All Medford Churches Extend to Everyone A Cordial Invitation To

CHURCH OF CHRIST
1056 N. Court St.
C. Earl McCoy, Minister

When a religious organization begins meetings in any community and invites people to meet with them it follows that they should let the people know of their organization and what they teach or practice.

The Church of Christ has no auxiliary organizations. We believe the divine institution, the Church of Christ, is sufficient to do all the work God wishes his people to do; i. e. mission work, teaching the Word of God, and aiding widows and orphans.

We believe that the same seed sown today as was sown nineteen hundred years ago will produce the same Church that it produced then. That it will have the same kind of organization. That it will wear the same name. That it will teach sinners the same law of adoption that the Apostles taught. That it will teach its members to worship in the same manner the early Christians worshipped.

We believe that the Old Testament is a correct statement of God's dealings with his people during all time before Christ.

Every congregation of the Church of Christ is entire and not subject to any other congregation but is under Christ, its head.

The Elders are the ones to oversee all teaching. The Deacons look after the distributing of the needy. The minister is under the Elders.

Owing to the fact that we as a people believe the New Testament is a "perfect" guide book and "completely fulfills into every good work," we naturally frown upon any teaching or practice that is not found there. While we do this we realize that religion is an individual matter and that every one has the privilege of reading the Will for himself and choosing whether he will do that Will or follow other teachings.

Acting on the principle that salvation is free to the world we will never invite the world to pay for hearing the Gospel. No collection will be asked of the audience.
