

WOODEN CAPITOL PROPOSED UNTIL NEW ONE READY

SALEM, Ore. (UP)—Oregon may build a temporary, wooden statehouse to use until its proposed new $3,000,000 structure of stone and steel, to replace the historic, 59-year old capitol ravaged by fire, is ready for occupancy two or more years hence.

Because state departments which were burned out in the capitol holocaust are paying $6780 a year in rent for space in downtown office buildings, the temporary statehouse plan has been advanced as an economy measure.

Dan J. Fry, secretary of the board of control, thinks the suggestion is sound. It has not been discussed by the board, however.

The wooden building would be built in the block-long street between the old statehouse and the supreme court and main office buildings. The street, connecting State and Court streets, has already been vacated by the city.

The interim capitol could be built for approximately $7500, it has been estimated. Oregon lumber would be used and local labor employed, providing a work project badly needed. It is pointed out, if the new capitol were delayed, the temporary structure would save the state payment of rent.

The building would be one story high, with office space arranged to best advantage. No basement would be needed. Heat would be supplied by the central system operating for the state buildings.

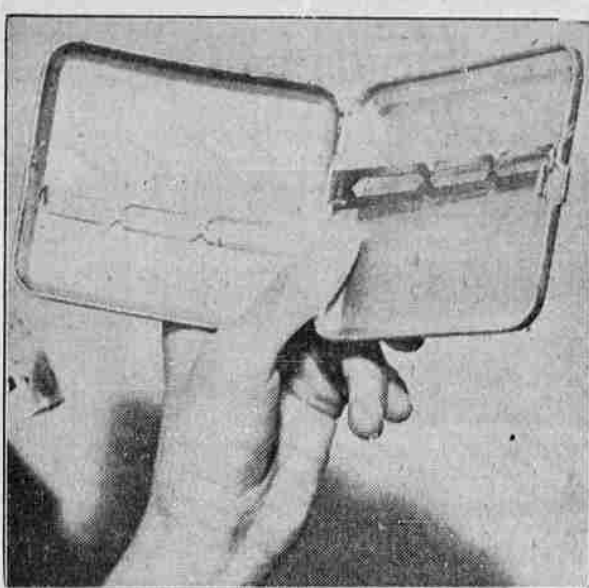

As a result of the fire, state offices are scattered all over Salem. The land board is in the First National Bank building, paying $40 per month. The tax commission has taken one end of the Elks temple at $150.

The Oregon building houses the state police headquarters at $62.50, the banking department at $52.50 and liquor commission at $45.

State forestry offices are in the Chambers building at $100. The treasury department, inheritance tax division and SERRA accounting service are in the new Biich building at $80, but $35 of this is paid by SERRA.

Other departments formerly in the old capitol are in three other state buildings—supreme court, office and agriculture—at no rental.

CIGARETTE CASE TRAPS WOMAN

When Mrs. Harmon Waley offered a bill in payment for this cigarette case in Salt Lake City she was arrested and charged with a part in the kidnaping of George Weyerhaeuser, 9, in Tacoma, Wash. The bill was identified as part of the $200,000 paid for the boy's return. (Associated Press Photo)

SPORT SLANTS

Even when he was an infielder in the International league Bucky Walters nursed a secret ambition to be a pitcher. Players in that loop will remember how he used to hand-cut the first basemen with his sizzling "strikes" across the diamond from third base. They marveled at the amazing speed Walters had for such a skinny kid.

They are not at all surprised that Walters proved quite a sensation on the mound—they rather felt that his talents were being wasted while he remained an infielder.

No great shucks as a third baseman, Bucky akaed Manager Jimmy Wilson for a chance to try pitching. The Phillies' hurling staff never was overloaded with winning pitchers so Walters was promised a chance to show what he could do.

Walters beat the world champion Cardinals, 2-1, and followed up that victory with a 1-0 shutout over the Chicago Cubs. Incidentally, it was Bucky's own bat that punched out the hit in the latter game that drove in the winning tally.

If Bucky develops into the sensation his early mound efforts promise, his success is likely to pile new woe on the troubled head of Eddie Collins of the Boston Red Sox. Several years ago Collins made a trip out to the west coast to look over Walters, then touted as a prize third baseman.

Collins found him.

Collins must have been satisfied with what he saw for he planked down something like $65,000 and took Walters along. In a Red Sox uniform Bucky did not show to any great advantage. In fact, his hitting was so weak that he soon drifted into the International league. Boston recalled him last year and sold him to the Phillies in May.

Back in 1924, Bob Smith was a shortstop for the Boston Braves. When Dave Bancroft took charge of the Braves that year he also took over the task of covering the short field. Bancroft noticed that Smith was out there on the mound tossing them up to batters in practice whenever he got the chance. Learning that Bob liked to pitch, Banny suggested that he try to develop his delivery. The experiment worked out all right for Bob has been a pitcher ever since and today rates as a smart hurler with plenty of style, stuff and control.

