

EX-BOSS OF NRA IN EMPHATIC PLEA FOR CONTINUANCE

which he contended NRA was necessary because the profit system had broken down "like the collapse of an empty shell."

In general, Johnson recommended extension of the present law, but he proposed the creation of "some administrative agency" to permit some "necessary" relaxation of the anti-trust laws, without allowing the "abuses" they were designed to prevent.

As the general proceeded he became increasingly emphatic. He screamed about on his chair until at one time he actually had one shoulder braced against the table while his voice poured out derision of "the big shots of industry" for opposing codes he said were meant to help "the little fellow."

Sports Disgust

He virtually snorted his disgust at the "grand and glorious doctrine of 'Laissez Faire'."

"Price fixing under NRA," he said scornfully, "is just a big bugaboo." He contended that only nine codes had any price fixing provisions and four of them had never been put into effect.

On the whole, Johnson said emphatically, NRA has "brought vast balance of good." He contended it had helped the little man, by preventing his destruction, and had helped labor. He conceded, however, that the law had not given labor "all the rights intended."

On the controversial subject of production control, Johnson said "if we can't regulate this economic engine the next step will be abolition of the profit system and page Mr. Stalin."

"No more explosive act of destruction could be committed than to kill it now and go back to the utter futility of the system we had here before 1933," Johnson testified.

PATMAN OPPOSES BONDS FOR BONUS PLAN IN CONGRESS

Senators consider an equitable settlement of their adjusted service pay. The V. F. W. leader reiterated support of the Patman measure.

Bond Value Explained

Experts who aided in drafting the Harrison bill explained, meanwhile, that under its terms a veteran holding a bonus certificate which would mature under the present law at $1000 in 1945 could exchange it for negotiable bonds for which he could obtain $770 in cash, or hold the certificate for ten years and collect $1,115.

It was said that the average veteran holding such a certificate already has borrowed $500 against it. He would have to pay off his loan and interest if he converted his bonus into cash. If he did this immediately under the Harrison plan, senate finance experts said, the veteran would be left with about $175.

COLUMBUS, O., April 18.—(AP)—

Frank N. Belgrano, Jr., commander of the American Legion, in a statement today said the Legion would insist that any bonus bill passed by congress must provide for full cash payment.

Belgrano said he and other Legion officials would appear before the senate finance committee next week to protest any sort of "compromise."

The Legion head indicated the new Harrison adjusted compensation bill would not be acceptable to the Legion. He said he had not read the bill and was sending for a copy to familiarize himself with it. "The Legion is not attempting to tell the government how to finance payment," he said, "since that is the function of properly constituted officials, but it feels that the government should pay this debt in full. The veterans need the money and payment will benefit every line of business."

Members of Bible Organization Meet At Novel Invitation

Twenty or more of the Gleaner cooks of the First Baptist church responded to the following invitation: "One of your Acts will be to assemble among the Numbers which will mark the Genesis of a Bible afternoon, which chronicles the Revelation of a splendid game of Scriptures. The social committee will be on the job, and they assure you there will be no lamentations, but there will be songs of Solomon and Psalms.

"James and John, Ruth and Naomi will be the Judges. Kings and other notables will be present, including the Queen of Sheba. Timothy and Titus, Joel and Obadiah will be on hand to welcome the guests, and Ezra and Joshua, Esther and Rebecca will assist in feeding the multitude.

"The tribe of Judah, being lost, will not be present, neither will the Hebrews or the Romans, but all of the elect ones will be there. The crowds will make their Exodus at a reasonable hour."

Place, home of Mrs. Ina Huson, Time, 2:30 Tuesday. Please bring your Bibles. On arrival of guests, luncheon was served and the place cards were Easter favors.

Class meeting was called to order by the president, Mrs. B. F. Neff. Songs, "Christ Arose," Prayer by Mrs. H. T. Smith. Alphabetical Scripture poem was used, each one using their Bibles to find their letter.

Duet, "Easter Bells," Mrs. J. L. Ely and Mrs. B. F. Neff. Business session, minutes read and approved; constitution read by secretary.

The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. Mary Stikland; vice-president, Mrs. W. L. Jones; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Remington; assistant secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Hilda Hague; teacher, Mrs. Maude Chapman; assistant teacher, W. H. Eaton.

Abuse Crept In

When Nye made that criticism, Johnson said, "we were still in the throes of making codes and a good deal of abuse crept in."

"I do not for one moment contend," he said, "that there were not serious lapses in this rapidity of progress, that rotten provisions did not creep into codes, that personnel was not far from perfect, that code authorities were properly organized, that administration has been perfect or even very good."

"But I do contend, and I think I can show, that such faults as arose were due to my bad administration rather than bad law, that many if not most of these errors of mine are in process of effective correction."

for a refreshing, dreamless sleep

FILL one gleaming porcelain tub with soothing hot water. Dilute with cool water. Add one cake of clear soap and agitate it until it covers water with light frothy bubbles. In this submerge one tired human body (your own) as far as the tip of the nose. Allow to settle quietly until water has laved away all perplexities and induced refreshing calmness. Take just before bedtime.

Heater provides the most satisfactory method of heating water for the home. The water is heated and stored within a heavily insulated tank until used. The temperature never varies because of the Thermostat that turns the electric heat on and off as necessary. Use of the wasteful and costly furnace and stove coil is eliminated.

Just turn the faucet whenever you need hot water. Cash price only $69.50. $2.12 down and $2.12 per month and the cost to operate it is as low as most other methods of heating water.

The success of this recipe depends entirely upon having all the ingredients ready for use. This Wesix Electric Automatic Tank Water
