

DEATH OUTSTRIPS CUPID IN RACE TO HOSPITAL INMATE

LOS ANGELES, May 24.—(UP)—Four years W. D. Corcoran, invalid, retired policeman, and Mrs. Leona Hubbard, portrait painter, had been engaged.

Injured 11 years ago, he never had been well enough to accompany Mrs. Hubbard to the marriage license bureau.

Today the 46-year-old man became gravely ill of pneumonia. Mrs. Hubbard, in desperation, explained their problem to Patrolman C. B. Swan and R. E. Elkin.

Swan consulted with Miss Rosemond Rice, chief clerk of the marriage license bureau. In an emergency, she said, the couple could be married without a license.

So Patrolman Swan then called on Rev. Thomas G. Marshall, chaplain of Good Samaritan hospital. But Rev. Marshall could not marry them as an Episcopal minister—both had been divorced.

Corcoran grew steadily weaker. Rev. Marshall suggested Rev. W. T. Gilliland of Echo Park Methodist Episcopal church. Patrolman Swan rushed away, alien screaming.

Dr. A. E. Kirschhoff was called. He did what he could to keep Corcoran alive.

There came the squealing of brakes from outside the door. Patrolman Swan jerked to a halt and out jumped Rev. Gilliland. As they reached the door they heard Rev. Marshall reciting a prayer of intercession for the dying.

Dr. Kirschhoff met them. "The man is dead," he said.

LOVE MATCH LINKS ROYAL HOUSES OF SWEDEN, DENMARK

orful parade of nobility, high military and naval officers in full parade dress, government leaders and foreign diplomatic representatives in Stockholm. A special guard of soldiers formed a lane to the church doors.

With the guests seated, and with uniformed pages at attention along the aisle, Archbishop Eideg of Sweden, and his assistant priests, entered the church and came slowly forward to a place near the high altar.

Visiting royalty, headed by King Leopold and Queen Astrid of Belgium, then entered through a special door to take their places in the royal pews directly in front of the altar.

King Escorts Frederik.
Crown Prince Frederik, escorted by his father, King Christian of Denmark, and by a special wedding escort including a master of ceremonies, was next to arrive. He entered by a side door of the church.

Princess Ingrid, escorted by her father, Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden, then came slowly up the aisle. She walked to the measured beat of swelling organ music, followed by two royal flower girls, the little Princesses Regnhild and Astrid of Norway.

Followed only by the flower girls and Count Gustaf of Wisborg, the royal couple advanced to a position in front of the altar from which Archbishop Eideg read the wedding service.

"Before God the omniscient," intoned the archbishop, "and in the presence of this gathering, I ask you, Crown Prince Frederik if you choose this woman, Princess Ingrid, as your lawful wife, to cherish her in both sorrow and happiness."

Blessed by Archbishop.
On Frederik's response the same question was put to Princess Ingrid. The wedding ring, a thin band of gold, was then accepted and blessed by the archbishop.

With the blessings of the state church upon them, the royal couple stood before the altar while the audience joined in the singing of Danish and Swedish songs and a choir chanted a wedding mass.

In Stockholm harbor, ships of the Swedish navy fired a royal salute. A stately, colorful procession from the church followed, the royal newlyweds stepping into their carriage, in which they were driven under cavalry escort the short distance from the church to the royal palace.

Thousands Throng Scene.
Hundreds of thousands of spectators, drawn from all parts of Sweden and Denmark, turned Standevagen, Stockholm's famous promenade, into a turmoil of humanity. The royal couple riding through the city in an open carriage, were showered with congratulations.

For Stockholm, ordinarily sedate and restrained, the occasion was one for wild cheering as one carriage after another rolled by with members of the royal families of Sweden, Denmark and other nations.

Equally impressive, for the public, was the departure late today for Denmark of the Danish crown prince and his bride. With the quays and bridges of the Stockholm harbor providing room for an unlimited number of spectators, the newlyweds ceremoniously said farewell to Sweden.

Like Movie Scene.
Proceeding from the royal palace to the landing stage at one side of the palace, they embarked in the Swedish royal ship, with its highly ornamented cabin, in something of a gondola effect, at the rear. With salutes from harbor crafts, Princess Ingrid took farewell of her father, King Gustaf, and departed in a motor to move the heart of a Hollywood director, for her new land.

The royal sloop proceeded across the harbor to the Danish royal yacht "Dannebrog," which a squadron of Danish torpedo boats was ordered to convoy. Harbor fortress guns boomed out a final farewell.

Tonight Stockholm will continue its festivities with dancing in the parks and an enormous fireworks display in the vicinity of the royal palace.

POLITICAL PRIEST'S ACTIONS CRITICIZED BY HEIRARCHY DEAN

BOSTON, May 24.—(UP)—A new and pointed attack on the methods of Father Charles E. Coughlin of Detroit was voiced here today by William Cardinal O'Connell, archbishop of Boston and dean of the Roman Catholic hierarchy in America.

Addressing a convention of Catholic foresters, the cardinal, whose earlier criticisms of the radio priest prompted Father Coughlin to devote one of his Sunday broadcasts to a direct response, said:

"All these disturbing voices, the shouting, yelling and screaming, are so unbecoming to any one who occupies the place of a teacher in Christ's church that even the quality of their voices betrays them. They are hysterical. And no priest of God, no teacher of the Christian church ever permits himself to become hysterical. The matter is too serious."

Cardinal O'Connell spoke nearly 45 minutes, expounding what he considered the proper sphere of duties of Catholic priests and bishops, and while he did not mention Father Coughlin by name, the inference was obvious.

Agricultural extension agents are conducting schools to teach farm women in the south how to make their own mattresses—out of cotton. It's a part of the general "live-at-home" program.

A new summer drink, Stillicious, is being introduced by Gilman's Sanitary Dairy this week. The new drink, which sells at the same price as milk, contains milk solids, chocolate and enough yeast vitamins "B and G" to equal three whole yeast cakes, according to Lester Gilman.

Mr. Gilman says "Leading authorities state that vitamins 'B and G' are necessary for the maintenance of life and health at all ages, and to increase one's resistance against various ailments and functional disorders."

I Never Dreamed I'D EVER MEET SUCH a Grand Tasting LIQUOR

"Just imagine—I waited until now to meet this most delicious fruit-type liquor of the age—APRICOT NECTAR. I'd heard so many enthusiastic comments about it from friends, and from the ladies too, that I hardly believed it could be as grand as they said. It IS, and how! Its flavor perfection, it tastes simply swell, and that great glorious flavor of luscious apricots—ah! It warms, too, because it's full proof. You can't imagine how beautiful it is as a STRAIGHT drink, or as a fruit base for cocktails, until you try it. It's a mystery to me how it can be sold at the low price."
