

SECOND SPRAY IN CODLING CONTROL DUE IN FEW DAYS

Second cover spray for the control of codling moth worms on pears and apples should be completed by June 1, according to the recommendation of R. O. Fowler, county agent, and L. G. Gentner, entomologist at the Southern Oregon Experiment station.

On apples use an oil emulsion lead arsenate combination as follows: One gallon light summer oil emulsion, one-half pound spreader, and two pounds powdered arsenate of lead in 100 gallons of water.

On pears use three pounds of powdered lead arsenate only to the one hundred gallons of water. If rust mites are present in sufficient numbers to make control desirable, use one and one-quarter gallons medium type summer oil emulsion, one-half pound spreader and two pounds of lead arsenate to the one hundred gallons of water.

This application is very important since large numbers of moths are being caught in bait pans. This means that many worms will attempt to enter the fruit shortly after June 1.

It is advised that chemically treated bands be placed on apple trees by June 15 or shortly thereafter. The loose bark should be scraped off thoroughly from the trunks and larger branches before bands are applied to give best results. Bands are not recommended for use on pear trees unless there is a very heavy infestation of codling moth.

STERLING ENJOINS DITCH WATER USE

An order restraining and enjoining J. C. Cass and his wife, Gillie Cass, and Al Hartley from "interfering with, misappropriating or diverting waters of an irrigation ditch" owned by the Sterling Mines, Inc., has been signed by Circuit Judge H. D. Norton. Hearing on the order is set for next Friday morning.

A complaint filed the first of the week charges they "have broken the bank of an irrigation ditch, diverting the water for use on their own land, and threaten to continue to do so."

The mining company asserts it is owner of the ditch, carrying water from the Little Applegate river, and used in their mining operations.

Damages in the sum of $50 have sought for water allegedly misappropriated by the defendants.

COLONEL GILKES OF SALVATION ARMY TO GIVE FINAL ADDRESS

Colonel W. Roy Gilkes of the Salvation Army who, for the past 12 days has conducted a special series of evangelistic meetings at the local corps, will finish his campaign here tonight with a lecture on his "personal reminiscences of the founder of the Salvation Army."

This lecture will be given in the Jackson county courthouse auditorium, commencing at 7:45 p. m. According to Captain G. R. Durham, present indications are that a great many hearers from all over the valley will be in attendance, as Colonel Gilkes has issued a special invitation to his countrymen to attend.

A. H. Benwell, manager of the Jackson County Chamber of Commerce, who originally hailed from Great Britain, will be in the chair.

No charge is being made and all Medfordites are cordially invited to attend. Colonel Gilkes is one of the few remaining officers who worked side by side with William Booth, founder of the organization. In the early days of the army, the colonel has been instrumental in the development of many branches of the army's operations for young people, having helped Booth by the foundation of efforts for the rescue and salvation of the young.

Colonel Gilkes leaves tomorrow morning for Klamath Falls to conduct a similar series of meetings.

COUNTY ROAD OILING GETS UNDER WAY IN FARMING SECTIONS

The county court continuing a policy adopted last summer, will furnish county equipment for oiling of streets and roads in farms of homes, if the property owner will furnish the oil.

County Engineer Paul B. Ryming said today that a number of residents had requested the service, and more were expected. Most of the requests so far have come from county residents where dust will be the base of housewives for the next three months. The county engineer said the policy would be for both rural and city residents living along dirt roads or streets.

The county oiling program is now under way and prime coats of oil have been spread for a mile on the Stewart avenue road, for a mile and one-half on the Central Point market road east to Crater Lake highway, one-half mile on the airport road, two miles on the Table Rock market road and one mile on the Barnett road near the county fair grounds.

Cigarette Burns Stile At McLeod

MELTOD, May 22.—(Sp.)—A burning cigarette stub, carelessly thrown over the railing of the McLeod bridge, started a fire which destroyed the fishermen's stile and posts in the fence on property owned by E. D. Hoag. Prompt work on the part of neighbors saved the special fish landing apparatus which Mr. Hoag has just erected for the benefit of fishermen on the upper side of the bridge. This equipment, just installed, should handle all sizes of fish and users are requested not to move it from its location.

Ye Poet's Corner

A PATIENT PIONEER
I
I thought at first it was my son come back.
For years I've closely watched men with a pack:
He left us years ago—years that were long.
And, in the East, they say our boy went wrong:
I know he went to prison for a crime:
But I, his mother, served the hardest time.
II
Oh, yes, you asked me for a bite to eat—
I'll get it, sir, and then if you should meet
My son, when you are drifting with your pack,
Tell him that I still wait his coming back:
And, oh, please say it matter not where from.
Or in what sad condition he may come!
III
Tell him the old home waits where he was born,
And that each noonday, supper-time,
each morn,
For thirty years, I've placed an extra plate.
Hoping to see him turn in at the gate.
Tell him the same old mother line-ly
Waits with a welcome out there on the sea!

NEW PARDON PLEA FOR ALVIN REED PLAN OF COUNSEL

A new petition for a pardon for Alvin W. Reed of Denver, Colo., asserting a life term in state prison for the slaying of Victor Knott, Ashland policeman, in November, 1932, will be filed with the governor, Asahel C. Newberry said today. He said the petition was in course of preparation.

Similar action was taken in the closing days of the term of former Governor Julius L. Meier. It received no executive consideration and was automatically quashed with the induction of a new governor.

The old petition for clemency was based upon the alleged discovery of new and vital evidence, and the allegation that Officer Laymon of Ashland, chief witness for the state, gave conflicting identifying testimony at the preliminary hearing and the trial.

The new evidence holds that Reed was eating at a hamburger stand, a half mile from the scene of the murder, at the time of its commission.

Paul McQuade and Lee Jackson, both of Denver, Colo., and traveling companions of Reed, were also indicted for first degree murder. They are fugitives from justice.

Reed, in his own defense, testified that after reaching Ashland by auto he separated from his two companions, to find an auto registering station. During his absence, he claimed, Jackson and McQuade committed the murder, when approached in a warehouse burglary. Knott and Laymon were riding in a police patrol car when they stopped to question the pair and the shooting occurred. The jury holding Reed's first degree murder charge after returning a verdict of second degree murder.