The Chicago White Sox have a promising young pitcher in Joe Vance, who was up with the Brooklyn Dodgers not long ago seeking an outfield berth. He started his pitching career by tossing in batting practice last year when he was with Dallas.

Vance may never set the league afire with his work on the rubber, but he has the distinction of being one of the fastest men in baseball.

The White Sox pitcher used to outfoot the Yankees' speed-boy, Ben Chapman, when the two were in the Piedmont league.

Wagner Pupil Stars.

Hans Wagner, the great Pittsburgh shortstop of a generation ago, apparently is doing a fine job of coaching for the Pirates. His star pupil, "Arky" Vaughan, has come along so rapidly under the old master's tutelage that he just about rates the honor of being the best shortstop in the business.

At 23 he is leading both leagues in batting, scoring runs, driving in runs and most every other honor to be gained at the plate. A brilliant fielder, this youngster has a fair chance of earning a place beside his teacher in baseball's hall of fame.

BURS GIVE SHEEP BLIND STAGGERS

THE DALLES, Ore., June 13.—(AP)—Several hundred sheep being driven from Yakima, Wash., to the national forest range west of this city were stricken with an ailment labeled blind staggers by herdsmen in charge. They believe the disease caused by eating the newly-sprouted cockleburs along the lowlands. Only a few of the animals died but scores were unable to stand.

A truck picked up those most seriously afflicted.

The herd of 2100 head was the largest seen here in some time. Ferymen were busy for several hours transporting the animals across the Columbia.

Search For Youth To Settle Estate

SALEM, Ore. (UP)—John Bremen, 24, was sought today by his mother, Mrs. John Bremen, 109 Post road, Aberdeen, Md., who wrote Governor Martin.

Bremen's father died recently and the youth is needed in settling the estate. Bremen was described as being six feet tall, weighing 165 pounds, and with light brown hair and blue eyes.

Shirt and Pants Orphans Legacy

LOS ANGELES.—(UP)—A shirt and a pair of pants were inherited by Willie Fiegner, orphan farm boy, from his late employer.

On his death bed, Otto Paul Grasshoff, a rancher, signed a will bequeathing "one shirt and pants to my boy, Willie Fiegner, on my ranch."

While Willie received the cast-off garments other heirs collected $10,000.

Hoarded Pennies Pay For Wedding

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, Ohio.—(UP)—A Shadyside, Ohio, couple who saved their pennies to get married gave Probate Judge Harry Albright a one-cent profit.

Judge Albright counted 301 copers. A license cost $3.

"Oh, well, we were excited and miscounted. That's your profit and our loss, keep it," waved the groom.

Red Tape Fatal For Huge Python

SAN DIEGO, Cal.—(UP)—Red tape, which annoys people, killed a 14-foot python.

With five other pythons, the snake arrived from Singapore for the Pacific International exposition. The bills of lading were sent in error to Chicago and customs officials would not let the snakes off the boat.

By the time the bills of lading arrived the 14-foot python was dead. The others were sluggish and thin but will live.

Poultry Profit For Washington

SEATTLE (UP)—Washington farmers sold 704,000,000 eggs and 7,148,000 chickens last year, receiving a cash income of $13,397,000, or 15 per cent over the year before, the state agricultural department announced.

It was estimated the chicken population of the state totaled 7,080,000 on Jan. 1, 1935, compared to 7,613,000 the first of 1934. It was the smallest number on farms since 1929.

TENT REVIVALIST ATTRACTS THROUG

Speaking to a near capacity audience at the tent services of the Nazarene church last night, Dr. C. H. Babcock used as his topic, "The Latter Reign of the Spirit's Outpouring."

In part, the speaker said: "I believe there is to be one last manifestation of the spirit's revival outpouring. According to the prophecy of the Book of Joel, second chapter, God is calling the church; God is calling His people, to sanctify a fast and go on the knees with a prayer of faith for the divine outpouring as, during the pentecostal revival."

A number of people took Christ as their Savior at the conclusion of the message last night.

Tomorrow, there will be three services under the tent, opposite the Junior high school, at 10 a. m., 2:30 and 7:45 p. m. The Rogue River Holiness association will join in the program of the day. Dr. Babcock will speak at the morning and night services, with Rev. Peter Clark, from Scotland, speaking at the 2:30 hour. A pot luck lawn luncheon, brought by each participant, will be shared at the luncheon hour. All are invited.

SURVEY OF WATER RIGHTS STARTED

A general survey of the inchoate or conditional water rights in Jackson and Josephine counties is now under way with Ed K. Humphrey from the state engineer's office in charge. He will spend this season and possibly the next in completing the work.

Clinton A. Smith, water master of this district, expects the survey to be of great benefit to the water users, as it will be the initial step in completing the title to several thousand acres in these counties.

These water rights were initiated prior to 1919, and have never been proved up or received a certificate from the state, and upon the completion of the work a supplemental decree will be entered confirming and establishing such rights of appropriation.
