both forks), Upper Applegate and Carberry creeks, Little Applegate above the placer mine, about three miles above the forks. Also clear are Thompson and Williams creeks, Nell creek, above Ashland, and Jenny creek near Pinehurst, are listed as fine trout streams, although both are small.

Those enthusiasts who have planned a trip to Fish Lake are doomed to disappointment. According to word received by the state police from Mrs. Hanking, who has the store at the lake, there is now 35 inches of snow on the level there, and the lake is frozen completely over. Hyatt lake, while probably not frozen, is inaccessible by auto.

Rogue river is still high, and will not afford good fishing for some time, especially for trout, except in the upper sections. Some salmon are reported in the river, but very few above the Savage Rapids dam. Fishing in Elk and Trail creeks may prove worth while if bait is used, but those two streams are still too murky to afford good fly sport.

Pleasant creek is muddy for most of its length, but if fishermen have the energy, they will probably find good luck waiting them from the end of the road on up, the police said.

BLIND WRESTLER WINS IN AMATEUR TOURNEY

PORTLAND, Ore., April 4.—(AP)—Semi-finals and finals of the Pacific northwest A. A. U. wrestling tournament were on the program here tonight after 193 entrants had swarmed through the preliminaries in a rousing opening round last night.

The feature of the tournament was the showing of Howard Dent, Jr., totally blind heavyweight from Seattle. It took him only one minute and 42 seconds to put away Pete Gette, Multnomah club star. Dent was formerly wrestling champion of University of Washington.

Humane society officials ask that all dog owners protect their animals by keeping them out of the business district and wear their license tags in accordance with state and city laws.

Lesson 7—Various Styles of Balls

There are four different styles of balls, namely: straight, backup, hook, and curve. Each style has its particular advantages and disadvantages.

The straight ball is very easily controlled and is rolled without making any attempt to turn the wrist either one way or the other, pointing thumb straight at 1-3 pocket (see Diagram 1), or spare, and will secure results if delivered with enough force to hold direction.

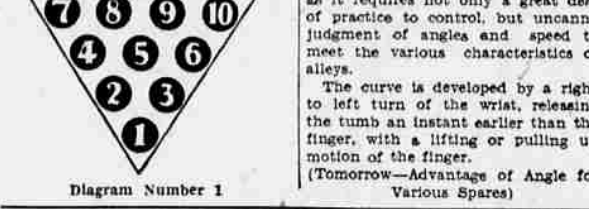

The backup ball is similar to the straight ball, the backup being developed by a turn of the wrist from left to right. In rolling a backup ball, the ball should be pointed to the left of the intended mark. Some styles of backup balls are very good "strike getters" and are used to advantage on many spare shots, especially split spares.

The hook ball, consisting of a short breaking hook from right to left, is generally considered the most popular of all styles of balls, due to its effectiveness and being the least difficult to control. Bowlers rolling a ball of this character accomplish this by giving the ball only a small turn from right to left and only a fair amount of speed. This style of ball can be handled to best advantage by placing it farther in from right hand corner than the straight or backup, the distance depending upon characteristics of the alley and the bowler's ability to point it properly.

The wide sweeping curve, or "looping" ball, is considered very effective, but extremely difficult to control. Bowlers rolling a ball of this character are usually very inconsistent. Very few experts use this type of delivery, as it requires not only a great deal of practice to control, but uncanny judgment of angles and speed to meet the various characteristics of alleys.

The curve is developed by a right to left turn of the wrist, releasing the thumb an instant earlier than the finger, with a lifting or pulling up motion of the finger.

35 WOMEN ENJOY GOLF AND LUNCH

CHILDERS REACHES SEMI-FINAL WITH PRINGLE'S DEFEAT

E. L. Childers climbed into the semi-finals of the President's cup golf tournament yesterday, with an upset win over H. H. (Hank) Pringle, 1 up on the 19th. Besides being Childers' best game in some time, the victory was a feather in the cap of the handicap committee, as the competition was extremely close. The veteran Pringle gave his opponent nine strokes, shooting a 77 while Childers carded an 84.

Childers will meet Sprague Riegel, who defeated Archie Mansfield in the quarter-finals, on an even basis in the semi-finals, on an even basis in the semi-finals, on an even basis in the semi-finals. There are no favorites in the line-up and it looks as though the rest of the tournament will see plenty of close golf.

Ed. Simmons is winner of the men's ringer tournament for March, which ended Sunday night, it was made known today when Pro Jack Hueston announced the results. Eddie carded a 58, less 2, or a net 56. Archie Mansfield scored a 68, less 5, or a net 61 for second place, and R. B. Hammond, E. Raymond Driver and Bob Woods

Who buys your shirts and socks?

MORE than 80% of all men's shirts, stockings, underwear, neckties and handkerchiefs are purchased by women. Why? Men prefer to have their wives and mothers do the shopping because they realize that women are better shoppers—that they have a sixth sense for qualities and values.

How do women keep themselves informed? They have formed the habit of reading the advertisements in the newspapers. And they read them regularly, whether they want to buy anything or not. Then they know exactly where to go to purchase what they need, and they know to a penny just what they will have to pay.

From the advertisements any one can learn where to buy better clothes, better foods, better household goods, better everything. Read them carefully. They have news and suggestions for you!
