REMOVE BAN ON CAPITOL RAZING

News Behind The News
 By PAUL MALLON
 Copyright, 1935 by Paul Mallon
 WASHINGTON, May 15.—The fact that a business figure like General Daves, a former republican vice-president, keeps on predicting an economic boom here to ascertain how much there is in what he says.
 From what they have been able to learn, the general is playing a personal hunch. His facts are substantial but they lack a little in certain corners.
 For instance the general H. PAUL MALLON
 ens the existing situation to 1921. He points out that a depression then caused an accumulation of deferred demand for durable goods. It caused a boom after the brief depression. The deferred replacements of industry now are tremendous. A big boom would certainly result if these frozen markets were suddenly opened.
 But there are several reasons why the best economists hesitate to agree that the time has yet arrived for repeating the history of 1921.
 All business factors were favorable in 1921. Prices were right. The war waste had depleted most lines. Europe was to be rebuilt. There was no widespread unemployment. The political element was encouraging.
 Things are different now. The price factor is somewhat uncertain, or at least not encouraging. Europe is not buying. There are between ten and thirteen million unemployed who have been out of work a few months but a few years. Business psychology is certainly not optimistic, if you believe what you hear from the U. S. chamber of commerce. Experiments are under way in the new deal, the conclusions of which are not yet definitely established. And we are entering upon a presidential campaign which may be as hot as any in recent years.
 These factors are not insurmountable. Some may be dispensed when congress adjourns. Others may await the outcome of next year's elections.
 At any rate, they furnish the background explanation of why the economists have been notably silent regarding the Daves prophecies. What they really believe is that we will continue to improve gradually until all factors are favorable and then a boom will start.
 The new deal publicity system is well oiled, as everyone knows. It does not often break down, but it did the other day on the bonus. For a time newsmen here thought that Governor Neuman of that reserve and Jesse Jones of the WPC had joined with Father Coughlin, et al, in turning the heat on the White House for the Patman bill. The Jones break happened this way:
 Jones arranged to make a speech down south, but had no time to prepare it in advance. He wrote it back to his office here to give to the press. By the time it arrived here, Jones was already making the speech, which

SPEEDY REMOVAL OF FIRE DEBRIS SEEN AS RESULT

Judge Lewelling Refuses to Make Temporary Injunction Permanent — Holds No Individual Injured

SALEM, May 15.—(P)—The state board of control may proceed with razing the burned state capitol building, walls and all.
 Judge L. G. Lewelling of the Marion county circuit court today refused to make the temporary restraining order against wrecking the frame of the old structure a permanent one and the temporary injunction was dissolved. The opinion was handed down in a meeting of the state board of control.
 A form of the state board of control was to be held later to determine the method of procedure in razing operations. It was believed the immediate removal of the entire structure would be ordered. Removing of debris from the building has been under way but the frame-work had not been touched as a result of the temporary injunction granted a week ago.
 Held Legislature Duty
 Plaintiffs in the suit, officers and members of the Marion county taxpayers' league, contended the removal of the walls was a duty of the legislature and not of the board of control. Further contending the walls might be used in the construction of a new capitol to replace the old.
 Judge Lewelling, in his opinion, stated the legislature had already made their choice by enacting section

Lamson Hears Jury Disagree

David Lamson is shown in court at San Jose, Cal. In custody of the sheriff as the jury for the second time told the court it could not reach a verdict. The judge ordered them to try further and Lamson was returned to his cell to pass the time playing chess and contract and receiving calls from friends. The jury was discharged late Tuesday. THIRD TRIAL FOR LAMPOON 'PURGE' AT HARVARD ENDS HINTED BY STATE

SAN JOSE, Calif., May 15.—(AP)—The state debated today whether to try David A. Lamson for a third time for wife murder.
 His protracted second trial ended late yesterday when the jury, deadlocked nine to three for conviction, on a second degree murder finding, was finally dismissed by Superior Judge Robert R. Syer. Three times previous the seven men and five women had sought to be released from trying to decide whether the former Stanford University Press representative beat Allen Thorne Lamson to death in the bathroom of the campus home memorial day, 1933.
 Chief District Attorney John P. Fitzgerald earlier hinted a third trial was likely for conviction "would be a strong factor in our determining whether to try Lamson again," but he indicated a definite decision on a new trial or dismissal of the charge would not be made until Friday.
 Further proceedings in the case will be continued to 10 a. m. that day, he said.
 Lamson, his attorney, Edwin V. McKenzie, who based the defense on the theory Mrs. Lamson died in an accidental fall, and the prosecution all were disappointed at the failure of the jury to reach a verdict in the trial, which lasted for more than 12 weeks.
 The 33-year-old defendant, who was sentenced to hang at his first trial, but won an appeal to the state supreme court for a reversal expressed bitter regret at the failure of the jurors to acquit him.
 "I am fully disappointed because I fully expected vindication," he said. "I am still keenly disappointed because I am so disappointed the jury failed to see the facts. I do thoroughly appreciate the kindness and the support of my friends."

