NRA EXTENSION SIGNED BY F. D. R.

By PAUL MALLON
(Copyright, 1935, by Paul Mallon)
WASHINGTON, June 14.—The man who is now supposed to be President Roosevelt's main conservative adviser called at the White House before the Hyde Park trip. He attempted to persuade the president that the election of public utility holding companies was too severe. He wanted them paroled under a government reform school instead.

A few minor amendments to the election section of the Wheeler-Rayburn bill were discussed, but no specific substitute amendment was agreed on. However, the adviser went away with the distinct impression that a reform school substitute would be acceptable to the president.

That word was passed around inside. From it grew inspired prophecies about the New Deal softening the sentence on the utilities before the senate vote. In addition, it was the hidden basis on which the fight was made for the Dieterich amendment in the senate.

The liberal advisers of the president heard nothing about such a change of heart; at least, not from the president. In fact, they went to the White House with a letter from him saying emphatically he wanted nothing more than minor changes in the election clause of the bill. This they kept in their pockets until the final drive began for the Dieterich amendment in the senate.

Senator Dieterich arose and announced, just before the close, and voting vote, that he was "authorized" to say that the president had in mind the elimination of good holding companies, only had one.

Then the liberals let him have it. The signed communication from the president was read by Senator Wheeler.

This development is only one chapter in the most sensational inside tale of hard legislative fighting that Washington has heard of will hear for many a year. Congressional corridors are said to be strewn with crossed and double-cross postscripts, not missing kisses.

So far, one thing has been established; namely, what happens when an irresistible lobbying force meets an immovable lobbying object. The irresistible force wins by one vote. At least it did in the senate, where the liberal lobbyists for the administration defeated the conservative-utility lobbying agents by that margin on the Dieterich call.

The liberals had a lobbying advantage because their No. 1 man, Ben Cohen, sat on the senate floor as a government expert assisting Senator Wheeler. That was excusable because Mr. Cohen and his associate, Thomas Corcoran, really wrote the bill. The public utility people had to work from the gallery.

A few hours before the roll call, both Messrs. Cohen and Corcoran began to sense that something was wrong. Some senators they had counted as "safe" were not behaving properly. Something had to be done to get their boys back in line.

AMENDMENTS ARE AGREED BY HOUSE IN SHORT DEBATE

Vote for Abbreviated Recovery Program Is 338 to 39 — Anti-Trust Amendment Called Improvement

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today signed the joint resolution extending the modified NRA to next April 1 as soon as he received it from congress.

He also signed the joint resolution containing the emergency railroad act and the office of rail coordinator for one year to next June 17.

Congressional action on both measures had been completed only this afternoon.

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP)—Racing against a Sunday night deadline, the house today speedily agreed to senate amendments to the resolution extending an abbreviated NRA to next April 1 and sent the measure to President Roosevelt for his signature.

Passage came after only 40 minutes of little debate.

The vote for the NRA resolution was 338 to 39.

Not even the full hour of allowed debate was utilized, the republicans apparently conceding their attempts to defeat the huge house democratic majority would be unsuccessful.

When the special resolution, accepting the senate amendment to the measure was called up, Representative Michener (R. Mich.), remarked:

"Unless I am misinformed, only one rule like this has ever been brought before the house. This is a rarified type of gag rule."

The Harrison-Borah anti-trust amendment, said Representative Jenkins (R. Ohio), "improves the bill."

"We republicans contend," he asserted, "that the NRA either should be continued or allowed to die and not extend in this half-dead shape."

Flag Day Marks Birth of Banner 158 Years Ago

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP)—Exactly 158 years ago, the continental congress decreed that the nation should have a flag with 13 stripes and 13 stars—and so today is Flag day.

It is the 20th annual official celebration of the event. President Wilson first proclaimed Flag day in 1915. His widow, Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, was invited to view a pageant of flags today at the Girl Scouts' "Little House."

ROOSEVELT PLEA AVERTS WALKOUT OF COAL MINERS

WASHINGTON, June 14.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today personally asked that the threatened strike in the bituminous industry be called off until July 1, and both union and operators leaders agreed to recommend it to conferences of laborers tomorrow.

John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, made the announcement in the White House, following a talk with the President and congressional leaders, who are pressing for enactment of the Guffey bill to regulate the bituminous coal industry.

The strike has been ordered for Monday.

"The President suggested—after canvassing the legislative situation—that in the public interest he would request the operators and miners to extend the status quo of the wage agreements in the industry until July 1 and save the country the expense and inconveniences of a suspension of work," Lewis said.

The President, the union chief added, based his request on the legislative situation and expressed hope for enactment.

KIDNAPERS VIEWED BY BOY VICTIM IN OLYMPIA BASTILE

Federal Agents Take Young Weyerhaeuser for Interview With Waleys — Mahan Is Still at Large

TACOMA, June 14.—(AP)—Federal agents rushed nine-year-old George Weyerhaeuser to the Thurston county jail at Olympia today for an hour and a half interview with Mr. and Mrs. Harmon M. Waley, charged with his kidnaping May 24.

Authorities refused to comment on the visit. Official sources revealed the Waleys saw the lad separately. It was assumed the purpose of the visit was to have George see the Waleys so he could identify them.

He was hurried out of the garage in the basement in the front seat of a sedan with two federal agents, one of whom shouted, "Come on, George," as they entered the garage.

At Salt Lake City, where the Waleys were apprehended, officers while still watching for William Mahan, wanted as an accomplice in the kidnaping, were reported seeking an unnamed woman, believed Mahan's companion. It was believed the officers obtained her fingerprints in the Spokane kidnap hideout.

