Cagney Heads "G-Men" Cast

The one and only Jimmy Cagney, tough guy par excellence of the movies, has turned Federal sleuth in "G-Men," the sensational new picture of the government super-detectives whose exploits are ringing throughout the country as each day brings in new reports of their efficiency in rounding up criminals. The picture opens today at the Craterian theater.
While presenting no names of the public enemies, nor emphasizing any time or places of actual battles, few will miss the connection of the occurrences as they take place. Said to be one of the most thrilling and dramatic pictures ever presented, "G-Men" was based almost entirely on the sensational headlines which have covered the front pages of the dailies of the country.
Margaret Lindsay has the chief feminine role opposite Cagney and finds herself the recipient of the red-head's newest method of handling recalcitrant women. This new method of putting the ladies in their places is done by standing them up against a door, dropping their purse on the floor so they will stoop to recover it, and then setting on the other side of the door and opening it suddenly. It is said to work like a charm.
Ann Dvorak as a nightclub entertainer, Robert Armstrong as Cagney's superior, Regis Toomey as the red-head's chum and Barton MacLane, the newest screen villain, head the supporting cast.

Here Friday

"The Unwelcome Stranger," with Jack Holt in the starring role, comes to the Rialto theater for tomorrow and Saturday, cast as a tough, hard-boiled owner of a race-horse breeding farm. Holt portrays the type of role for which he has become famous in some twenty years of screen acting.
The story deals with a superstitious horse-breeder who was afraid of nothing—until a stranger ruined his luck and shattered his romance. Complicated, thrilling situations lead to a satisfactory conclusion, when Holt, lured by Lady Luck, and with the woman he loves turned against him, is given a new lease on life by the very stranger he feared.

Fine Cast Appearing In Picture At Roxy

Boasting a cast of "Grand Hotel" proportions, and one of the grandest stories ever written in novel form, "The Captain Hates the Sea" comes to the Roxy theater for today and tomorrow.
The cast includes Victor McLaglen, John Gilbert, Wynne Gibson, Allison Skipworth, Helen Vinson, Fred Keating, Walter Catlett, Leon Errol, Walter Catlett, Luis Alberni, Howard Pine and Howard (The Three Stooges).
The plot concerns related incidents which occur aboard ship. It deals largely with the attempts of Schulte, a detective, played by McLaglen, to outwit a very clever crook who has in his possession stolen bonds worth a quarter of a million dollars.