REFUSE TO INDICT 'CHAIN PROMOTERS'

DENVER, May 15.—(P)—The federal government's first effort to stop the flood of cash chain letters throughout the nation failed today through a grand jury here declined to indict three men against whom federal officials had earlier prepared a case.
 United States District Attorney Thomas J. Morrissey said all the evidence against the men had been presented to the jury, but that it voted against indicting them, an action tantamount to exonerating the men of the charges the government had made at present.
 The grand jury also refused to indict Mrs. Marie Williams of Central Park, a patient at the Sacred Heart hospital, as Mrs. Jane Goode of Eagle Point.

FARMERS DECIDE AGAINST FORMING NEW ORGANIZATION

Delegates From 34 States Adopt Resolution for Continuation of AAA and Processing Tax Program

WASHINGTON, May 15.—(AP)—A resolution calling upon Secretary Wallace to furnish all correspondence concerning the farmers' gathering here yesterday and to report whether they were brought to Washington at government expense was introduced in the senate today by Senator Hastings. (R.-Del.)
 Upwards of 4000 farmers from the west and south held a mass meeting here yesterday, at which their leaders asserted they came to report whether they were brought to Washington at government expense was introduced in the senate today by Senator Hastings. (R.-Del.)
 Delegates from 34 states and Puerto Rico appointed at yesterday's mass meeting, today adopted a resolution urging continuation of the agricultural adjustment act, including the processing tax and amendments now pending in congress.
 Remaining in session after the visitation of farmers to Washington officials had concluded following addresses to them by President Roosevelt, Secretary Wallace and other AAA officials, the delegates announced they would attempt to determine to serve in an advisory capacity if his services were needed.
 With this aim in view, they approved a motion to have state commodity committees select a representative to serve in an advisory capacity if his services were needed.
 Following is the text of the delegates' resolutions:
 "Whereas, the agricultural adjustment act is the result of the organized efforts of farmers to insure the nation an abundant supply of goods and fibers at a fair price to the producer and
 "Whereas, industrial groups do not operate on a basis less than the cost of production, but have followed the sound economic policy of adjusting their production to the effective demand.

FUNDS FOR RURAL ELECTRIFICATION

Will Make Federal Application As Soon As Data Can Be Compiled Through Survey of Possibilities

SALEM, May 15.—(AP)—Funds for an extensive rural electrification program for Oregon will be sought by Governor Charles H. Martin, he announced today.
 As soon as definite data can be compiled through a survey of the state's possibilities, the governor said he would make application to the federal administration "for funds for an extensive electrification program to embrace all sections of the state where generated power is or soon can be available, and where other factors make such extension of electrical facilities feasible."
 Survey Ordered
 At the same time the governor announced he had directed the state hydro-electric commission, the state engineer and the public utilities commission "to immediately undertake a detailed survey of the rural electrification possibilities of the state and report to me at the earliest possible date."
 Quoting information from Washington to the effect that loans and grants for rural electrification purposes are to be made to "private utilities for extension of their existing facilities; to co-operative rural associations or organizations; and to state and public agencies," the governor called upon citizens contemplating the creation of local districts

Whisker Growth Helps Blind Man Tell Time of Day

ANKRANS CITY, Kan., May 15.—(P)—City Judge J. W. White doesn't "take time by the forelock," but he does count the passing hours by his whiskers.
 Judge White, who is blind, has developed his sense of touch so sharply that when he awakens at night he touches his face and says he can tell by the length of his beard just what time it is.
 He shaves at a regular hour each morning and by nightfall his whisker clock is ready to function.

GROSS NEGLIGENCE CHARGED IN DEATH OF FRALEY YOUTH

A charge of involuntary manslaughter was filed today by District Attorney George Codd against Joseph Wilson, local dishwasher, following a coroner's jury verdict of "gross negligence in driving an automobile" late yesterday after a deliberation of only 15 minutes.
 The auto driven by Wilson Sunday afternoon skidded on the Jacksonville highway, skidded the side of Jacob Lemley, knocking the Lemley car into the ditch and killing Francis Fraley, 12, bicyclist.
 Wilson, held under bonds of $2500, will receive preliminary hearing in justice court some time this week. At that time he will either be bound over to the grand jury or released.
 According to Wilson's own story to the coroner's jury, he did not see the two boys on bicycles. He said that he was traveling at a moderate speed, and pulled over to pass the Lemley car, honking his horn as he did so. This evidence was supported by two girls riding with him at the time of the accident, Elsie Beatty and Elsie Pool. A fourth passenger, "Buddy" Jacks, said to have been riding on

