BASKETBALL PLAYER SWALLOWS TONGUE

HILLS, Minn.—(AP)—Football has its broken collar bones and baseball its sprained ankles and spike wounds, but here's a brand new "injury" for basketball—a swallowed tongue.

While the local high school court five was engaged in its last game of the season with Magnolia, Jack Dean, Hills forward, jumped for the ball and fell to the floor in a semi-conscious condition, breathing with great difficulty.

Rushing onto the floor, the Hills' coach discovered Dean's tongue was flipped backward as if swallowed. The coach pulled the lad's tongue back into position, and, after a moment's rest, Dean went back into the game.

INCOME TAX WORRIES BLAMED FOR SUICIDE

CINCINNATI—(UP)—Fear that she might be cited for income tax evasion was believed to have driven Mrs. Rosa J. Grossman, 85, retired Cincinnati school teacher, to suicide.

Mrs. Grossman's body was found in her room at a local hotel, a bottle of poison nearby. The coroner listed her death a suicide.

An obsession that the government might cite her was learned by Dr. W. Edwards Schenck, who reported the case to the coroner. The aged woman's income was a pension received monthly from Columbus and returns from investments. The exact amount of either income was unknown.

RABIES SYMPTOMS TOLD BY OSC VET; NO CURE POSSIBLE

CORVALLIS — (Spl.)—While rabies is one of the oldest and one of the most virulent of animal diseases, demanding strong measures to stamp out, dog owners need not become excited and consider every sick animal as having rabies, now that it is definitely known that the disease is in Oregon.

This is the opinion of Dr. B. T. Simms, head of the veterinary department at Oregon State college and himself a lover of dogs and an authority on many of their maladies. There are many other diseases which will cause dogs to have spasms or fits, he says, and if rabies are suspected the matter had better be reported to the state veterinarian rather than to the neighbors.

"Symptoms vary considerably but in most cases are more or less characteristic, says Dr. Simms. "Usually the first thing the owner notices is a change in the disposition and habits of the dog. If naturally playful he may become inattentive, or an old, dignified dog may become playful as a puppy.

"In the early stages most dogs appear more or less nervous so that the least noise will disturb them. There may be no tendency to bite or snap in the early stages, but in from 24 to 72 hours the disease usually reaches the furious form when the dog is likely to attack any moving object regardless of its size or nature.

"In this stage they keep moving practically all the time and may wander 10 to 25 miles from home, though they may return home to die. Throughout the entire attack the eyes are dilated and there is a peculiar vacant expression which may turn to rage at sight of a moving object. Death usually comes in from two to five days from first symptoms."

There is no treatment for rabies after symptoms develop, adds Dr. Simms. Control and prevention depend upon public cooperation with authorities in quarantine vaccination regulations. It can be stamped out, as it has been in the past, but only through proper handling of every dog in the area where the disease occurs.

"Absolute quarantine is the most effective method of control," Dr. Simms concludes. "If every dog is kept at home 24 hours a day, the spread of rabies can be stopped, just as it had been in the British Isles every time it has been introduced there in the last 30 or 35 years."

OLD CHINESE GOD RETAINS POWER

HSUCHOW, China (UP)—Incredible China, with its strange blending of races and religions, has chalked up another victory for the medieval over the modern.

More than 3,000 citizens of this little inland community have risen in arms and crushed their leader—because he sought to abolish one of their ancient superstitions.

For more years than anyone can recall, Hsuchow has worshipped a Town God, an ugly idol which resided in a special temple in the heart of the city.

When hunger came the god was angry. Pestilence meant that he was riled for sure. But when the rains came and the rice filled every stomach at regular intervals, the Town God was pleased and everybody was happy.

Now the Sikwan Magistrate realized that it is hard to maintain order, hard to improve the lot of a people so strangely obsessed. He ordered the god destroyed.

Merchants deserted their musty shops and farmers trekked in from the fields. There was a mass meeting in the Town God temple.

The mob of 3,000 marched on the magistrate's home, beat and stoned him, smashed his furniture. But for the intervention of a group of Peace Preservation men, the magistrate would have been slain.

EXIT OF FURNACE SEEN BY SAVANT

ITHACA, N. Y.—(UP)—The same machine which supplies your refrigeration will pick up the heat from the outdoors and warm your home, eliminating furnaces, in the future, according to Prof. H. W. Riley of the New York State College of Agriculture.

"This is not a fantastic feature," he insisted. "Before long, home owners may use refrigerating machines to heat their homes by a very simple process.

"The heat will be picked up from outdoors and discharged into the house. No coal or wood will be needed and the furnace man no longer will have to shake down the grates and carry out the ashes."

Asked how the machine would obtain "heat" from the outdoors when temperatures fell to below zero, the professor replied:

"The mercury would have to drop to about 460 degrees below zero before all the heat would be missing."

The professor described the heating apparatus of the future as one in which copper tubing, an expansion valve and a charge of gas will be used to select the heat from the air and bring it inside to warm the house.

WIDOW VICTIMIZED BY KIND FRIENDS

CLEVELAND, O.—(UP)—"Save your money," the stranger told Mrs. Horvath when he called to offer condolences in the death of her husband, Joseph, in an automobile accident of several months ago.

