

Local and Personal

On Sick Leave—R. E. Swan, city mail carrier, is on sick leave this week.

Inspects City Routes—C. M. Houston, superintendent of mails, is making a semi-annual inspection of city mail routes this week and next.

Wood Goes South—D. R. Wood, general manager of the Palmer Investment Co., left last night by train on a business trip to Sacramento.

Standard Men South—Jay Gleason and Jim Pirth of the Standard Oil company here, will leave today for San Francisco, where they expect to spend the Easter week-end.

Housing Man Visits—Leslie Peyton, field representative for the federal housing administration, with headquarters at Portland, was in Medford yesterday on official business, making a survey of the housing situation in the community.

McClain to Portland—Leo McClain, deputy United States marshal, is attending to official business at Portland over the week-end, and will return to his offices in the Federal building Monday.

Lodge Manager Here—R. W. Price, manager at Crater Lake lodge during the summer, who has been at the lake on a visit with the winter caretaker, took the opportunity to come out with the snowed yesterday.

Offices Moved—George P. Whitworth, project superintendent of CCC Camp Oregon Caves, has moved his offices from the camp to room 255, Federal building, where ECW headquarters of Crater Lake national park work will be maintained. The work includes supervision of CCC camps and the proposed camp at Lava Beds national monument, California. When weather conditions permit, Whitworth said the camp at Oregon Caves will be moved to Annie Springs for the summer. A. R. Manno, ECW clerk, exchanged positions this week with Walter Tryz, and is now stationed at the new offices instead of at the caves.

Passover Service Tonight—Rev. Philip Sidersky will give a demonstration of the ancient Hebrew Passover service at 7:45 p. m. this evening, in the Baptist church.

Guenther on Vacation—Rago Guenther, money order clerk at the postoffice, is on vacation this week, and is remodeling his home at 619 South Newcomb.

Enter Park Employment—J. W. Montgomery, ranger, and Harry Reed, mechanic, have entered the employment of Crater Lake national park earlier than usual this year, to assist in removal of snow in opening the park roads.

Opens Wardrobe Shop—Mrs. F. E. Troutter is opening a new and used wardrobe shop at 518 East Main street, in the front rooms of her home. She will handle clothing and fancy work on consignment, also hats, goods and switches.

RETAIL BUSINESS HIT BY ROUGH WEATHER IN WEEK, REVIEW REVEALS

NEW YORK, April 19.—(AP)—A temporary set-back in retail business this week because of adverse weather conditions was reported by Dun & Bradstreet in its weekly trade review today.

"Seasonal trade was retarded during the week, particularly in distributive branches, by adverse weather conditions which stretched nearly across the country," the report stated.

"Where rainfall and snow furries did not prevail, the dust storms provided the retarding factor to the retail demand for merchandise. Previous estimates of the April volume of retail sales have been revised downward, but the feeling is general that much of the loss will be recovered."

"In contrast to the recession in the distribution of merchandise, the lowering of production schedules was moderate, and was confined chiefly to glass, textiles, shoes, tires and rubber goods, as further increases were registered for automobiles, electric refrigerators, electric equipment, plumbing supplies, drugs, chemicals and foodstuffs."

BIG NAVY PLANES IN WAR PRACTICE

LOS ANGELES, April 19.—(AP)—The Times today said an epochal massed flight of giant navy seaplanes would participate in the United States fleet's far-ranging war games in the Pacific this summer.

Starting from San Diego within two weeks, the armada of the patrol wing's fighting planes will fly along the west coast of the United States, follow the Aleutian archipelago to Adak Island, jump 2,000 miles to Midway Island and return to California via Honolulu, the paper said.

Such a demonstration would equal any other aerial undertaking in the history of Uncle Sam's flying forces.

REPUBLICANS FAIL IN EFFORT TO CUT SPECIAL TAXATION

ministration was adopted, and the two written in were of a minor nature.

Reference Falls
The vote against a republican motion to return the measure to committee—offered by Representative Treadway of Massachusetts—was 146 to 238.

The house was called into session an hour earlier than usual as democratic leaders went to bat for the administration measure. The Townsends already had lost what appeared to be their last hope after yesterday's defeat.

The house swiftly and without contest approved the section of the bill authorizing use of $4,000,000 next fiscal year and $40,000,000 each year thereafter for allocation to states to help pay the cost of administration of state job-insurance laws. There was little debate before approval of the section allowing $3,800,000 a year for grants to states, mostly on the equal matching basis, for improving their maternal and child-health services. Little time was spent authorizing $6,000,000 annually to help states maintain public health services.

Board Approved
With equal dispatch, approval was given establishment of an independent national security board of three members named by the president, to administer provisions of the program not specifically placed under other agencies. The suggestion of the American Federation of labor that administration be placed in the labor department was defeated.

Richard Dix Wins Rialto Audience In Western Drama

In the lusty, red-blooded, romantic type of story which he adorns, Richard Dix, in his latest picture, "West of the Pecos," which opened yesterday at the Rialto theater, has scored another triumph.

