

DANDELION, ONCE A DESPISED WEED NOW CULTIVATED

Demand for More Greens and Salad Vegetables Seen in U. S.—Appetizing and Valuable in Diet

When you were a child, dandelions were weeds. It is true you ate them as greens, and you still remember how good they were when they came on the table sprinkled with crisp, appetizing bits of bacon or salt pork.

Does it surprise you, then, to find that dandelions are now cultivated for market on a big scale and shipped across the country by truck and by carload? What you buy in your market may come from nearby, but if you live in a northern city the chances are the dandelions you may get have made a long journey from market gardens far to the south.

Eating More Greens The fact is, of course, that the American people are eating greens and salad vegetables of all kinds as they never used to do. That is partly because such perishable foods can now be shipped across the country quickly and safely. It is partly because the city markets supply the wants of so many foreign-born Americans who are used to eating New England leafy foods. But it is largely because more Americans of all kinds have acquired a taste for greens and salads and an appreciation of their food value.

They are improving the stock of the familiar garden greens and producing new varieties of kale, mustard, spinach, and turnip greens. Instead of depending for turnip greens upon the tops of turnips grown originally for their roots, market gardeners now plant, for greens, the "seven-top turnip," which goes chiefly to tops and has only small roots. Swiss chard, due in the early summer, is a beet which has been developed for its tops instead of its roots, and makes excellent greens all through the summer when other greens are scarce.

Broccoli Wins Popularity They broccoli. This favorite Italian vegetable has been grown commercially in this country for only about eight years but now it is selling everywhere in our markets. Poke salad is still one of the wild greens, but we can often get it in the farmers' markets. Don't overlook the other wild greens, some of which you may be weeding out of your garden. There is purslane in particular, with its thick juicy little leaves. It is coarser than its relative, the say little portulaca of your flower garden, but it is very good to eat, either cooked or as a raw salad with a dressing of vinegar and bacon fat, or vinegared and salad oil. Then there is the pigweed, or red-root, which has a bright reddish-pink root, and is very much of a nuisance in the garden—unless you use it as greens. Still another of the common wild greens is lambquarters, which also is often called pigweed and sometimes goosefoot. The leaves and the tender tips of the branches are the parts of this weed to use.

Don't Cook Long To cook greens properly—any kind of greens—says the Bureau of Home Economics, use very little water and do not cook them long. Usually no water is needed except that which clings to the leaves after washing. Cook them only until they are wilted, stirring occasionally, and do not put a lid on the kettle. They will lose vitamin value if cooked too long, and they will lose their green color if cooked under a cover. Serve with a seasoning of lemon juice or vinegar, salt and pepper, or with salt pork or bacon fat.

Of the salad greens, another Italian favorite is becoming more familiar in our markets. This is escarole, or Batavian endive, with its broad curling green leaves. Like all the green leafy vegetables, escarole is rich in iron and in vitamins. With tender young spring onions, raw young carrots, sliced or cut lengthwise in slender sticks and laid on a thick bed of garden lettuce or escarole, you have a tempting salad that is good for "spring fever"—an ailment which is more than likely due to a shortage of iron and vitamins in your winter diet.

Onions Not Alone Spring onions, of course are not the only members of the onion family on the April markets. There are leeks and garlic, chives and shallots—all more commonly used in Europe than in the United States, and therefore shipped from the market gardens to cities that have a considerable foreign-born population. Leeks, however, with thicker stem and less bulb than onions, are often found in the "soup bunch," or in the "vegetable bouquet" that is sold at your door. They are especially good in soups and stews.

Chives, with their grass-like tops growing from small clustering bulbs, have a delicate flavor which is often preferred to onions. As an appetizer, spread a potato chip with a soft mixture of cream or cottage cheese and chopped chives—using the slender green tops—or you have a very tempting morsel. Or add a ball of the cheese and chopped chives to a spring salad plate. Shallots, too, are mild in flavor. They grow in "cloves," or divisions of the bulb, and are used fresh, whereas garlic, which also grows in cloves, is used fresh or dried. Shallots are now coming into the markets from Louisiana and other districts in the south.

VIRGINIA FETZER TAKEN BY DEATH

Virginia E. Fetzer, 13, passed away at the home of her sister, Mrs. Margaret A. Eickerman, 502 North Riverside, Thursday morning after a lingering illness from heart trouble. She was born in Halifax county, Virginia, February 7, 1882, and had been a resident of Medford for the past 21 years and a member of the Nazarene church.

Funeral services will be held at the Perl Funeral Home Saturday at 10 a. m. Rev. Weatherford of the Nazarene church will officiate. Interment in the Jacksonville cemetery.

280,000 Killed or Maimed. SAN FRANCISCO—(UP)—Traffic accidents in California in the last six years have claimed 280,000 persons killed or maimed—enough to populate the city of Oakland, the California Traffic Safety council estimated. From 1929 to 1935 there were 14,794 persons killed.