It seemed good advice, so Mrs. Hovarth took the $1000 her late husband's life insurance brought her and put it in a cedar chest.

"I," said the second stranger, whom the first brought back with him the next day, "owed your husband $500. I am an honest man and will pay, but first I would like to make sure you do not squander your money."

Proudly, Mrs. Horvath got out the cedar chest and showed the $1000. The second stranger seemed pleased, offered to put it back for her. The two left to talk it over and the $1000 left with them. Just how, Mrs. Horvath did not know, but when she went to look it was gone

WEATHER BALLOONS LIKE BAD PENNIES

OMAHA, Neb.—(UP)—The local airways weather bureau has recovered 72 of the 78 balloon sounding meteographs released in 1932 and 1933 and more keep turning up like bad pennies.

The last one received here, according to Director R. V. Lawrence, was discovered in a far southeastern corner of Iowa by fox hunters.

It was one of a series of three released during an 18-hour period in March, 1933.

One was found the same day at Douds, Iowa, the second a year later at Philadelphia, Mo. Each of the balloons travel 300 miles, it was estimated, and landed 75 miles apart.

EARTH SLIDE REVEALS BIG WHITE SAPPHIRES

HOQUIAM, Wash.—(UP) Dozens of large white sapphires and great deposits of manganese ore were uncovered by an earth slide that tore away the side of a mountain in the Olympic mountain near Hoquiam.

Some of the sapphires were two inches in diameter and so hard they would cut glass. The slide was 2000 feet long, 400 feet wide and 40 feet deep. Investigation was begun to determine commercial possibilities of the find.

ARMY'S STRENGTH TO BE GREATEST IN PEACE TIMES

General Staff Also Sets In Motion Plans for Change in Promotion System in U. S. Army Service.

By Herbert Plummer

WASHINGTON—Unless there is a slip somewhere along the line to upset carefully laid plans, the United States army will have occasion to remember the present session of congress for years to come.

This branch of Uncle Sam's fighting forces is getting the breaks on capitol hill this year as seldom before.

Almost in routine fashion senators and representatives agreed to the proposal of General Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff, and others of the army high command, to increase the size of the nation's military establishment by 46,000 men—creating the largest standing army in time of peace the country ever has had.

Encouraged by this victory, the general staff has set in motion a drive to change its system of promotions in the army.

Approved by the president, Senators Sheppard of Texas, chairman of the senate military affairs committee, has introduced legislation which, if enacted, will overhaul completely the present promotion system.

A New Promotion System

As Senator Sheppard says of his bill:

"It will make a welcome and inspiriting change from the dreary and monotonous spectacle of 10,460 officers ranged one above the other on the advancement list from second lieutenant to colonel, virtual prisoners most of them behind the bars of a hopeless seniority system, each waiting for the next one above him tardily to be promoted, graciously to resign, thoughtfully to desert, obligingly to be court-martialed, generously to retire, or considerately to die."

Some idea as to the hardships imposed by the present system of promotions may be had when it is considered that if a second lieutenant enters his second lieutenancy at the age of 23, serves the required six years as such and 10 years as first lieutenant, he will become a captain at 39.

He must serve 24 years as captain, would become a major at 63, and would be compelled to retire for age after a service of one year as major.

Speedier Advancement

There is an actual case of an officer who, on July 1, 1920, the date when the national defense act went into effect, was at the bottom of the list of captains. At present he is so far from the top of the list that he cannot become a major until 1944, at which time he will have been a captain 24 years.

The Sheppard bill would advance a second lieutenant to first in three years and first lieutenants to captains in seven years.

The estimated increase in the cost to Uncle Sam in making the change is $705,000 for the first year, $620,000 for the second year, and $510,000 for the third and succeeding years of operation.

FOSSIL GRAVEYARD FOUND IN DESERT

PASADENA, Cal. (UP)—A graveyard of the queer misshapen beasts that roamed North America 30,000,000 years ago was being excavated in the Amargosa desert today by scientists of the California Institute of Technology.

Fossils of the prehistoric monsters, according to Dr. Chester Stock, paleontologist, are being found in a rock layer cropping out along the west side of the desert near Death Valley.

Most important of the finds so far is a perfect skull of a Titanotherе, a bulky beast resembling a horniess rhinoceros. Nearby the scientists picked up bones and bone scraps of now extinct rodents, seven-toed mammals, and a small, fast-running rhinoceros. Scientists will explore the entire seam for the telltale glint of a preserved tooth, or the discloration of the rock that betrays a hidden fossil.

Dr. Stock fixed the age of the "graveyard" as the lower Oligocene period, thousands of years before the Great Ice Age.

Existence of the fossils in the now bone-dry rocky wastes indicates, he said, that the area must have been covered with dense vegetation, well watered by rains, at that time.

ANKLE FRACTURES IN SECOND STORY TUMBLE

LONG BEACH, Cal. —(UP)— Miss Marion Bartlett, 22, had only a possible fractured ankle today after plunging head first through a second story window and landing feet first on a concrete pavement.

The young woman was in her boudoir dressing, she said. She attempted to open a French window and accidentally fell out. Miss Bartlett turned a complete somersault in the air.
