Defense Counsel Samuel Leibowitz seized on this as bearing out defense contention that police "planted" evidence of premeditated murder against his client in the room of the hotel where the party clothed bodies of the slain pair were found. The state charges jealousy caused Steinmetz, son of a Jewish rabbi, to commit double murder. The defense is based on temporary insanity and the "unwritten law."

CONLIN TO PLAY WITH YREKA NINE

The Jacksonville-Gilmore Lions will lose their player-manager, Bud Conlin, when that veteran of the game goes to Yreka to sign up for the northern California league Sunday. He announced yesterday. His position as manager of the club will be taken by Bob Lewis, a young man who has displayed marked talent for that sort of work, through his association with baseball teams for the past several years. Conlin, who has played baseball in Medford for the past eight years, and at various other points, including the Coast league, for the past 23 years, has received a better offer from the California club. At the present time, Yreka is tied with the strong Weed nine for top honors, and the management of the Yreka outfit hopes that Conlin's work may break the deadlock when the teams tangle. Lewis announced today that Kenton will be brought in from the outfield to take the place of Conlin on the primary sack, while Joe Neumes has outlived from Santa Clara will wander the outer grounds in place of Kenton. Although the loss of Conlin will materially weaken the team at first, Lewis has hopes of knocking them into shape before their big game series with the Medford Rogues.

Society and Clubs

Lull in Activities Before Arrival of College Students

While activities in the social week have been few the past week or ten days, following the busy week end of the State Federation of Garden Clubs, there will soon be a rush of college students arriving for summer vacation and the city will acquire a holiday spirit. After the first of the month, when students at the University of Oregon and Oregon State College are returning, and others from the University of Washington, where several graduates of Medford high school are enrolled, there will be much entertaining among members of the younger set. Dances, swimming parties and informal get-togethers will keep the city busy for several weeks until the homecoming students gradually separate again for vacation trips. California schools close earlier than those in Oregon and Washington and one of the first arrivals from the south is Robert Mauney, a student at Santa Clara, where the summer vacation started May 15.
