

WILL STRENGTHEN NORTHERN COUNTY FIRE PROTECTION

Guard Stations Planned Along 75-Mile Fire Patrol Communication System—Snags To Be Removed.

CAMP WIMER, May 28.—(Sp.)—The four northern Jackson county townships now being brought under the fire protection of Lynn F. Cronmiller by a 75-mile fire patrol communication system being built by Wimer's Oregon CCC company, will be liberally sprinkled with guard stations according to orders just received here from State ECW Inspector J. J. Russell. One of the new houses for guards will be completed this summer and the other three by the fall of 1935. Mr. Russell's plans also call for a new observation tower on Butte Mountain to be completed this summer and a new tower on King Mountain to be built not later than 1936. Mr. Russell visited Camp Wimer with J. Joyce, federal forest inspector, and E. H. McDaniels also from the forestry office to view the work progress and to explain the new projects.

To Remove Snags. The old burn, unsightly and hazardous, which covers about a square mile at the head of Ditch creek, will have its snags painfully removed. The snags have been a breeding place for forest fires. A horse trail will also be built from Jamison gulch on Pleasant creek to the head of Ditch creek providing easy access to a huge triangle of heavily wooded country.

The guard houses to be completed this summer will be on Ditch creek at the junction of the King Mountain-Jack creek roads. A guard will be stationed there from four to six months during the summer to see that tourists and campers have permits and are properly informed about fire regulations. Fortunately will be the guard assigned to this location, which is rich in natural beauty.

A guard station will also be built at the junction of Jack creek and Jump Off Joe creek at the present site of Jack creek side camp; another near the top of Butte Mountain and the fourth at Foley Gulch on Coyote creek one mile east of Wolf Creek (Pacific highway.) Houses will be placed at each of these four points where guards may live through the summer with their families.

New Tower Planned. Battle Mountain lookout station's observation tower, now a "bird house" attached to the tops of two fir trees will be replaced by a first-class tower, stronger and safer. Surveyor Lou Amort is now busy laying out a road to the summit of Battle Mountain so that lookout men may drive to the very foot of the new tower. The same will be done eventually for King Mountain. Mr. Amort recently finished the reconnaissance work for the Jack creek road, which will probably be the first of the new truck trails to be completed.

GOVERNOR SAVES KIDNAPER'S LIFE

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., May 28.—(AP)—Governor Guy B. Park today headed the plea of Miss Mary McElroy and commuted the death sentence of Walter McGee, her kidnaper, to life in prison. McGee was the first person in the United States to be given the extreme penalty for kidnaping. Confined to the execution mansion by illness, the Missouri governor made his announcement while the country was stirred by another abduction—that of 9-year-old George Weyerhaeuser of Tacoma, Wash., whose parents were warned he would be killed unless $200,000 ransom is paid.

McIntire, 74, mother of Dr. Ross McIntire, personal physician to President Roosevelt, died at her home here last night after many years residence in Oregon's capital city. Funeral arrangements are awaiting word from her children. Dr. McIntire visited his mother last August when he accompanied the president on the visit to Portland. At that time he spent several days with her.

America's Buffalo and Antelope No Longer "Vanishing Animals"

By WILLIAM S. WHITE. WASHINGTON.—(AP)—The "vanishing" big game animal of the west isn't vanishing any more—in fact his tribe, steadily increases.

The United States bureau of biological survey, which has refuges scattered all over the country for the protection of animals and fowls, says such typical pioneer specimens as buffalo, elk and antelope not only are doing fairly well in preserving their species, but sometimes get too numerous for their area and some have to be killed or given to the state.

Migration Eastward. Along with this development, bureau experts note a decided tendency toward an animal migration, although the wanderers so far are principally of the predatory sort, eastward—back toward homelands of a bygone century. The reason for this strange return, they say, is two fold.

First, tourists in the west have the habit of picking up cubs they think are cute and taking them back east where escape or granted freedom often follows. Lone coyotes have been reported in many scattered areas of the east, even on the Atlantic seaboard.

Second, the administration's program toward retirement of unsuitable agricultural lands, along with drought, is encouraging a return to those areas of animals whose forebears were driven out in the westward movement of the plow last century.

Elk Number 120,000

As to western game animals such as buffalo, elk and antelope, the bureau says they are slowly getting more numerous. Its estimates now are that there are in this country 4700 buffalo, 55,000 antelope and 120,000 elk.

These totals are trifling compared to what they were 50 years ago—when all species ran into so many thousands no authority will hazard an estimate of the totals. The process of destruction rolled on at a progressively advancing rate. However, the job of rehabilitating herds has been speeded up to a point where the decline has been checked and the trend is upward.

Some Buffalo Are Sold.

In the Montana bison range, a typical reserve for the species, numbers have reached recently as high as 600, whereas the desired level, to avoid overcrowding and consequent destruction of soil covering, is nearer 300. Thus some buffalo are sold from time to time to local butchers.

Others are turned over to Indian agents, located on reservations and hunted by the redskins. None of the most is wasted, officials say. Similarly elk numbers are reduced when they get too high. In a Wyoming elk reserve last winter the herd had to be reduced to range capacity by killing a considerable number of animals. This was done by game officials on foot. Airplanes had been used in making a survey as to the extent of the herd.

ing crew today. A heavy crop of excellent quality is anticipated. The Vaughn berries are somewhat touched with frost and will probably be some days later.

BURGER HONORED BY KIWANIS CLUB BEFORE DEPARTING

In honor of Kiwanian Darwin K. Burger, Medford high school coach who is leaving soon to assume new duties as coach at Boise, Idaho, high school, the Kiwanis club met yesterday at Hotel Medford with C. C. Lemmon in charge of the farewell program.

The entire meeting was devoted to Coach Burger's work in Medford and proved very interesting to the large attendance of club members, both from a standpoint of the fun that was poked at good-natured "Burg," and in seriously reviewing the impressive basketball and football records he leaves.

The program began with a song "How Do You Do Mr. Burger, How Do You Do," from the entire membership, and also included a number by the quartet, "I Love You Truly." Toastmaster Lemmon produced several childhood pictures of the coach, much to the latter's consternation, that produced mirth on all sides. Kiwanian W. J. Warner, having recently made a trip into Idaho, Coach Burger's former stamping ground, stated that in looking over the record at University of Idaho, he found that Burger was quite a card shark. Mysteriously, Max Petree went over to the coach and pulled a pack of cards and a quantity of poker chips from his pocket, amid much laughter.

After an elaborately wrapped gift package was carefully dropped and shattered, only to find that it was nothing but a "fake" in the form of a couple of cheap tumblers, Coach Burger was presented a beautiful fountain pen as a token from the club.

Russ Brown, former Tiger football and basketball star, spoke in behalf of those who played under Coach Burger, expressing their appreciation for his splendid work at senior high school, and telling of their deep regret at his departure. Brown also described a few personal sidelights of some of the trips made by the football and basketball teams.

Coach Burger's record was reviewed, showing that in five years of basketball, 73 games were won and 29 lost out of a total of 102. In five years of football, 37 games were won, three tied and five lost out of a total of 45. At University of Idaho, Burger was All-Coast forward for three years in basketball, All-Northwest end for three years in football, president of Beta Theta Pi, president of the Associated Students and president of his graduating class.

Coach Burger spoke in appreciation of the support the Kiwanis club has given the teams during his coaching.