FEHL'S FINANCIAL DEALING WITH KIN TOPIC AT HEARING

Attorney Kelly Intimates Transfer of Judgment to Mother-in-Law for Purpose Defrauding Creditors

The financial relations existing between Earl H. Fehl, now serving four years in state prison for ballot-theft, and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Corinthis E. Stalley, were revealed in the spirited cross-examination this morning in circuit court of the former local political figure, conducted by Attorney E. E. Kelly, in the Niedermeier, Inc. Interpleader suit.
 The quizzing rotated around notes and transfers of property in favor of the aged woman, and it was bluntly intimated that the transfer of the $15,000 Parr label suit judgment and transfer of Feh property to Mrs. Stalley "was for the sole purpose of defrauding creditors," and the value of the transferred property was far in excess of any obligation to her.
 Attorney T. J. Enright, in a statement, declared it would be shown that the property transfers, as shown in county records, were made after Fehl's indictment and his conviction of ballot-theft charges.
 Judgment Brought $1000
 Fehl testified that the Parr Judgment was "sold to 'Mother' Stalley, for about $1000," and a portion was in actual payment. It was also brought out there had been a day-by-day transfer of Fehl's salary as

CHARLES N. BLACK, DEVOTEE OF ROGUE, DIES IN SAN FRAN.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 15.—(AP)—Charles N. Black, 97, former president of the Market Street Railway, died today in a sanitarium after a six-week illness.
 Black came to San Francisco from Kansas City, Mo., where he had been manager of a street car system. Previously he had been connected with the Walker Manufacturing company of Cleveland and the Westinghouse Electric company.
 In 1916 he resigned as general manager of the old United Railroad & Co. of New York. In 1922 he was elected president of the Market Street car line and held that position until his resignation in 1925.
 He graduated from Princeton university in 1888.
 today as a severe shock to the community in the social life of the many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Black in the city and valley. Although Mr. Black was first taken ill, while here at his fishing lodge on Rogue river last fall, and had since taken treatments both in San Francisco and at John Hopkins in the east, for a serious throat infection, it was not believed his condition was critical; in fact, all reports had been that the condition was submitting to treatment and his ultimate recovery was expected. A short time ago, however, complications arose which necessitated an emergency operation and it proved the effects of this operation which proved so suddenly fatal.
 Mr. Black ("Cap"), as he was known to his friends, came to the Rogue River valley several years ago with a group of other well known San Francisco sportsmen, attracted here by the famous steelhead fishing. While here he took a prominent part in the social life of the community, joined the Rogue Valley University club and, then a widower, married Mrs. Jeannette Preston Black, prominent in local social circles, making their permanent summer home at their luxurious fishing lodge on Rogue river just below the Elsie picnic grounds. Here prominent guests from San Francisco were frequently entertained and Mr. Black's daughter by a former marriage, Mrs. Allen Lowry, and children of San Francisco, were often visitors.
 Mr. Black was always deeply interested in the development of Rogue river as a stellar fishing stream and with Non Tucker, Frank Noyes, and other prominent San Franciscans, organized a permanent club for the development of southern Oregon as a sportsman's paradise.

STRAW HATS ORDAINED FOR MEDFORD 'KNOBS' BEGINNING TOMORROW

Tomorrow will be straw hat day in Medford, with merchants having stocked a wide variety. According to those in the "know," the ailing straw will be more popular this year than it has been for some time, especially for business wear. The Panama will always be good, and the soft crown bangkok and crushable straws will have a good play.
 But the straw that looms large on the sport horizon is the jungle trooper, or helmet style. This hat received some attention two years ago, last year was gaining popularity before the end of the summer, and this year will undoubtedly forge far into the lead by the time the straw season gets well under way.
 Light and cool, some styles will come in adjustable sizes, making possible a low dusting price, a quality hat. Most of the styles already stocked are of the amyth straw type, the pith helmet being a bit high priced to allow much popularity. A pressed paper hat of this model can be purchased for the price of a hair-cut, and all models will be water-proofed so as to withstand the sudden shower. With all these advantages Medford should be a straw-hat conscious before the spring season has grown much older.

FIRST GEORGIA VOTES FOR DRY LAW REPEAL

ATLANTA, May 15.—(AP)—First returns from Georgia's prohibition referendum today came from Glynn county, where one precinct's vote was reported 47 for repeal to one against.

WILL ROGERS SAYS:

ARCADIA, Cal., May 14.—Say Huey, you and all these other third party guys better look out for this fellow Tallmadge, Governor of Georgia. Although a late starter among all these presidential self-starters he is coming strong.
 This coming election is going to be lots of fun when all these third party candidates meet headon. All Roosevelt will have to do is just sit back and watch 'em cut each other's throats. All of 'em will claim they are running on the real Democratic ticket and I expect Thomas Jefferson was about the very last real Democrat.
 Will Rogers.
