KATHERINE RAWLS WORLD'S GREATEST WOMAN SWIMMER

Miami Beach Girl of 17 Years Chalks Up Third Straight Win in Women's Indoor Championships

By Paul Mickelson (Associated Press Sports Writer)

CHICAGO, April 12.—(AP)—Swimming experts pointed out 17-year-old Katherine Rawls of Miami Beach, Fla., today and agreed: "There is the greatest all-around woman swimmer in the world."

Katy, a grinning, boyish-looking miss weighing only 107 pounds, convinced them beyond their last doubts last night when she streaked over the choppy waters of the Lake Shore Athletic club long course pool to victory in the 100 yard breast stroke, her third straight triumph in the national women's indoor swimming championships.

Will Try for Fourth

Tonight Katy will attempt to do what no other swimming champion has ever accomplished—make it four straight by winning the 220 yard free style, featured race of the night's program.

The Miami miss started her record-breaking surge Wednesday night by beating the nation's fastest mermaids in the 100 yard free style and the 300 yard individual medley in the record time of 4:00.2. Last night, behind at the final turn and with defeat regarded almost a certainty, she made the large crowd stand on its feet as she swished over the waves with a dramatic finish to win the 100 yard breast stroke from a field that included the world's record holder, Anne Goodwin of Chisholm, Minn., who could do no better than finish third behind Dorothy Schiller of the Home Lake Shore club.

Leads Individuals

Miss Rawls' performances easily clinched her the individual high point medal of the meet with 75 points, and gave her club, the Miami Beach S. C., the lead in the team championship race with 15 points.

The Washington Athletic club of Seattle was close behind with 13 points, however, winning 10 of them with its victory last night in the 400 yard relay in which Katy and her club were not represented.

Even with all this, Katy stayed out of the low board diving competition last night, surrendering her title to Dorothy Poynton Hill of Los Angeles, who conquered her field with a total of 112.50 points. Under the rules, no contestant can compete in more than four events.

In winning the 400 yard relay, The Washington Athletic club team, composed of Mary Lou Petty, Betty Lea, Doris Buckley and Olive McLean, shattered its own world's record by 5.9 seconds by negotiating the distance in 4:15.3. Miss Lea, a 16-year old star, was the chief cause of the victory, giving the westerners a lead they never surrendered. The Carnegie Library club of Homestead, Pa., was second with the Lake Shore quartet third.

STUDENTS OF VALLEY SCHOOL TAKE PART IN SUCCESSFUL OPERETTA

"At the End of the Rainbow," an operetta composed of the drama, art and dancing students of the Valley school, was presented in the school studio this morning before an appreciative audience, and everyone said it was the most successful of similar productions.

The studio was decorated with masses of cherry blossoms and also with posters made by the older students. The story of the operetta pictured the struggle between the frat people and the flower friends. Besides the cast of characters, there was a rhythm band composed of Byron Paddock, Charlotte Wing, Anne Durno, Nancy Newbury, Donnie Brown and Bob Butler.

The operetta was presented by Miss Mary Foster, drama, art and dancing coach, who is a graduate of the University of California and of Miss Palmer's progressive education kindergarten, and who also instructed at Great View kindergarten at Los Angeles before coming here.

"Laddie" Coming

The drama of American life, flavoured with the romance of international nature, provides the grip upon the interest and the heart-strings in "Laddie," a dramatization of the famous novel of that name by Gene Stratton-Porter, coming Sunday to the Craterian theatre.

Fundamentally, the story is a grand social drama—the nobility of the folk who toil, pitted against that nobility that comes by the peerage route.

The locale an Indiana farm land of the 1870's, and the story, as most of her many millions of readers know, is Gene Stratton-Porter's classic inspired by events of her earlier years. In "Little Sister," played by Virginia Weider, aged seven years, the celebrated author portrayed the childhood of herself. Laddie was her brother, much older. Pamela, known in the community as the "Princess," was the daughter of an English nobleman who had exiled himself. Laddie, played by John Beal, last seen opposite Katharine Hepburn in "The Little Minister," voices and wins the "Princess," as entrancingly told on screen.

STUDENTS' BODIES SCATTERED ALONG RAILROAD TRACKS

bus driver declared he did not see the train until he was on the track.

The Flyer—a train bound from St. Louis to Washington—struck the bus in the middle, sheared it in two, and carried the rear half many yards down the track before tossing it aside a mass of wreckage. Bodies strewn about the track for 200 yards, some were hurled into a cemetery nearby.

Find Stray Limbs

Eye witnesses told of finding amputated limbs at the scene and the decapitated body of a girl. The accident occurred outside the casement window of Rev. Cecil J. McNeal, who hurried outside and administered the last rites of the Catholic church to the dead and dying. He found two bodies on the engine's cowcatcher.

A vivid eye witness account came from Edward L. Stevens of Rockville, golf pro at the Manor club, who passed the bus in his motor car just before the crash.

"I was heading toward Norbeck," he said. "I saw the train coming, but I crossed anyway. I passed the bus, just as it came on the track. I grabbed my brake, and just as I stopped the train hit the bus.

"I jumped out of the car. There was a young fellow there on a laundry truck. I told him to run to the corner and blow the fire siren. By that time, Wilson Carr, of Rockville, had appeared and we started taking girls out of the ditch.

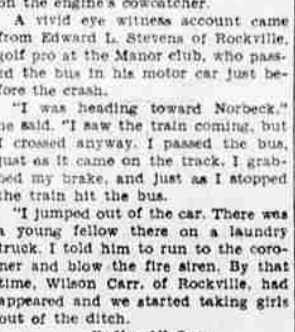

Bodies All Over

"We saw arms and legs and a girl's head. There were bodies all over. We found one girl 60 feet away in the cemetery. Bodies were strewn all along the track for 200 yards."

Ambulance and emergency squads clanged to the scene from Rockville and nearby towns. Nine bodies were taken to the Humphrey undertaking parlor here, where the teacher, Miss Louise Pund, 27, of Hagerstown, Md., sought to aid in the identification though she was bruised and shaken herself.

The first name listed among the known dead was that of Margaret Zimmerman, whose body was viewed
