Melody Features Craterian Hit

Inaugurating National Music Week in Medford, the Craterian theatre starting today has Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy starred in Victor Herbert's immortal masterpiece, "Naughty Marietta."

With holdovers the rule instead of the exception wherever the picture is played, "Naughty Marietta" brings to the screen one of the greatest musical works ever presented.

Miss MacDonald plays the princess who masquerades as one of the casquette girls, imported to New Orleans to mate with the settlers in Louisiana. The film depicts the marriage auction, the battle of the Everglades, the pirate capture of the casquette ship, the Paris of Louis XV and other stirring and dramatic details in the history of the founding of America's most romantic city, all woven into a thrilling adventure.

Nelson Eddy, the eminent baritone, whose splendid voice is heard in solo numbers and in duets with Miss MacDonald, gives a dashing portrayal of the British officer who falls in love with the charming princess. He brings to the screen a new type of leading man—a type that is winning him an immense cash a personal check and sent a house attendant downstairs to bring him the money from the disbursing office. It was true he changed his vote, but he did so because Mr. Ickes had recently been made head of the relief allotment division. The congressman will get money later from Mr. Ickes, but it will be relief money from his district.

(Note: The name of the congressman is being omitted because some stupid voter in his district would probably suspect that he actually had been bribed.)

The city of New York is quietly opening up an office here, apparently preparing to get its share when Mr. Roosevelt opens the $4,000,000,000 relief barrel.

'CRASH' IN VACANT LOT MERELY MODEL AIRPLANE LOS ANGELES—(UP)—Three police cars and an ambulance sped to a vacant lot where an airplane was reported to have crashed. This time the monster talks and demands the mate that was promised him. Colin Clive as the scientist, with the aid of another, then creates a "woman monster" to take her place as the bride. The result is said to be an even more thrilling the "bride" and Valerie Hobson is the fiancée of the scientist, kidnapped by the monster as a means of securing his own mate.
