ONLY CHISELERS FOR ABOLISHING OF NRA PROGRAM

NEW YORK CITY (Sp)—Failure of congress to extend the NIRA beyond June 15th would play directly into the hands of the "chiselers 10 per cent" of business men who have sought to hamper and discredit the recovery measure from its very inception. Samuel L. Antonow, president of the American Druggists Syndicate, stated today. "The dropping of the NRA would simply indicate that an unprincipled, vicious minority is stronger than the great majority of legitimate business men who have been living up to the code requirements, even though in many respects they have worked hardships on them," Mr. Antonow said. It will mean that the short-sighted element in every industry will be able to carry down their whole industry to its own degraded level and into the verge of bankruptcy, destroying that protection of wages and hours of work for which labor has struggled for seventy-five years. It will make it possible for the cheat who sells below cost or follows other unsound or unfair practices to destroy the honest merchant trying to conduct business on an honorable basis.

Bringing to the screen those venturesome times of the 16th century, when the Do Medici made murder a polite pastime and a lover never touched his beloved's lips without a lurking fear they might be poisoned, "The Affairs of Cellini" comes to the Rialto theater.

"Vanessa" One of Season's Finest

Outstanding among the season's finer photoplays, Helen Hayes and Robert Montgomery came to the screen of the Craterian theater yesterday in "Vanessa: Her Love Story," an adaptation of one of Hugh Walpole's most popular novels.

Although the picture sparkles with humor and contains elaborate production scenes that make it truly magnificent, one goes away remembering only that it caught and held that elusive quality of high romance which, properly done, lifts a photoplay to the heights of true greatness.

As the Walpole heroine who is torn between love and duty, Miss Hayes gives one of her finest performances. She is in turn bewildered, proud, gay, heartbroken, as the vivid panorama of romance moves to its unexpected conclusion.

Montgomery, appearing with the petite star for the first time since the well-remembered "Another Language" performs a difficult role with superb mastery. He makes an excellent co-star for Miss Hayes and easily shares her honors.

Otto Kruger, too, comes in for a lion's share of acting honors with his performance as Ellis Herries, mad husband of the heroine. It would have been tempting to overstep the bounds of reality with the role, but Kruger reads the fine line with a believable portrayal and turns in a splendid piece of work.

The story deals with the romantic adventures of Walpole's heroine, "Vanessa," youngest of the spectacular Herries clan of the novelist's saga "Loving Montenegro," she is persuaded to enter a more suitable marriage with Kruger who, insanely jealous, makes her life unbearable.

With the stars is an exceptional cast, which includes May Robson, Lewis Stone, Henry Stephenson, Violet Kemble-Cooper, Donald Crisp, Allen Pringle and George K. Arthur, each of whom is excellently cast and contributes greatly to the finished perfection of the photoplay.

FIST FIGHTS ENLIVEN CHICAGO CONTEST OF PITTSBURG AND CUBS

CHICAGO, April 29.—(AP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago Cubs engaged in a free-for-all fist fight which led to the banishment of three players before the umpires finally restored order in the fifth inning of their game today.

The trouble started after Harry Lavagetto double had scored Manager "Pe" Ravenna to give the Pirates a 6 to 2 lead. Lavagetto and Bill Jurge, Chicago shortstop, got their feet tangled going into second and both came up with their fists swinging.

The umpires and players of both teams finally separated the pair but a second fist fight started between Guy Bush, former Cub pitcher, and Ray Joiner, Chicago hurler. As Joiner was led away to the Cubs' dugout and Bush to the other side of the field, Manager Charlie Grimm rushed across the field, challenging Bush, and the bitter broke loose in an effort to get at his former boss.

Order finally was restored and Joiner, Lavagetto and Jurge were put out of the game. Bush was not in the lineup.
