

REPUBLICAN CREED OUTLINED AT MEET MID-WESTERNERS

Justice for Veterans—Preservation of Constitution—Collective Bargaining for Labor Is Also Urged

By ROBERT F. HOWARD
(Associated Press Staff Writer.)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 12.—(AP)—“A declaration of principles” setting out the views they hoped will rally support in the 1936 presidential campaign, was adopted with cheers and applause today by mid-western Republican workers closing their “grass roots” conference of 10 prairie states.

“Justice for veterans,” although with no specific mention of paying the bonus, was one of the planks read to the delegation by resolutions Chairman Ed A. Hayes of Decatur.

The gathering declared for preservation of the constitutional form of government and state rights, “entirely against fascism and collectivism, a system of collective bargaining for labor” with child labor banned and women workers protected and a wage scale “equal to the American living standard.”

Back Old-Age Pensions. Old-age pensions were endorsed. A policy of “economy and thrift with allowance for relief” was advocated along with a demand for “a balanced budget by the honest method of bridging government expenses within the nation’s income.”

The resolutions endorsed the stand of Frank O. Lowden for governmental benefits to agriculture and advocated “preservation of the competitive system protected against monopoly.”

The second section of the resolutions report was drafted as a “declaration of principles.” It included a declaration for “sound currency based on gold and definitely established by congress.”

The agriculture plank, which caused a long argument within the resolutions committee, said in part: “We endorse the statement of Governor Lowden in this conference that, so long as we have a protective tariff for the benefit of industry, we should give to agriculture corresponding benefits for that portion of the products of the soil which goes into domestic consumption.”

Silent on AAA. No mention was made of the AAA, which was both criticized and defended by some of the delegates attending the 10-state meeting by mid-western Republicans.

Members of the resolutions committee had decided, as a compromise of conflicting views, to quote and endorse the brief statement regarding agriculture in the major address by former Gov. Frank O. Lowden of Illinois at the convention opened Monday.

The resolutions included a “Republican creed” which opened with an endorsement of the constitution and the “constitutional separation of the powers of government.”

At no place in the second section of the report was any direct reference made to the Roosevelt administration, bitterly attacked on 18 counts in the preliminary resolutions adopted by acclamation last night.

RECEIVER DENIED FOR LUCKY MINE

Application for a “working receiver” for the “Lucky 13” mining claims, in litigation between George M. Roberts and other shareholders and W. E. (Jed) Hittson, was heard and denied in superior court at Yreka, Cal., yesterday.

The mining property, from which Hittson is reputed to have taken upwards of $30,000 last winter, is located in Siskiyou county, California, just over the Oregon state line, and suits are now pending in both this state and California. The California action is scheduled to be heard the week of July 8.

Accounting of gold removed and determination of title is sought in both suits.

presidential salute as he entered the grounds.

The chief executive continued: “If you strive at all times to promote friendship and to discourage suspicion, to teach respect for the rights of others and to deny aggression, to oppose intolerance with a spirit of mutual helpfulness—then indeed your services will be of full value to your government and a source of satisfaction to yourselves.”

No Menace to Others. “We maintain an army to promote tranquility,” the president said, “and to secure us from aggression, but it is so created and so modest in proportion as to furnish proof that no threat or menace to the rights of others is even remotely intended.”

Asserting his belief that the nation had “drifted too far” toward a “level unjustified by a due regard to our his approval of congressional acts to “accomplish a partial restoration of the army’s enlisted strength.”

The president also reflected some of his own thoughts as chief executive of the United States.

“One of the most difficult tasks of government today,” he observed, “is to avoid the aggrandizement of any one group and to keep the main objective of the general good clear and unimpaired.”

Must Consider Factors. “The successful commander of an army must give consideration to all of the units which make up his army and in addition must necessarily remember the existence, the condition and the ultimate strength of his reserves and of the civilian population which is serving the same cause behind the lines.”

The president also noted the “priceless blessing of friendship with our neighbors.”

Mentioning the naval academy, too, he said these two military institutions of the nation “are the personification of democracy in the equality of opportunity they afford, uninfluenced by prior social position or economic standing.”

Relatives of the new officers of the army surrounded the 1935 class in the bright sun.

The firm announcement by Mr. Roosevelt of an increase in the armed forces brought an interruption of applause.

Mrs. Roosevelt Present. Mrs. Roosevelt, who flew here today from Raleigh, N. C., joined the president and his mother upon their arrival at the exercises. John, youngest son of Mr. Roosevelt, accompanied him to the stand.

The president personally handed out the diplomas to the white-capped, gray-coated graduates, shaking the hand of each.

Under the canopy behind him sat Secretary Dern, General Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff, and officers of the first army corps. It was an imposing assemblage of army leaders.

NEBRASKA FLOOD TERROR TOLD IN FRANKLIN PAPER

A. W. Lynch, formerly of Franklin, Neb., and now of this city, has just received a copy of the Franklin County Sentinel, weekly paper published in his home town, showing graphically the havoc wrought by the recent floods in that district. The front page of the little paper has nine pictures illustrating flood conditions.

Several people were reported drowned in the news story which accompanied the pictures, and a detailed account of the rise of the ordinarily peaceful Republican river is given. The story says that at one time, at the crest of the flood, the water was nearly two miles wide, and all that could be seen from Franklin was a wide sheet of water, the top part of a bridge, and floating debris, including barns, houses and small buildings. Farm equipment was lost by many, and many head of cattle and horses and pigs were reported drowned.

