

SOVIET PLANNING TRAFFIC ARTERIES IN FAR EAST AREA

Highway Building, River and Harbor Dredging and Commercial Air Lines On List With Rail Program

By Joseph H. Baird United Press Staff Correspondent MOSCOW (UP)—An extensive program of highway building, river and harbor dredging and commercial air transport operation, as well as a new trunk line railroad, are parts of the Soviet Union's plan to strengthen its Far Eastern district against aggression.

Having in mind the fall days of 1931 when Japanese troops moved northward through Manchuria with scarcely any resistance, the Soviet Government is trying to make a strong bulwark of its territory north of the Amur River.

The bulwark Some of the stones in this bulwark will be: 1. A system of strategic highways connecting the east and west coasts of North Sakhalin; in Kamchatka and in the Birobidjan Autonomous Republic, wedge-like salient on the Manchurian border; and in parts of Central Asia.

2. The deepening of the Amur River, boundary line between Russia and Manchuria, to accommodate more traffic and thus relieve the load on the Far Eastern railroads.

3. Dredging and modernizing of Vladivostok, Nicolaevsk-on-Amur and other important ports to permit the entry of deeper-draft vessels and accelerate the handling of their cargoes.

4. Construction of more river boats and wharves to accommodate them. Commercial Airlines Organization of a regular system of commercial airlines in the Far East; a main east and west line from Moscow to Khabarovsk to Vladivostok; another from Khabarovsk to Komsomolsk, a new port for ocean-going vessels on the Amur River, to Nicolaevsk, to Okhotsk sea coast and on to Petropavlovsk-on-Kamchatka, and another line on Sakhalin Island.

In addition to building up communications, the Soviet Union is strengthening the Far East in two other ways: by encouraging immigration there and by building up industries to make it less dependent on western supplies.

During 1934 numerous inducements have been offered settlers. They have been relieved entirely of some taxes and others have been reduced. The pay of workers, professional men and soldiers in the Far East has been raised above that of their colleagues in other parts of Russia.

FEHL AND JONES TO RENEW PLEAS FOR PEN PAROLE

At the May meeting of the state parole board scheduled to be held May 8 at Salem, Earl H. Fehl and Walter J. Jones, former mayor of Rogue River, each serving four years in state prison for participation in the Jackson county ballot thefts, will renew their applications for paroles. It is reported here.

At the same session it is expected some action will be taken in the case of Gordon L. Schermerhorn, former sheriff, sentenced to a three-year prison term with the promise of parole at the expiration of serving six months. This time expired January 1 last, but no action was forthcoming on the grounds that Schermerhorn was not eligible for parole until he had served one year, or one-third of his term. This year will be next August.

Fehl and Jones both have filed previous parole pleas which were denied. A petition signed by residents of Crescent City, Cal., and Rogue River was presented to the parole board last December asking freedom for Jones. At the same time petitions and messages protesting liberation for Fehl were filed by a large number of citizens of this county. It was requested if a parole to Fehl should be granted it be with the condition he remain out of this county during its duration. If Jones and Fehl serve their full time, with deductions for good behavior, they will be freed in April, 1936.

CLARK HONORED AT SPERRY PRODUCTS INSURANCE CONF AB ARE OREGON-MADE

Leland Clark, Oregon Mutual Fire Insurance company representative in Medford, attended the 17th annual convention of that organization held in Portland last week and was elected association trustee for the ensuing year. Other officers selected during the sessions included: H. O. Fargeter, of Roseburg, chairman of the agents' association; George Walton, Klamath Falls, vice-chairman; Guy Jordan, Corvallis, recorder. "Your company was organized in 1894 and has served the interests of its policyholders faithfully and creditably for 40 years. It merits and without question will have the continued wholehearted support and patronage of the property owners of your state and the other states of the Pacific Northwest. It is an institution of which Oregon may well be proud," stated B. Rees Jones of Des Moines, Ia., nationally known figure in the insurance world, in commending the Oregon Mutual to its agents at the convention. Other prominent public officials and businessmen on the program included Governor Charles H. Martin; Walter May, manager of the Portland chamber of commerce; Prof. Harry Ollin, of Linfield, and Delbert Snider, Portland advertising expert. Leland Clark was first with a 99 in the "Tomstone" golf tournament held on the Yamhill Country Golf and Country club course last Friday afternoon at the close of the convention.