CHINA PROTESTS JAPAN'S ACTION

LONDON, June 14.—(AP)—Certain diplomatic quarters here reported today that China was making urgent representations to the western powers against Japanese moves after Quo Tai-Chi, the Chinese ambassador, called at the foreign office to discuss the situation.

It was reported that China claims Japan's action is a flagrant violation of the nine-power treaty.

It was said that Ambassador Qu informed Great Britain that China wishes to force Japan to adhere to the provisions of the treaty, to which the United States and Great Britain, as well as other nations, are signatories, and that China is unable to make further concessions to Japan.

His formal call was made as press reports from China described an advance of Japanese soldiers through the great wall.

INJUNCTION PLEA HOLDS INTEREST IN LUMBER STRIKE

Union Officials Seeking to Restrain Officers From Interference With Picketing of Oregon Sawmills

PORTLAND, Ore., June 14.—(AP)—Interest in northern Oregon lumber strike was transferred from the gates of sawmills today to the circuit court room in this city.

Not even the test case of an arrested picket, heard in the Gresham justice court, approached in importance the scene in Circuit Judge James W. Crawford's court where union officials are threatening to secure an injunction to restrain county and state officers from interfering in the picketing of mills.

At Gresham, where the cases of the 237 pickets arrested at the Bridal Veil mill east of Portland were to be heard, the union lost the first skirmish when Justice E. A. Eastman declined to recognize a plea for a change of venue for Alf Johnson, 32, Johnson was the first man arrested.

To Ask Venue Changed
Chris Roosen, attorney for the union, announced that he would file a writ of mandamus for a change of venue in district court late today. It was not expected anyone other than Johnson would be brought to trial immediately. The pickets are charged with disorderly conduct. Many have been released on bail.

While all eyes centered on the injunction proceedings here, the situation in other parts of the state was also being watched.

INSULL ACQUITTAL VERDICT DIRECTED

CHICAGO, June 14.—(AP)—Federal Judge John C. Knox today directed the jury in the bankruptcy law violation of Samuel Insull, his son, Samuel Insull, Jr., and Harold L. Stuart to return a verdict of acquittal for all three defendants.

Judge Knox declared:

"Under the proof submitted by the government the hypothesis of the defendants' innocence is as great as that of their guilt."

Insull, Sr., who seemed a bit stunned by the suddenness of the decision, smiled happily and said: "All I can say is that I'm happy and I'm through."

Mrs. Caswell formerly served as vice-president of the state chapter, and Mrs. Wells was the organizer in the state this past year. Over 300 members and delegates attended the session.

FINE SCORES MARK EARLY SHOOTING IN MAJOR EVENT

175 Men Start Blazing Away This Morning — Many of National Repute Entered in Oregon Classic

Two events in the Oregon State trapshoot were completed this afternoon with J. O. Costant of Pocatello, Idaho, carrying off the trophy in the Wolves event, which is composed of shooters averaging 95 per cent or better. Costant broke 50 straight. The trophy in the Lamb event went to W. E. Warren of Reno, Nev., who also shattered 50 targets without missing.

Thirty-five squads of 175 men were ready to go to the firing lines when the call was issued at 8:30 this morning for the first major event in the Oregon state trapshoot being held at the Medford Gun Club.

This is one of the largest turn-outs of scatter gun artisans registered in this county in recent years, and the list of competitors in today's principal number exceeds the list for the corresponding event in Portland last year by more than ten squads. It was the opinion of Charles Dockendorf, veteran tournament cashier, that the Medford meet will prove to be the largest in the United States this year.

The first number on today's program was the class championships of 200 targets at 16 yards, divided into eight rounds of 25 targets. The shooters were divided into A, B, C and D classifications in accordance with their averages and trophies and prizes were to be awarded to winners and runners-up in each class. The squads fire in rotation and with such a large list of entrants it was anticipated that the event would not be concluded till well toward evening.

Many of the 800 field sportsmen of the west were entered in the class championship number and all appeared to be in excellent form. (Continued on Page Eleven)

TEN-DAY TRUCE HALTS HOSTILITIES IN CHACO

BUENOS AIRES, June 14.—(AP)—A ten-day truce took effect in the Chaco at noon today, the Bolivian and Paraguayan general staffs leaving the "cease firing" order to weary soldiers whose hostilities had virtually halted several hours before.

"Step and Fetch It" just came up with Jesse Owens, the Cleveland colored boy of Ohio State, who breaks world's records as easy as the rest of us break commandments. He is a very, very modest fellow. Says he will be tickled to death if he can just win these events here Sunday as he thinks these are the best boys he has met. He is entered in four events. He holds the world's record in three of 'em and is tied for the other.

Accused Kidnapers Returned to Scene

To face arraignment in the George Weyerhaeuser kidnaping case, Harmon Metz Waley and his young wife, Mrs. Margaret Waley, are shown arriving in Tacoma late Wednesday by airplane from Salt Lake City. They were under heavy guard of Department of Justice agents. The Waleys are shown as they left the plane at Pierce County Airport. Mrs. Waley is in the center of the plane and her husband is on the ground, wearing a white cap and with his wrists handcuffed. Under heavy guard, they were rushed to the Federal Building in Tacoma and arraigned before United States Commissioner R. G. Fitch on charges of conspiracy to extort and kidnaping and transporting the 9-year-old Tacoma boy across the Washington state line into Idaho. They entered pleas of not guilty to both counts. Bail for each was fixed at $100,000 on the extortion charge and bail was not set on the second count. When arrested at Salt Lake City last Saturday they guided G-men to the spot where $200,000 of the $200,000 ransom collected from J. P. Weyerhaeuser family for return of the boy was buried. After arraignment the Waleys were taken to the Thurston County jail in Olympia, the state capital. Associated Press Photo.