A few of the human interest features about the flood are reprinted: “One of the worst features about being marooned in the trees was the fact that snakes and rats also sought refuge there, and the men who were forced to wait for rescue spent a great deal of their time trying to keep the pests out of their trees.”

“Hearing reports that a huge wall of water was coming, most people deemed such a thing impossible in a wide valley such as this. It was a real wall, however, although many people can hardly believe it after seeing it. Claude Morris and Paul Spence were among the last to leave the Franklin river bridge, where they were taking pictures. After the wall came around the bend, Claude waited long enough to snap one more picture before jumping in the car, and at that time he drove in a few inches of water before getting clear. Men behind the car a distance of about 40 feet had to wade water almost up to their waists. The river rose from just over the banks to across the road in a period of two or three minutes.”

“A pathetic story comes out of the flood from the home of Clifford Mosbarger, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. T. Mosbarger of Franklin. When the flood struck, Mrs. Mosbarger was ill in her home south of Arapahoe, and as the waters rose she knew she must leave at once in order to escape. She waded more than two miles to a neighboring farm house through mud and water, and shortly after gave birth to a baby boy. A Beaver City physician arrived some time after the child was born and mother and son are reported as doing well.”

Another news story carried in the paper tells about four men building a power boat after the flood had struck, so as to go onto the river and assist in the rescue work. They rushed construction on the craft and powered it with a 40-horsepower motor to buck the rushing waters, the whole job taking only a few days.

SPECIAL RANGE OFFER WILL END SATURDAY WARNING FROM COPCO

One of the most successful electric range campaigns in the history of the local power company is rapidly drawing to a close, the final date having been announced as Saturday, June 15. The campaign featured the popular Crawford automatic range in the latest flat-top model at a price said to be the lowest on record for a modern, fully-equipped range of this type. This special offer coming at a time when every housewife is interested in a cool, clean, convenient method of cooking proved most opportune and many sales have resulted.

“We are highly pleased with the outcome of this campaign,” stated J. C. Thompson, local manager of the California Oregon Power company today. “We feel that much of its success is due to the effective advertising which we carried in the local newspapers. The remarkably low price and terms have made it possible for many of our customers to purchase a high-grade electric range, equipped with every modern feature and to enjoy the benefits of our low combination cooking rate. The special price was only possible because these ranges were contracted for last fall. Bought at today’s prices, we shall have to sell them at an increase of over 50 per cent. Inasmuch as there are only a few of these special ranges left, we are urging our local customers to place their orders at once if they wish to take advantage of this exceptional opportunity.”

MEDFORD VISITOR DISPLAYS JUBILEE EDITION OF ‘MAIL’

Dr. and Mrs. Ernest G. Simon of Oakland, Cal., accompanied by their daughter Gladys, are spending several weeks at the resort at Rocky Point, Ore., on Klamath lake. Mrs. Simon, who was a Medford visitor yesterday, will be remembered as the former Mrs. Horace Felton of this city.

While in Medford, Mrs. Simon was displaying to her friends an interesting copy of a special silver jubilee edition of the London Daily Mail, which was printed in conjunction with the silver jubilee program in England honoring the 25th year of the reign of King George.

The copy is printed on heavy silver paper, and is illustrated with many pictures of English scenes, and points of interest throughout the empire. Mrs. Simon, who visited on the continent and in England a few years ago, received the copy from a friend in London. She believes it to be one of the very few samples of the jubilee number in the United States.

While on a tour of the world a few years ago, Mrs. Simon made many beautiful photographs of scenes in foreign countries. An amateur photographer of striking merit, her photographs reflect the spirit of the countries in which she visited.

Her picture of a midnight sun in a Danish sky, reflected in the water, would do credit to many a professional, and studies of German children, Austrian peasants, and one of a coolie driving geese through a Java rice field are highlights of the collection.

Mrs. Simon also has an interesting collection of postcards, picked up in every corner of the world.

KIDNAPER VISITED PORTLAND, CLAIM FEELS HIS SHAME

PORTLAND, June 12.—(AP)—A Portland cigar store proprietor last night declared that Harmon W. Waley, arrested in Salt Lake City, where he assertedly confessed to complicity in the Weyerhaeuser kidnaping, was in this city between the time the Tacoma boy was abducted and the $200,000 ransom was paid.

Jack Pfleger said yesterday that Waley “breezed” into his East Portland store a few days ago and that he recognized him as a former “newy” here, but that at the time he was too rushed with business to stop and chat with the visitor. He said he did not notice that Waley acted in any way unusual and that he was dressed “just ordinary.” Pfleger said he recognized Waley when pictures of the Salt Lake suspect were published yesterday.

KIDNAPERS FATHER FEELS HIS SHAME

EVERETT, Wash., June 12.—(AP)—The father of Harmon F. Waley, confessed participant in the George Weyerhaeuser kidnaping who yesterday denied Harmon was his son, today had admitted the relationship, with the remark that “I am the boy’s father and I feel his shame. But there is no excuse. It’s something no American citizen can forgive.”

Z. M. Waley, foreman in the Walton Lumber company plant at Lowell, near here, is Harmon’s father. He said he has seldom seen his son since he was divorced from his first wife, now Mrs. Cleo I. Bonney, when Harmon was three years old. “My husband nearly fainted,” Mrs. Waley said, when they heard over the radio the announcement Sunday night of Waley’s arrest. “Somehow we both knew that this Harmon Waley was his son, and not a man with the same name. We felt terrible.”
