Outstanding Hits Booked for Hunt's Craterian Soon

Early summer weeks, usually the slack season in show business, take on a contrasting—so to speak—this year, and promise Medford some outstanding attractions for the Craterian theater, according to an announcement made today by George Hunt of the local theaters.

With the showing of "Vagabond Lady" today, the list includes such heavily exploited pictures as "G-Men," the sensational story of the federal agents, with James Cagney starred and Robert Armstrong, Ann Dvorak, Margaret Lindsay and Regis Toomey in the supporting cast. It will start its local run tomorrow.

Following "G-Men" will be Mae West's newest, "Goin' to Town," in which the screen's foremost exponent of sex appeal is laid to outdo herself in a story that gives her ample opportunity to expound her views on man—and men—in addition to indulging in typical West witticisms scattered best into $2.40-$3 for choice 70-lb. averages to small killers; yearling quality plain, best available averaging 72 lbs. $7.50; sizable lots down to 67.00 and below; shorn native ewes, $1.75-$3.50.

"Under the Pampas Moon" will bring Warner Baxter to the Craterian theater in the "Clisco Kid" characterization that first shot him to overnight stardom. Ketti Gallian is his leading lady and the supporting cast includes the internationally famed dancing team of Velox and Yolanda.

"In Caliente" is listed for an early showing. A musical-comedy-romance, it has Dolores Delaney, Pat O'Brien and Edward Everett Horton in the leads.

After that will come "The Informer," of which John Piper, drama editor of the Oregonian said: "... the year's best picture and, sensing the inadequacy of the compliment, (the critic) risks all the dangers of amplification and concedes it very likely the best motion picture play ever made."

Victor McLaglen is said to give one of the outstanding characterizations ever offered in pictures in "The Informer," while Wallace Ford, J. M. Kerrigan and Margot Grahame are others in the cast who come in for their share of high praise.

Other outstanding film plays to follow include Katherine Hepburn in "Break of Hearts," Claudette Colbert in "Private Worlds," Wheeler and Woolsey in "Nit Wit," and "Let Em Have It," the second of the federal agent pictures, taking however, a different angle from "G-Men."

Cagney in "G Men" Starts Thursday

With newspapers full of the activities of the "G Men" as they round up the nation's criminals and, more particularly of late, capture of the Weyerhaeuser kidnapers, the Craterian theater announces the showing of "G Men," starring James Cagney, to start its local run tomorrow.

The picture follows the career of one of these G-Men from the time he joins the service, through his training period, through machine gun battles with gangsters, to a thrilling climax in which he rounds up, and exterminates, a gang of murderous kidnapers.

The story was written especially for the screen and was based on headline cases so familiar that spectators will readily recognize many of the incidents.

Robert Armstrong is Cagney's superior officer; Margaret Lindsay is the girl the red-headed G-Man loves; Ann Dvorak portrays a night club entertainer, while others include Regis Toomey, Russell Hopton and Barton McLane.

roll Graham. One of the most brilliant and colorful actors of the American stage or screen, it is in such characterizations as "Bordertown" that Muni rises to the full height of his talents.

He instills both life and fire into the character of a foreign youth who is torn by conflicting emotions in his desperate battle to win success and love against insurmountable odds.

Stung by the injustices done his people, he decides that only the rich get the things worth while in life, and goes to a resort town in the United States border where he acquires both riches and power as the proprietor of a night club and gambling resort.