Potato Shipments Up. GRANTSBURG, Wis.—(UP)—Potato shipments from this region have shown an increase of 5000 bushels over last year's shipments covering a corresponding period. Forty-one freight cars have carried 25,000 bushels out of Grantsburg to date this season. In former years before dairying largely supplanted potato raising, yields of 200,000 bushels and more were not uncommon.

STATE BADMINTON MEETING CALLED HERE TOMORROW

Representatives from all the Badminton clubs in the state will meet here tomorrow and Sunday in a two-day meet to perfect plans for the forming of an Oregon State Badminton association. It is planned to later affiliate with the National and Canadian associations and bring various Pacific coast tournaments to Oregon cities. After the preliminary meet tomorrow night, a final meeting will be held Sunday morning for completion of the organization.

In the afternoon a series of interesting matches will be held at the local Badminton club court in the Angle building. Representatives from the various clubs about the state will be in attendance at the organization meetings include some of the best known players on the coast and some very interesting and exciting matches are anticipated.

Bert Barkhoff, of Seattle, women's coast champion, will be in attendance and will pair with Hamilton Law of this city in one of the feature matches of the program against the Portland men's doubles champions, Wilson and Coan.

Mrs. Barkhoff and Mr. Law will leave Medford Monday for Hollywood, where they have been invited to play an exhibition match before a crowd of film notables as part of the program being held there May 7 and 8. The program will also include a series of matches between J. W. Willard, United States champion, and Jack Purcell, national Canadian champion. Both of these men have recently turned professional and have challenged each other for the world's professional singles title.

Both are the outstanding players of their nation and considerable interest has been stirred up in the challenges and the Hollywood Badminton club, one of the largest and richest clubs in America, has arranged the program to bring them together.

Bird stays in Air 10 Months. CLEVELAND—(UP)—Flights of the arctic tern, a bird which flies 22,000 miles from the North Pole to South Pole in 20 weeks, were described by Mrs. J. M. Rotimer, amateur Cleveland ornithologist, in a talk before the Women's City Club here. She told also of the remarkable man-of-war bird, which remains in the air for 10 months at a time catching its food on the wing.

Old Cannon Barrel Found. CROCKETT, Tex.—(UP)—A 15th Century Spanish cannon barrel has been "rediscovered" near here. The rusted weapon was found about 10 years ago, but nothing was thought of its importance as a historical relic and it was lost again.

The senate awarded a congressional medal of honor to Maj. Gen. Adolphus W. Greely for his exploration trip in Greenland in 1881. He is one of the last of the old time Arctic explorers. (Associated Press Photo)

LEFTIST LEADERS TO DECIDE CHANGE FOR THIRD PARTY

Roosevelt-opposed Patman bill to pay the soldiers' bonus with new currency.

Digs Roosevelt Talk Referring to the president's address of last Sunday night, Long said: "Our president, the knight of the Nourmahal, says we are confused because we cannot see just how this thing is going to look when he gets through making it."

"Why, to be sure. All those millions of hogs they killed; all those cattle they shot down; the milk they poured into the rivers with the people starving for it; all the cotton they plowed under and wool that they burned up with the people naked because they could not get it; none of us can see just how that is working out."

Governor Floyd B. Olson, Minnesota's farmer-labor executive, will be closely watching developments at the "exploratory" gathering of left-wing men tomorrow. Olson has said he believes the time is not ripe for a third party campaign but he has not announced whether he would be available as leader of a left wing movement.

SALVATION ARMY DIVISION LEADER WILL BE VISITOR

A special series of meetings is to be conducted in this city over the week-end by Brigadier Harold Madsen, divisional commander of the Oregon and Southern Idaho division of the Salvation Army. Brigadier Madsen, whose headquarters are in Portland, will arrive by train tomorrow morning and conduct an inspection of the work of the local corps of the Salvation Army, commanded by Captain G. E. Durham.

He will meet the advisory board, which is composed of local businessmen, at a luncheon at the Medford hotel at noon. Following this luncheon, a mass meeting for young people will be held at the local headquarters. Brigadier Madsen will speak, and all local young people are invited to attend. The meeting will begin at 2:30 P. M. and will last for an hour.

Brigadier Madsen will speak again at the regular Saturday evening service at 8:00 P. M. The public is cordially invited to attend.

Sunday morning and afternoon two sessions of councils for local Salvationists will be conducted by the brigadier. These meetings will be of a private nature but a great public service is to be held Sunday, starting at 8:00 P. M.

Brigadier Madsen is of Scandinavian stock and in addition to his work as divisional commander for Oregon and Southern Idaho is in charge of all Salvation Army operations among the Scandinavian people of the Western states. All local Scandinavians are invited to meet the brigadier in these meetings.
