MAIN CRITICISMS ARE UNFOUNDED IN COMMITTEES VIEW

The complaint that relief workers were paid a high salary was refuted by the report that "salaries and wages paid to administrative officers and employees are reasonably low."

The committee did admit that the relief given in many cases was insufficient to maintain a reasonable standard of living, but that it was "sufficient to sustain life and safeguard health during a short emergency period. The standard of relief given is not under the control of the relief administration, but is limited by funds available for relief purposes."

Some Workers At Fault—Continuing, the report found that in many instances complaints against case workers were found to be justified, and in a few cases were sufficient to require removal.

"Adequate facilities have not been provided for determining the eligibility of applicants for relief or for eliminating those who no longer require assistance."

Taking the situation in Multnomah county separately, the committee reported "there has been a failure to keep the social service department separate and distinct from other social service agencies, resulting in a lack of centralized control, want of uniformity in the standard of relief given in the confederation of the Multnomah system in general."

"That there has been a substantial lack of uniformity among separate units and various groups in Multnomah county in the amounts, qualities and standards of relief afforded; and that the present system of administering relief in Multnomah county is defective in that it fails to make adequate provision for prompt contact between the relief client and the case worker."

In addition to recommending immediate correction of the faults listed, the committee recommended "that the policies and practices of the relief administration be carefully reviewed with a view to eliminating from the system any practice or course of procedure which may be found unnecessary to discontinue relief recipients through personal initiative."

"That the use of the international business machine in Multnomah county be discontinued, and that a manual accounting system be installed in its place."

A recommendation was made by the committee "that more adequate provision be made for the development of a school of social service so that it may be made to conform to the standards of the American Association of Schools for social work."

In general comment the report stated, "The facts are there is still a great deal of want and suffering in the state of Oregon, incident to unemployment. In every community there are on the relief rolls many fine people who are only there because of immediate necessity and who will become independent when...

Here Tuesday

"The Scarlet Pimpernel," the latest production of Alexander Korda, who gave us "The Private Life of Henry VIII," begins a three day run at the Balto theatre tomorrow.

Leslie Howard and Merle Oberon are co-starred in this new film play, adapted from the internationally famous novel of the same name by Baroness Orczy.

Howard is seen in the title role of Sir Percy Blakeney, who sacrifices the love of his wife and the respect of London society, by masquerading as a top and a fool at home so that he may conduct the dangerous secret activities of the League of the Scarlet Pimpernel, a daring little band of Regency bloods, pledged to snatch French aristocrats from the Tribunal during the Reign of Terror.

ever industrial conditions permit. There are also on the relief rolls imposters who are not only unjustly receiving relief but are doing much to discredit the entire relief administration.

In conclusion, the report, thirty typewritten pages in length, declared that "notwithstanding the large number of complaints so freely reported and the multitude of rumors so energetically circulated derogatory to the personnel and methods of the emergency relief administration in Oregon, the committee is convinced that the giving of relief throughout the state has been, on the whole, reasonably well conducted."

"The recommendation of this committee is that so long as funds can be made available therefor the present standard of relief be maintained in all worthy and proper cases."

William Powell in Craterian Picture—Reminiscent of his role in "The Thin Man," William Powell has another, delightful detective characterization at the Craterian theatre, where he is being shown in "Ginger Rogers in 'Star of Midnight'."

Taken from Marjorie Somers' "Star of Midnight" combines mystery, built around a murder and the disappearance of a stage star, with a delightful blend of comedy, romance and suspense. Powell is his smooth, suave self that motion picture audiences have taken to their hearts since his recent outstanding success in pictures with Myrna Loy, while Ginger Rogers is a wise-cracking young lady who has decided that the criminalist is going to marry her and no two ways about it.

It all starts out when Powell succeeds in getting some letters a gangster chief has been holding as a threat over a married woman's head, with Powell believing they are letters which the lovely Miss Rogers had written in a moment of weakness. The events move swiftly into the murder of a Broadway columnist just as he is about to break the news story of the year, and the sudden and mysterious disappearance of a stage star which, apparently, have no connection with each other.

With suspicion falling on several characters, Powell and his shadow, Ginger, proceed to unravel the mystery of the murder and the disappearance while they indulge in some highly diverting comedy bits on the side.

It makes the film play a fast-moving vehicle, which shows off Powell to his best advantage and gives Ginger Rogers a chance to do a little something else besides dancing, which it must be admitted does not need any "selling" after her recent pictures with Fred Astaire. The team of Powell and Miss Rogers is a happy one, working together smoothly and making "Star of Midnight" a first rate attraction.