"Pecos Smith," whom Dix portrays, is reminiscent of his earlier creation, Yancey Cravat, in "Cimarron," and the picture is packed with excitement, tense situations, hard riding, straight shooting and all the other ingredients of the successful action picture. It is a he-man story of the winning of the west, and it bears the authenticity one has come to expect of a Zane Grey narrative.

The story opens at the close of the Civil war, when Colonel Lambeth, with his daughter Terrill, begin life anew in the west. Their first meeting with Pecos (Dix) is at San Antonio, where with pistols drawn he is backing out of a cantina where he has just killed a man in self-defense. He wants the girl to help him get to his horse, but he believes she is a young cowboy, because she has donned cowboy garb. When she denounces, he spurs her with a kick which constitutes their introduction.

Later, Pecos joins the Lambeth outfit on the long, hard trek to the Pecos country and shares with them the perils of Indian attacks, the menace of white men worse than the Indians, and constant hunger and thirst.

Despite the disguise of Terrill as a boy, the romance manages to flourish throughout, and is cleverly woven into the action. Comedy relief is provided by a team new to picture-goers, Sleep 'n' Eat, who was seen in "Kentucky Kernel," and Louise Beavers, of the same dusky, happy-go-lucky race. Fred Kohler contributes a sterling performance as a bad man, and Sam Hinds as the father, lends dignity and sympathy to his portrayal.

The film plays at the Rialto theater until tomorrow night with Florence Rice and Conrad Nagel in "Death Flies East" as the prelude after the last show.

Leaves for Pasadena—Mrs. E. J. Muir left for Pasadena, Cal., today for a visit with friends and relatives.

ated that Mr. Roosevelt's veto would have been sustained by a margin of at least six votes.

There are several interesting reasons why that course was found objectionable. The main one is that certain influential Democratic senators advised against it. They would stand with Mr. Roosevelt, if he insisted, but they would a lot rather vote for a bonus bill.

After all, they are going to run for re-election next year as well as Mr. Roosevelt. They will be running in primaries where the President's coat-tails may not be broad enough to pull them through. Their opponents mainly will be persons of the Huey Long type who are strongly pro-bonus, as well as pro-public.

A White House bonus compromise would help save these boys. And, of course, it will make them more amenable to the remainder of the President's program.

Another bone tossed out casually was the eiy remark which Mr. Byrns made about the possibility of tax reduction. What he had reference to, apparently, was the talk that the treasury might permit some legislation to abolish taxes on incomes of less than $3,000. Since the British tax system was announced, this idea has become extraordinarily popular in Washington.

If there is one thing which a congressman prefers to vote for more than a bonus bill, it is a tax reduction bill. A congressman's idea of heaven is a place where he can vote to give all government money away and then reduce taxes at the same time.

There is a little matter of a $2,800,000,000 deficit this year and a $29,000,000,000 public debt to be straightened out, eitherly or otherwise. But this may not stand in the way in a pre-election year.

Some authorities are calling it "the social in security bill" among themselves. They believe a series of amendments will have to be proposed to congress within a year after the bill becomes a law. Furthermore, they expect it to be a moot subject of legislation from now on.

There will be lobbies crying incessantly for changes in it, constant bickering about the lowering and raising of rates.

No other subject, including that of taxation, may require as much congressional attention hereafter.

FOUR INJURED BY HIT-RUN DRIVER

ALBANY, Ore., April 19.—(AP)—B. J. McIntyre of Portland was in a hospital here today for treatment for an injured hip and broken ribs suffered last night when a hit-run driver crashed into a guy-wire which McIntyre and three other men were removing from the Pacific highway near Hartburg.

The wire fell across the road after a CCC truck had struck and knocked down a power line pole. The wire was blocking traffic, so McIntyre, Clyde H. Grown and Ralph Skinner of Vancouver barracks, and Edgar

Coming Sunday

George Arliss, supreme artist of the screen, comes to the Craterian theater Sunday in what many believe his finest characterization, that of Wellington in the film "The Iron Duke."

The plot extends through the "Hundred Days" of history into which were packed the drama of a hundred years. —In XVIII on the throne of France, Napoleon—escaped from exile in Elba, marching on Paris; the Allied forces, under Wellington, massed at Brussels, grimly determined to still forever Bonaparte's dream of a New Empire.

Then Waterloo—most famed battle in history; Wellington, watching the Allied ranks shake and weaken under the assaults of Napoleon's army, as he prays for the arrival of Blucher's dragoons. Finally, his historic command of "Up and at 'em!" and the crushing defeat of Napoleon's Old Guard, who "died, but never surrendered."

Then peace, intrigue and counter-intrigue, with the Duke cleverly outwitting his political enemies as they seek to embroil him in scandal and finally a last desperate effort to discredit the old warrior who confounds his enemies and emerges triumphant, the "Iron Duke" in fact as well as in name.

"George White's 1935 Scandals" ends its run tomorrow night at the Craterian theater, with Gene Raymond, Henry Hull and Frances Roy in the picturization of Octavus Roy Cohen's "Transient Lady" as the prelude after the last show.
